Crisis Grips Europe In Split Over Spain; France Accuses Italy

Outburst Follows Talk by Il Duce

Russian Protest Made at Angry Session of Peace Group.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

London, March 24.—The nations of Europe, confronted by a crisis more foreboding than any in post-war times, suddenly split into Communist and Fascist camps tonight during an angry session of the International Committee for Nonintervention in Spain.

The long-fermenting enmity between Communist and Fascist powers on the continent—fanned by Premier Benito Mussolini's defiant speech yesterday to 250,000 Blackshirts in Rome—burst without warning on the neutrality committee.

Ivan Maisky, Russian Ambassador, appeared before a plenary session of the committee and presented an official note from Moscow asking that investigators be sent to the battlegrounds of Spain to learn how many Italians are fighting with the rebel armies.

Russia Asks Inquiry.

It was time, he said, that the committee checked up on the whole situation in Spain.

The Russian note was a sharp answer to Mussolini, who sent his ambassador to London, Dino Grandi, before the committee yesterday to announce that Italy refuses absolutely to consider the withdrawal of any Italian volunteers from Spain.

Maisky asked that the neutrality committee's investigators' attempt to determine how many Italians have been sent to the rebel generalissimo, Francisco Franco, since the international embargo on volunteers became effective February 20.

Finally, he said, it should be determined whether the Italians in Spain include any units of Mussolini's regular army.

Grandi, dapper in his well-cut clothes and jet black goatee, flushed with anger as he listened to the reading of the Russian note.

"This is a provocative note!" he retorted.

"The representative of Communist Russia will receive a reply from the Italian government which he deserves!"

Armindo Rodriquez de Sttau Monteiro, Portuguese representative, charged that the Soviet action violated the neutrality committee's rules of procedure because the allegations in the note were not supported by proof.

Maisky's answer to Monteiro's statement was prompt.

Any member of the committee, he said, was entitled to submit charges which he considered well founded.

French Proposal Adopted.

The French Ambassador, Andre Corbin, whose government is sympathetic toward the Popular Front Loyalists of Spain, but which entered eagerly into the neutrality plan, proposed that the Russian note should be discussed by a sub-committee.

Corbin's proposal finally was adopted by the committee, which is headed by Lord Plymouth.

The situation created by the Russian note, it was feared, will shatter the international control scheme

European Crisis.

The nations of Europe split into Communist and Fascist camps during an angry session of the International Committee for Non-intervention in Spain.

France, determined to halt what she termed "flagrant Italian intervention" in the Spanish war, sought aid to blockade the coast of Spain unless the flow of volunteers is halted.

Spanish government forces were reported to have driven back Francisco Franco's rebels almost to the point from which they started their "big push" on Madrid.

Volunteer Troops Still Aiding Rebels, Paris Tells Diplomats.

Berlin, London Asked to Help

Fears Expressed That Rome Will Scrap Neutrality Pact.

By the Associated Press.

Paris, March 24.—France, fired by fears that Italy shortly may throw over the international "hands-off Spain" agreement, today took steps to preserve that accord.

Diplomatic authorities disclosed a French claim to "absolute proof" that Italian volunteers had landed in insurgent-held Spain since the European ban on foreign volunteers in the Spanish civil war became effective February 20 and that the government views the situation with "gravity."

Authoritative sources reported Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, in a series of meetings with foreign diplomats, took the following actions:

1. He told the British and German ambassadors France will seek Britain's aid in blockading the Spanish coast unless Premier Benito Mussolini observes the non-intervention accord.
2. He asked the German ambassador, Count Johannes von Welczeck, to urge the German government to intercede in Rome to forestall any Italian junking of the agreement.
3. He began a poll of France's allies.

Asks United Stand.

Delbos' conferences with the British and German ambassadors were outlined authoritatively as follows:

The foreign minister suggested that Great Britain and France adopt a common stand toward the Italian refusal to withdraw Italians fighting in Spain and toward the possibility that reinforcements might be landed to insure a victory for Insurgent Leader Gen. Francisco Franco.

He suggested that, "if possible," the collaboration of other nations represented on the noninterventiön committee be sought.

Declarations in the Italian press that Italy will not remove a single soldier from Spain until the civil war is over, coupled with yesterday's declaration in London by Count Dino Grandi, Italian ambassador there, that Italy refused to take part at this juncture in any discussion requiring the withdrawal of foreign volunteers from Spain, were mentioned by Delbos.

Compliments Germany.

He cited these points as signs that Mussolini shortly may throw over the whole nonintervention agreement and pour troops into Gen. Franco's ranks.

He asked the German ambassador to urge his government to intercede in Rome to prevent any such action.

Delbos told the German envoy France was 'extremely pleased" with the fact Germany strictly observed the agreement against sending volunteers to the Iberian Peninsula.

The fact that there are 9,000 expatriate Germans fighting for the Madrid-Valencia government was discussed as a possible snag for any agreement to withdraw all foreigners from Spain.

It was pointed out these would not be able to return to Germany and whether other countries would accept them was found to be a difficult question.

The first step in France's poll of

Sultan to Push Elevated Street At Georgetown

Calls Skyway Need Urgent; $4,000,000 Improvement Program Drafted.

Construction of a $1,430,000 skyway boulevard over K street in Georgetown is the "most urgently needed highway project in the city," Col. Dan I. Sultan declared yesterday as District engineers put the finishing touches on a $4,000,000 street improvement program for submission to Congress.

Col. Sultan said the Georgetown project will be given precedence over all other recommendations in the highway improvement plan. Already, he said, steps have been taken to acquaint Congressional committees with the pressing need for the elevated roadway.

The proposed skyway would rise over K street at Twenty-seventh street, and extend to Thirty-sixth street, with ramp connections to M street east and west of Key Bridge.

Conditions Intolerable.

"Something has to be done to relieve the traffic congestion at K street and the Rock Creek Parkway and on M street in Georgetown," Col. Sultan said. "Present conditions are intolerable. It is not a rush hour problem. The congestion exists throughout the day and night."

Col. Sultan pointed out that if the elevated roadway were constructed westbound traffic on K street would flow over north and south bound traffic along Rock Creek Parkway. In addition, he pointed out, M street would be relieved of much of its heavy flow of traffic bound for Key Bridge and points beyond Georgetown.

It was decided to press for construction of an elevated boulevard, rather than development of a low level highway on the bed of the old Chesapeake & Ohio Canal, Col. Sultan said. He pointed out that the engineering cost of the skyway would be greater, but the cost of acquiring the canal bed would make the low level roadway the most expensive in the long run.

Discussed Viaduct.

Col. Sultan said he already has discussed the need for construction of the viaduct with members of the District Committees in the House.

The complete highway improvement plan will be submitted to Congress within the next several days by Col. H. C. Whitehurst, District highway director.

District officials said frankly they held little hope of securing appropriations to carry out most of the projects outlined in the highway improvement program.

18 Are Dead In Midwest Bus Tragedy

By the Associated Press.

Salem, Ill., March 24.—A tire blowout hurled a private bus against a concrete bridge abutment today and turned it into a blazing wreck in which 18 persons, including a 4-year-old girl, were killed.

Only five persons survived one of the worst disasters in the history of motorbus transportation, and two of them were so seriously injured they may die.

The bus, loaded with a professional roller-skating troupe, en route from St. Louis to Cincinnati, was going down a slight grade when its right front tire blew out about 50 feet from the bridge on United States highway, No. 50, 2 miles west of here.

The heavy machine careened crazily, dug into the soft shoulder of the highway and rammed into the bridge abutment with terrific force. Hurled on its side, the bus burst into flames when its gasoline tank was smashed.

Appeared to Explode.

"The survivors said the bus appeared to explode and then there was fire all over and all were caught in it," reported Dr. H. L. Logan of the Salem Community Hospital, where the injured were taken.

"I can still hear my pals' screams of terror," Don Flanery of Kansas City, a professional roller-skater, said. "They were trapped in a mass of fire. The boys as well as the girls were hysterical and all fought like mad to get out."

Flanery managed to crawl out of a window but he suffered first degree burns when he attempted to rescue Miss Ruth Hill, of Kansas City, his fiancee.

At the hospital, attendants quoted him as saying:

"She called to me twice. I finally found her. I tried to pull her out, but she was pinned and I couldn't move her."

The attendants reported he wept as he asked, "I did the best I could for her, didn't I?"

Dick Thomas, of Chicago, the driver; his bride, Mrs. Emily Thomas, also of Chicago; John L. (Schoolboy) Creekmore, Miami, Fla., and Ted Mullens, Portland, Oreg., also escaped from the flaming bus.

Dr. Logan said Mrs. Thomas and Mullens had a slight change to live.

The flames, which mounted 40 feet in the air, turned the bus into a funeral pyre for those trapped in it.

Thirteen bodies taken from the twisted wreckage were sent to a funeral home at Salem. Five others were taken to nearby Patoka, Ill.

Burnt to a Crisp.

Omar McMackin, Mayor of Salem and owner of the undertaking establishment, said the bodies were burnt to a crisp and identification would be almost impossible except through dental work.

The body of the child was so badly burned determination of its sex was difficult, an employe at the mortuary reported. At St. Louis, Leo Seltzer, promoter who organized the troupe, said the child was the daughter of Mrs. Erma Caldwell, of Chicago, dietician for the skaters.

In addition to Mrs. Caldwell, Seltzer said passengers on the bus included Miss Carolyn Barton, Denver, a registered nurse; Jerry Wallers, Hollywood, Calif., assistant track manager, and Henry A. Salmon, St. Louis chiropractor.

Roller-skaters in the party on the bus were identified by Seltzer as: Joe Kleats, Indianapolis; Libby Hoover, Kansas City; Nick Kelson, Chicago, Tony Marzano, Chicago; Louise Browers, Cincinnati; Jack Israel, Kansas City, Mo.; Miss Hill; Bus Gesser, Cincinnati; Millie Cooper, Villa Park, Ill.; Flannery,

2 Killed, 30 Hurt As Tornado Hits Southern States

Winchester, Ky., March 24 (AP).—A "black ice cream cone" swept through the outskirts of Winchester and cut a swath through Clark County late today, injuring at least 30 persons, 5 seriously, and destroying between 12 and 15 homes.

William C. Caywood, jr., newspaperman, said it definitely was a tornado—"a number of persons saw it"—and described the funnel as resembling a "black ice cream cone."

The Winchester hospitals were crowded with injured and appeals were sent to Lexington for physicians and anti-tetanus serum.

Two Alabamans Killed.

Ozark, Ala., March 24 (AP).—Two persons were killed by a tornado which struck about a mile and a half southwest of Ozark today. Farmers and townspeople searched the area for other possible victims.

Court Plan Called Blow To Religion

'It Can Happen Here,' Lutheran Minister Says at Hearing.

By Robert C. Albright.

The religious issue, foundation of spreading church opposition to the President's court plan, yesterday was injected forthrightly in Senate Judiciary hearings by a Protestant theologian and a veteran farm leader.

Dr. Theodore Graebner, Lutheran clergyman, professor and editor, said "it can happen here," and warned that "love of power some day will find it expedient to favor one code of sectarian morality, one form of religion above the rest."

A few minutes earlier, Louis J. Taber, white-haired, deep-voiced National Grange master, excitedly denounced the court plan as "a threat to the religious and political liberties of our people."

Describing himself as "a fighting Quaker," Taber defended the court as a bulwark against religious and racial intolerance.

"They are good judges," said Taber. "They interpret the law. They are not Pontius Pilates, listening to the rabble."

Churchman Testifies.

Dr. Graebner, professor of theology at Concordia College, St. Louis, and first of what promised to be a long list of church witnesses, followed a full morning's testimony by President H. W. Dodds, of Princeton University. Dodds called the program "a repudiation of the principle of Constitutionalism in a democracy."

A fourth witness, William Hirth, Missouri farmer co-operative leader and pre-Chicago Roosevelt supporter, rounded off a long day of opposition testimony. Hirth said, "Just as soon as Congress puts this astounding power in his (the President's) hands, the end of constitutional government will be in sight."

Senator Tom Connally (Democrat), of Texas, had just asked the witness if he was familiar with the "Oregon case," in which the Supreme Court invalidated an Oregon ban on parochial schools.

Taber jumped to his feet to shout his assent.

"Confound it——" he began, then asked the stenographer to strike out the remark.

Ancestors Tortured.

"I don't want you to think I'm excited," he told the committee. "I'm a Quaker, but I'm ready to become a fighting Quaker. It is because I feel so keenly about it. It is because my ancestors have suffered so. They have been thrown into prison for their religious beliefs. Some of them had holes burned in their tongues."

Earlier Tabler had testified to the Grange belief that religious freedom and liberties guaranteed in the Bill of Rights "can never be submitted to a majority ballot." He said organizations have arisen in the last 20 years and elected men to office "because of their belief in, or op-

4 Killed in Crash Of English Plane

London, March 24 (AP).—Imperial Airways tonight announced four members of the crew of the flying boat Capricornus were killed today as the plane struck the Beaujolais Mountains near Ouroux, France, in a storm.

Mrs. B. M. Coates, the only passenger, was injured. The only other person aboard, Wireless Operator J. L. Cooper, was uninjured.

Chrysler to Continue Negotiations Today; Roosevelt Parley Set

Executive Will Discuss Sit-Down Menace on Return Saturday.

Dies Finds Public Growing Resentful

By William V. Nessly.

Mounting official concern over the sit-down strikes besetting industry is to result in a conference on the subject between President Roosevelt and Congressional leaders shortly after the President returns from his Warm Springs, Ga., vacation Saturday.

Word of the conference came from the temporary White House in the South yesterday after Senate Majority Leader Robinson declared that "a crisis is * * * near at hand" and voiced the belief that if the situation is not cleared soon Congressional leaders must meet to discuss means of meeting the situation.

The President will leave Warm Springs Friday, arriving here Saturday morning. At 5 p .m. Saturday he will receive Robinson, Speaker Bankhead, House Floor Leader Rayburn and possibly Vice President Garner.

Would Remove Uncertainty.

What recommendations or decisions might come out of the discussion were a matter of speculation, rising in the way of immediate adoption of any definite program is uncertainty over what action the Supreme Court will take on the Wagner labor relations act. A decision on constitutionality of the law is expected by many when the court meets Monday, although the ruling may be further delayed.

Should the act be upheld, with its collective bargaining provisions, the decision would do much to remove the uncertainty as to what powers the Government may exercise over labor-industrial relations. On the other hand, invalidation of the act would leave officialdom groping as to what steps might be taken in that direction.

No less a labor leader, incidentally, than John L. Lewis has publicly said labor forces have abandoned hope the Wagner act will be upheld by the court.

Meanwhile, Representative Dies (Democrat), Texas, said the Rules Committee would hold a hearing next week on his resolution for an investigation of sit-down strikes.

President Is Blamed.

He assailed the strikes again, saying that "public sentiment is beginning to revolt against this new species of lawlessness and mob spirit" and added:

"Certainly the strikers should know that the dictatorships of Mussolini and Hitler were preceded by a series of such sit-down strikes."

Representative Bernard (Farmer-Labor), Minnesota, declared the present automobile strike is legal "and not a so-called invasion of property rights."

Representative Hoffman, Michigan Republican, blamed the President and his advisers for the spread of the industrial tie-ups and said many Michigan workers want the Chief Executive to "repudiate with firmness and in unequivocal language the illegal, communistic instrument of the sit-down strike."

Subject to the Supreme Court ruling on the Wagner act, the White

On the Labor Front.

John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, agreed to withdraw strikers from Chrysler plants at Detroit to speed settlement of the strike.

Concerned over the spread of sit-down strikes, President Roosevelt arranged to confer with Congressional leaders to seek a solution to the problem.

The 19-day taxicab strike in Chicago was settled as scattered instances of violence marred the nation-wide labor scene.

14-Year Limit On Child Labor Asked by Borah

By Sidney Olson.

"How old is a child?"

Members of Congress faced this long-troublesome question once again yesterday when Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, introduced a resolution for a Constitutional amendment fixing the working age limit of children at 14 yeras, while Senator Burton K. Wheeler (Democrat), of Montana, proposed legislation setting the limit at 16.

Borah's proposal was a replica of the amendment which has now been ratified by 28 of the 36 States necessary, except that the age limit was reduced from 18 to 14 years.

Lobby Pressure Feared.

Wheeler's bill would subject child labor products "to the laws of the State into which they are shipped," defines child labor as "employment of a minor under 16 years," and is similar to other laws, adjudged constitutional by the Supreme Court, prohibiting shipment of prison-made goods into States banning the sale of such articles.

At once Government officials downtown jumped privately on the Borah proposal as tending to nullify legislation now enacted by eight States setting the age limit at 16 years. Three other States have a 15-year age limit.

The eight are Rhode Island, New York, Utah, Montana, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Wisconsin. The three are Texas, Maine and California. Wyoming has no minimum employable age, but all other States now have 14-year-minimum laws.

Sees Court Difficulty.

The fear arose at once that lobby pressure in the 11 States would work to lower the hard-won 16-year and 15-year minimums in view of such a low age limit.

Fears also were expressed privately by members opposing the President's court program that inability of the opposition to agree specifically on a child labor amendment might be taken as an indication of future inability to agree on a Constitutional amendment either limiting the court's powers or expanding Congresisonal powers of regulation.

Borah, holding the high age limit of the present child labor amendment has been one of the chief obstacles to its adoption, said the courts soon may decide the present

C. I. O. Head Yields After Talks With Murphy, Motors Chief.

Bargaining Issue Faces Conferees

By the Associated Press.

Lansing, Mich., March 24.—Gov. Frank Murphy announced tonight that John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, had agreed to withdraw striking members of the United Automobile Workers of America from eight Chrysler Corporation plants at Detroit.

The Governor's announcement followed an all-day meeting with Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of the corporation's board, and Lewis and other representatives of each side.

Gov. Murphy said the labor leader agreed to have the strikers evacuate "probably before morning," and instructions to that effect were being sent to union officials.

Parley Resumes Today.

The agreement provided that the conference in the Governor's office would resume at 10 a. m. tomorrow if the plants have been vacated by then.

The Governor said collective bargaining will be the principal topic before the conference at their next meeting.

It was the corporation's refusal to grant the U. A. W. A. sole bargaining rights that prompted the union to call the strike March 8. Since then 6,000 sit-downers have held the Detroit plants, leaving 60,000 Chrysler employes idle.

The Governor said he had a promise the company would make no effort to resume operations during the negotiations.

Lewis said representatives of the Committee for Industrial Organization and of the affiliated U. A. W. A. would return at once to Detroit to urge the strikers to evacuate. He said he had no reason to believe they would refuse to comply.

Lewis, Chrysler to Stay.

Lewis and Chrysler will remain in Lansing overnight to participate in the resumption of negotiations.

Chrysler and Lewis, both of whom came up from the ranks of workers, one to head an automobile manufacturing concern and the other to lead a widespread industrial unionization movement, came to Lansing today at Murphy's invitation to seek a "prompt, satisfactory" solution to the strikes.

Murphy warned that failure to adjust differences quickly might bring "extreme and costly measures with possible unfortunate consequences."

Meanwhile settlement of the 19-day-old taxicab strike in Chicago was the outstanding development of the day elsewhere in the Nation-wide labor situation.

Federal Conciliator J. E. O'Connor announced tonight the strike had been settled and drivers would return to work immediately.

O'Connor said executives of both the Yellow and Checker taxicab companies agreed to recognize the strikers' new union, the Midwest Taxicab Drivers Union, and promised to consider wage and hour adjustment demands in later negotiations.

The American Textile Co., employing 350 at Pawtucket, R. I., closed because 60 girl sit-downers refused to leave the plant. More than 700 sat in the E. P. Reed Shoe Co., Rochester, N. Y. The International Ladies Garment Workers Union, conducting an organization drive in the Midwest, called a strike among the 80 women of the Solomon Dress Co., in St. Louis. Strikers fought police and 12 were arrested.

In two "down and up" demonstrations employes of the sheet metal department of the Cadillac Motor Co., and the Ferro Stamping Co., at Detroit sat down and then rose and resumed their tasks.

A band played the recessional for 147 sitters who marched out of the Butler Manufacturing Co., Kansas City, while 24 trudged from the Champion Shoe Manufacturing Co.

Mansfield May Succeed Lamb As D. C. Traffic Supervisor

By Howard F. Wentworth.

(Winner of first prize in the Nation-wide C. I. T. Safety Contest with his 1936 series appearing in The Post.)

Capt. Richard Mansfield, commander of the Ninth Police Precinct, may replace Inspector Benjamin A. Lamb as traffic supervisor, it was learned last night.

Although Inspector William E. Holmes, second district chief, is still under consideration, Maj. Ernest W. Brown, police superintendent, yesterday halted all reorganization plans pending a conference with Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

Seeking "young blood" to handle the District's tangled traffic problems, Maj. Brown yesterday approached Capt. Mansfield with a tentative offer of the job., it was learned. A one-time traffic officer—assigned to motorcycle duty—Capt. Mansfield is familiar with the local situation and well qualified to command the police traffic division, it was reported.

The police chief, it was learned, is seeking a permanent traffic supervisor. Inspector Holmes, who, under earlier plans was to "swap" places with Inspector Lamb, is past the age when he may be retired at the discretion of the Commissioners.

Rather than risk changing traffic division commanders again—possibly within a year or two—Maj. Brown, it is understood, has decided to consider a younger man before reaching a final decision.

Capt. Mansfield is 49. Should he be appointed to the position it would be with the rank of acting inspector. At present, there are no vacancies among the full inspectors.

Maj. Brown yesterday accepted Inspector Lamb's request for a transfer from the traffic division. The inspector, it is expected, will take an extended leave of absence to recover from the effects of a recent throat operation. If Capt.

Printing Bureau Explains Why General Lee Has But Two Stars on Coat in New Stamp

Washington stamp collectors are pointing fingers at the two stars on the coat lapel of Gen. R. E. Lee and the Bureau of Engraving and Printing has explained why the commander of the Army of Northern Virginia is starred like a lieutenant colonel on the recently issued Lee-Jackson 4-cent memorial stamps.

"You can't see all the stars, because you can't see around the coat lapel in the photograph," says Alvin W. Hall, director of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, officially.

"One star is hidden behind, rather around the coat lapel," says Roy M. North, deputy Third Assistant Postmaster General, officially.

To date, the United Daughters of the Confederacy of Richmond, Atlanta and other points South have said nothing, sentimentally.

But this is definitely known: The United Daughters of the Confederacy strove for years to get the United States Government to issue a stamp memorializing Lee and Jackson. They held meetings about it and they wrote letters to Washington about it. They went for a long time on hope as slim as a Confederate rifle company of April 8, 1865, and they were just all in when several months ago a Richmond stamp and Confederate enthusiast, August Dietz, announced that he had a design the Post Office Department was showing inclination to accept.

Dietz, aging but still a noted collector of Confederate memorabilia, unearthed what he described as an obscure and extraordinarily rare photo of Jackson. He dug up a rare photo of Gen. Lee. He set the pictures apart and placed between them "The Last Meeting," depicting Lee and Jackson conferring on horseback on the eve of Chancelorsville.

The United Daughters of the Confederacy liked this design better than the proposed one, which showed a lot of cannon the daughters thought were too martial-appearing.

The Postoffice Department, however, selected a picture of Stratford, Lee's birthplace, and set it off between the two photos submitted by Deitz. The Postoffice Department also made the concession of having a gray face to the stamp, rather than a brown face.

Now come the stamp collectors, saying: "You've made the general a lieutenant colonel. Full-faced and opposite Lee stands Jackson on the stamp, in impeccable regulation coat collar. He wears three stars and the stars are embraced by a wreath. Jackson, present-day Confederates will say, will be pleased at this, because the odd, lemon-sucking professor was a stickler for military exactness. They say that he deplored the way the raw militia deployed when John Brown was hanged. He deplored everything unmilitary and would be displeased, the present-day Confederates will say, at any thought of himself appearing without the regulation number of stars.

The question of how many stars Lee was entitled to, Hall declared himself incapable of answering. He said, merely, that you can't see all the way around the coat collar, and this stand was taken, likewise, by North. The argument was taken to Washington military men yesterday and some of them said it was a difficult one to settle. Lee, they said, sometimes wore two stars, according to photographs; sometimes he wore three stars, according to the photographs.

They pointed out that Gen. Grant in the field wore a private's uniform with battered stars on his shoulder straps; and then they

Eccles Urges Lower Tariffs, Anti-Trust Acts

Asks Government Action to Check 'Excessive' Price Increases.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 24.—Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, in a magazine article today suggested anti-trust legislation and tariff reduction as possible lines of government action against "excessive price rises on particular products in important fields."

Writing in the current issue of Fortune, he asserted there was danger plant and labor shortages might result in "undesirable price advances, duplication of orders and speculative inventory buying."

"It would obviously be very difficult to cope with such a situation by the use of monetary instruments," he added. "Such instruments are for the most part nonselective. The effectiveness of monetary control consists more in setting an upper limit to expansion."

He contended, however, both Federal monetary and fiscal policies, including spending and borrowing, might be operated "in the direction of restraining the general upward movement so as to give more time for shortages to be met in various fields in which they occur."

Outlining a broad program for control of the business cycle, he amplified points made in his recent statement advocating shift toward retirement of some of the national debt contracted the last few years for recovery and relief measures.

"I have advocated heavy Government expenditures during the depression and I advocate debt retirement now that recovery is definitely under way," he wrote.

Suggesting careful study of labor problems, he warned there was danger reduction in working hours "may mean sharing poverty rather than sharing wealth."

Holding "we must not permit ourselves to be tied to a rigidly automatic gold standard that makes us helpless against the impact of forces from abroad," he suggested lowering the price of gold or a relative fall in foreign currencies against the dollar "might offer a possible means of checking excessive expansion at home."

Good-Will Envoy Calls U. S., France Twin Republics

The United States and France are twin republics, creating a bulwark against invasion and dictatorship, Mme. Madeline de Charpin, goodwill ambassador to the United States, representing the French Colonial Exposition, said last night.

"We dream," she said, "of a day when there shall be no war. We dream of an era of liberalism."

With Mme. Germaine Johnson, she is in this country for a brief stay. To the people of this country she will forever represent the days of the war.

"Maj. l'Enfant laid out your beautiful city," she said.

By Franklyn Waltman

WITHIN the last week the inquiry has become widespread as to why President Roosevelt has remained silent regarding the "sit-down" strikes sweeping parts of the country and causing keen alarm among many thinking people, including some of the leaders on Capitol Hill.

WALTMAN.

There is nothing partisan about the raising of this inquiry. On the Senate floor last week Senator J. Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic whip, suggested the time had arrived and was passing when the Chief Executive of the Nation should have expressed some disapproval of these manifestations of lawlessless. Earlier this week Representative Dies, a Democrat of Texas, declared in the House that "to remain discreetly silent in the presence of this menace or to condone by inaction this lawlessness is to convict one's self of cowardice."

So disturbed has Capitol Hill become over the situation that Congressional leaders have prevailed on President Roosevelt to meet with them on his return to Washington Saturday to discuss the "sit-down" strikes and perhaps take a stand against them. Surely, President Roosevelt does not approve such undertakings, even though he has encouraged the movement by indirection, both actively and passively. Why has he not spoken out in firm tones against the sit-down strike, then?

* * * *

Perhaps the answer may be found on pages 127 and 128 of the report recently made to the Senate by the Special Committee to Investigate Campaign Expenditures in last year's campaign. On those pages it is reported labor organizations contributed the huge sum of $770,324.35 to the campaign for the re-election of President Roosevelt.

It is an amazing sum of money to be contributed by the labor organizations of the United States to a political party, amounting to slightly more than 8 per cent of the entire sum collected by the Democrats from all sources throughout the country, including fancy dinners and convention book advertising.

But this sum was not contributed by all labor organizations, nor were the contributions of the organizations which did contribute—with few minor exceptions—in proportion to their membership and wealth. The startling fact is that the bulk of this money came from one organization—the United Mine Workers of America, dominated by John L. Lewis. The United Mine Workers Union was the most blessed financial angel any political party ever had. Mr. Lewis dropped $470,000 into the Democratic war chests, making his contributions in denominations of $40,000 and $50,000 at a crack.

If contributions from other labor unions affiliated with Mr. Lewis' Committee for Industrial Organization are added to the Mine Worker payments, the total would be close to $600,000. Why did Mr. Lewis persuade those organizations to drop close to $600,000 into the Roosevelt campaign?

Well, Andrew Mellon once told a Senate committee that giving to a political party was like making a contribution to a church—and the country thought it was the best jest of the year. Big contributors give to political parties to get what they want—and the more they give the more they expect. And successful candidates usually deliver what their financial supporters want. Wittingly or unwittingly Mr. Roosevelt believes that John Lewis is a great fellow and it is difficult for him to see anything wrong in what he wants to do.

And let it be remembered that Mr. Lewis had no hesitation during the General Motors strike in publicly reminding Mr. Roosevelt of the obligations which he owed to organized labor and particularly to that wing of labor led by Mr. Lewis on account of services rendered during the campaign. Did the Republicans lower tariff rates on the industrialists who had filled their campaign chests with gold?

In this connection it is proper to point out that the Du Pont family contributed approximately $510,000 to the campaign last year to elect Alf M. Landon to the Presidency. That is a shocking sum of money for one family to contribute in an effort to bring about the election of a man favored by them.

It is only less subject to criticism than the contributions of John Lewis' labor organizations because Mr. Landon was not elected and therefore the Du Ponts spent their money without avail. But had Mr. Landon been elected there is no doubt that he would have been embarrassed if called on to do anything adverse to the interests or desires of this family and their far-flung business enterprises.

The fact that the Du Ponts attempted to buy a toe hold on the Presidency is neither an answer nor justification for John Lewis buying a toe hold on the Presidency. Indeed, in a close election the revelation that the Du Ponts had contributed over $500,000 to the Republican war chest might have meant the factor of defeat for that party. Joe Grundy's Republican campaign collections from manufacturers in return for tariff favors became a national scandal and without doubt contributed to the crushing defeat of the Republican Party in 1932.

It takes a dialectician of great prowess to distinguish between President Roosevelt, after being the beneficiary of the financial support given him by John Lewis last year, failing to utter a word of disapproval regarding sit-down strikes, and Herbert Hoover, after being the beneficiary of Joe Grundy's collections, reluctantly signing the Hawley-Smoot tariff act.

As Justice Louis D. Brandeis on occasion said: "We gain nothing by exchanging the tyranny of capital for the tyranny of labor."

Bone's Attack 'Boner,' Charge By McReynolds

An attack by Senator Homer T. Bone (Democrat), Washington, in the Senate yesterday on a "joker" in the McReynolds neutrality bill brought from Representative Sam D. McReynolds (Democrat), Tennessee, the remarks:

"I'm afraid Senator Bone has pulled a boner. The end he desires could easily have been effected in conference and without this publicity."

Bone held that a phrase "other than personal goods and effects," undefined in the McReynolds bill, "bound the President hand and foot," and would be construed by the courts to allow any amount of wartime shipments of such commodities as wheat, cotton, oil and steel.

Attempt to Nullify Bill.

He pointed out that accepted court definitions of "personal property" generally hold it to be any movable property. The McReynolds bill, without defining personal property, would allow the President to embargo shipments of any materials "other than personal property," and Bone contended this provision was inserted deliberately in the bill to nullify it as a neutrality measure.

McReynolds, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, pointed out that the provision had been inserted specifically to protect Americans living in the Great Lakes area who otherwise would be prevented from crossing into Canada of Great Britain went to war. He sat in the rear of the Senate to hear Bone's speech, and fidgeted obviously for a chance to answer Bone's arguments.

McReynolds told reporters Bone's assault was "merely to get his name in headlines to let people know who one of the Senators from the State of Washington is. This is a teapot tempest that can be fixed in 30 seconds in House-Senate conference."

Easy Adjustment Seen.

Indications yesterday were brighter for conference agreement over differences in the Pittman bill, which passed the Senate, and the McReynolds bill, which passed the House.

Senator Key Pittman (Democrat), Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and author of the Senate measure, is believed to be at heart an advocate of discretionary neutrality, at least to a certain extent, and acceded to the demands of the mandatory-neutrality bloc (Senators Arthur H. Vandenberg, Michigan, and Gerald P. Nye, North Dakota, Republicans, and Homer Bone, Washington; Bennett Clark, Missouri, and Hiram Pope, Idaho, only when a long floor fight was threatened, it was understood.

The McReynolds bill allows the President considerably more discretion than the Pittman measure, particularly in the cash-and-carry provisions, and is thus more palatable to the Administration, observers point out. Whether Pittman can get the mandatory bloc to refrain from objecting to Senate concurrence in certain of the House amendments remained doubtful, however.

Rail-Treasury Retirement Tax Parley Halted

Harrison Tells of 'Frank' Discussion, Envisions Speedy Accord.

With some $40,000,000 a year involved, efforts to reach an agreement on a pay roll tax rate in proposed substitute railroad retirement legislation were halted yesterday, pending receipt of additional data, at a conference in the offices of Senator Pat Harrison, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee.

An agreement was necessitated by Treasury Department objections to the tax rate agreed to by representatives of the railroads and their employes in recent protracted negotiations. The negotiators agreed to a 5 per cent pay roll tax to finance the annuity system, as compared with the 7 per cent rate in the present act, enforcement of which has been held up by litigation brought on by the carriers. The railroads and the employes each would pay half of the tax.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Roswell Magill promptly objected that the proposed tax rate would not provide enough money for the pension system. The negotiators replied that figures of their actuaries, as well as those of the Railroad Retirement Board, indicated the proposed tax would "carry the load."

Yesterday's conference was arranged to thrash out the question before introduction of legislation to replace that now under attack in the courts. Following the meeting, Senator Harrison issued a statement saying there had been a "free and frank" discussion of the plan proposed by the roads and their employes, that all those present had been sympathetic toward the plan, and that, when the additional information was obtained, the nature of which he would not reveal, a "satisfactory agreement will be quickly reached."

In the negotiations that led to adoption of the proposed substitute plan, the annual railroad pay roll subject to the tax for pension purposes was placed at $2,000,000,000. The present rate of taxation would produce $140,000,000 for the annuity funds—the proposed rate some $40,000,000 less.

Another important change proposed by the negotiators would bring into the Federal retirement system the present private pension setups maintained by about 75 per cent of the roads. The roads are paying out $38,000,000 a year on these private systems now, to which the employes contribute nothing.

Meanwhile, despite the court-entangling of the present legislation, the retirement board is paying pensions to those whose applications have been approved, using funds from a Congressional appropriation. At present about 4,500 retired employes are obtaining the annuities, limited to a maximum of $120 a month.

In addition, the board has applications from 41,000 or 42,000 other employes, only about half of whom have actually retired from service. Board estimates are that at the present time about 45,000 aged rail workers or former workers are eligible to qualify for the annuities.

Those attending yesterday's conference, in addition to Sentaor Harrison, were:

Chairman Robert L. Doughton and Representative Fred Vinson, of the House Ways and Means Committee; Representative Robert Crosser, author of the present laws; George M. Harrison, chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Association; Charles M. Hay, attorney for the association; J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads; Judge R. V. Fletcher, counsel for the roads association; Murray W. Latimer, chairman of the Railroad Retirement Board; Assistant Secrtary of the Treasury Magill, and Arthur J. Altmeyer, chairman of the Social Security Board.

Five Held in Theft Of Gold From Mine

Denver, March 24 (AP).—Rowland Goddard, chief of the Federal Secret Service Bureau here, announced today five men are being held in connection with the theft of gold amalgam from the famous Homestake Mine near Lead, S. Dak.

Goddard said the arrests were the result of the sale to the United States mint here of approximately $6,500 in allegedly stolen gold. The total amount stolen was not disclosed. The Denver Post said the underworld placed the total at $1,000,000, but mine officials said it was not that high.

Textile Output of Reich Fills One-Third of Needs

Berlin, March 24 (AP).—Col. Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, Germany's economic dictator, declared today the Reich now could fill one-third of her textile needs with home-grown materials.

Addressing the opening of a textile and clothing exposition, he asserted Germany would continue her efforts for economic self-sufficiency.

U. S. Printing Bureau Explains Why Lee Stamp Has Two Stars

pointed out that the South didn't have any first-rate photographers in the field such as Brady, who followed the Northern troops.

The argument about Confederate generals' stars crackled for a while like Confederate rifle fire on the Chicahominy, finally to be settled, on request of The Post, by Gen. William McK. Evans, of Richmond, who actually has seen the stars on Lee's coat.

"All general officers wore three stars on each side of coat collar surrounded by wreath," Evans wired. "The difference between brigadier generals and others is that the brigadier generals wore three small stars; major generals and others wore large star in center with small star on each side. Gen. Lee wore three large stars without wreath; Gen. Jackson wore three stars with wreath, large star in center with small star on each side."

So, on that authority, Gen. Lee should have three stars on his coat lapel on the stamp. But, as the bureau points out, it doesn't mean that three stars aren't there; it's simply a matter of one's not being able to see around a curve.

At any rate, the Government sold 1,554,714 of the Army memorial stamps in one day to gain $62,188.56.

Burke Assails, 3 Defend, Court Plan in Forums

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 24.—In two public forums here tonight the President's proposals to alter the personnel of the United States Supreme Court were alternately attacked and defended.

The Economic Club of New York celebrated its thirtieth anniversary listening to Senator Edward R. Burke (Democrat), of Nebraska and Robert R. Jackson, Assistant U. S. Attorney General, debate the issue.

At Carnegie Hall the American Labor Party mustered its trade-union followers to a meeting addressed by Jackson and two Senators, Robert LaFollette, of Wisconsin and Hugo L. Black, of Alabama—all favorable to the changes.

These followers heard La Follette assert that industry is carrying on a "huge sit-down strike against American labor and the rights guaranteed to workers by the Federal Government."

Burke Assails Plan.

Burke assailed the court proposal as "the most flagrant example in American history of an attempt to strip the people of the right to say what powers they want to vest in their Congress and in their President."

Burke proposed the people be given a chance to pass on the question of whether "there is to be a new and undreamed-of concentration of authority at Washington, so that Congress and the President may be free to direct the lives of 130,000,000 people without check or restraint of any kind."

He argued that Congress has "almost unlimited power" to approach a solution of the Nation's problems "in a national way" and urged:

"If there be such matters as regulation of minimum wages, hours of labor and similar subjects, which the framers of the Constitution clearly did not intend to vest in the Federal Government, and if the people now desire to place that power in Congress, then let the people speak. Let us not attempt to amend the Constitution without action by the people."

Jackson, defending the proposals, said:

"The courts have lately been closing the ways to political compromise of basic problems arising out of the depression and out of troubled relations. The President is seeking, in his policy and in his court proposal, to open the highway to economic and social peace. The closed road may mean a rough detour."

He did not refer by name to current sit-down strikes, but declared:

"As the problems created by industrialization first began to appear * * * employers rushed to the hospitable courts and stopped one after another of the local efforts to solve problems then of local dimensions. As a direct result we tonighgt face large-scale problems in labor relations and we have created no peaceful technique for dealing with them."

Employers, La Follette said, were refusing to bargain collectively with their employes on the theory that the Supreme Court will invalidate the Wagner labor relations act.

In the labor strife "sweeping across the country," he declared "we are reaping the whirlwind of violence and resentment against the lawlessness of emlpoyers who look to the Supreme Court to override the law enacted by Congress."

He added: "It is clear * * * that the sit-down strike which industry has waged against the Wagner act has not, for industry, been a period of inactivity. Rather it has been a period of preparation—of arming for open warfare."

In an interview prior to the mass meeting he said Chief Justice Charles E. Hughes, in his letter to the Senate Judiciary Committee Monday, "did not answer any questions I regard as important."

Senator Black said at the interview, in response to a reporter's question, that "the sit-down strike is a matter of local law; there is no Federal statute on it.

"The way to allay present industrial unrest," he continued, "is to observe the Wagner labor relations act. Nonobservance leads only to lawlessness."

Consent Divorce Bill Offered in Wisconsin

Madison, Wis., March 24 (AP).—Assemblyman Charles A. Beggs, 78-year-old recent bridegroom intent on eliminating false testimony and cutting costs of divorces, proffered today a bill to permit severance of martial ties by mutual consent.

Beggs, a Progressive serving his sixth term in the Wisconsin Legislature, said the bill would permit divorce without proof of grounds ordinarily required by law.

Three Trotzkyists Die For Burning of School

Moscow, March 24 (AP).—Three alleged "Trotzkyist counter-revolutionaires" were shot to death today for the deliberate burning of a school at Novosobirsk, Siberia, in which many children perished.

A watchman and a nurse at the school were sentenced to eight years in prison, while two passersby were freed of charges they failed to give an alarm when they discovered the fire.

Notes Threaten Film Actress, David Selznick

By the Associated Press.

Hollywood, Calif., March 24.—Weird, confused messages, threatening death and mutilation, brought police guards today to the homes of Anna May Wong, willowy Chinese screen star, and David O. Selznick, film producer, and set Federal agents to work.

The writer is a "movie maniac," said Capt. Clyde Plummer, chief county investigator.

The letters showed a distorted mind, wildly fascinated by the motion picture industry. They told of a scenario, asked large sums of money, described a proposed cast, and confidently announced that Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, largest film studio, would produce it.

They were bristling with reference to biblical characters. They contradicted themselves. They mentioned Evangelist Aimee Semple McPherson, who has been under guard since she received a threatening note last Sunday.

And the writer boasted it was he who ambushed District Attorney Buron Fitts two weeks ago, wounding him in the arm.

The shooting of Fitts, one letter said, was only a sample of the writer's self-esteemed capacities, which could, if necessary, "cause me to excell all human fiendishness in plans much beyond what I have hinted."

The writer added that "no police are a match for me, physically or mentally."

Neither Selznick nor Miss Wong was available for comment. They were believed to be under police protection at unannounced places.

Doctor Receives Letter.

A curious factor in the case was that the letters to the actress and the producer were signed by a Dr. A. M. Foote, and directed the recipients to send the money demanded—$20,000 from each—to his office.

At the same time a Los Angeles chiropractor, Dr. E. J. Foote, also received a letter, written, police experts said, by the same person, on the same type of paper. The message to Dr. Foote told him he was to take the money from Miss Wong and Selznick, that he had been chosen to play the role of Jesus Christ in the movie, and that harm would come to him if he did not comply.

Capt. Plummer said he was convinced Dr. Foote had not written any of the letters, but was a third victim in the case. The police officer said he also believed the note sent last Sunday to Aimee Semple McPherson may have been written by the same man.

Injury Threatened.

To Anna May Wong, the would-be extortioner wrote:

"Unless you come down to my room immediately with $20,000, you will be disfigured and your father crippled and others close to you will be injured. First call my number and ask for me, Dr. Foote.

"You may think a doctor writing such a letter is crazy or under the influence of narcotics, but I have narcotics under full control and I have the courage to sign my name.

"You do not need to lose the $20,000. It is a mere guarantee of co-operation to the fullest extent on your part.

"I am going to induce Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer to have us in the same pictures. When this carried out the money will be returned. Aimee Semple McPherson and Dr. McCoy will be in the picture."

Armed Band Locks Officer in Vault, Robs Texas Town

Farmersville, Tex., March 24 (AP). A band of robbers with a sub-machine gun forced the night watchman into a vault early today and then ransacked the town. The population is about 2,500.

Miss Willie Cook and Mrs. Lewis Miller, sleeping on the second floor of a building on the public square, were awakened when a safe was blown in a pharmacy across the street. Downstairs they were met by a man with a sub-machine gun, who forced them into the vault with the night watchman.

Simpson Case Set Down.

London, March 24 (AP).—The slander action of Ernest Aldrich Simpson, divorced husband of Wallis Simpson, against Mrs. Joan Sutherland, wife of Lieut.-Col. A. H. C. Sutherland, was set down today for hearing in King's Bench division, probably late in April or early in May.

Hunger Crazed Chinese Mobs Shot by Troops

By the Associated Press.

Hankow, China, March 24.—The story of soldiers firing upon 800 hunger-crazed farmers attacking rice junks at Yungchwan, southwest of Chungking in Szechwan Province, reached here tonight from agents of the Bank of China.

A large number of the farmers were killed.

In nearly every section of the province there have been riots, the agents reported.

Starving men and women, their farmlands burned up by seven months of drought, have raided rice shops, kidnaped children to sell them for food and eaten the leaves of trees.

The Yungchwan mob, after being turned back by the deadly fire of the soldiers, later attacked and demolished a magistrate's office.

Another multitude surrounded the magistrate's office at Paisha, also southwest of Chungking, and shouted demands for rice.

Officials lured the mob outside the city walls with promises of relief and then barred the gates.

Elsewhere in the drought area, hungry throngs looted rice shops, driving police from one town when they attempted to make arrests. In another town, peasants invaded the place and chopped down all the trees, ate the leaves and sold the firewood.

The bank's agents estimated refugees reaching Chungking numbered 30,000, with foodstuffs woefully inadequate.

Foreign missionaries and native relief agencies in eastern Honan Province—a once rich wheatland—sent calls to Shanghai for money and rice, reporting 2,000 farmers already dead of hunger and exposure.

Boy Who Slew Father Sentenced to School

Anderson, Ind., March 24 (AP).—Judge Charles E. Smith today committed 11-year-old Claude Allen Small, who fatally shot his father, Ray Small, to the Indiana Boys' School until he reaches the age of 21. Small was shot and killed February 21 at his home in Elwood. Claude told officers he was angry because he and his brother had been switched for getting their shoes muddy while playing football. He said he meant only to wound his father.

Other passengers included Mullins, an announcer, and Frank Vining and J. Britton, both of St. Louis, operators of concessions.

The list contained 21 names, but Seltzer said several "candy butchers" may have been aboard the bus to bring its total passengers to 23, as indicated by the dead and injured.

Members of the troupe were said to have taken part recently in derbys at Miami, Fla., and Chicago. Gesser and Marzano were participants in an event still under way in St. Louis.

The roller-skating derby, a new sporting event, combines the features of the six-day bicycle race and the marathon dance contest. Each team consists of two skaters, a boy and a girl, who relieve each other as do six-day bike racers.

The event is run over a period of three weeks, with skating only between 7:30 and midnight. During their dizzy grind the skaters cover a distance of approximately 2,000 miles.

College Bus Overturns.

The 90,000 youngsters in public schools will be dismissed after tomorrow's classes for a recess that will not be over until a week from Monday. Numerous private and parochial schools will be closed for the same period.

Many of the college and university students got the jump on the younger part of the school population. To permit the campus men and women to reach their homes out of the city by Easter, most college classes were adjourned Wednesday and Thursday. Some will reconvene next Wednesday or Thursday, others will continue the vacation through the week-end.

Five Public Enemies Must Read Bible Daily

Paterson, N. J., March 24 (AP).—Five men sentenced to three months in jail each for alleged violations of the State "public enemy" law must read a chapter of the Bible each day they are behind bars.

Police Recorder Vincent C. Duffy added this provision to their sentences today. "What this world needs today," he said, "is a little more faith of our fathers." The men were sentenced under the law making it a crime for men with criminal records to consort.

Belgian King Lunches With British Monarch

2 Men Charged With Slaying James Najjum

Charged with the slaying of James Najjum, 54-year-old insurance solicitor, Lawrence Narden Ricker, 24, and Robert William Meinzer, 23, were indicted on first degree murder presentments by the District grand jury yesterday. The jury failed to take any action in the case of Eunice Constance Gerardi, pretty 19-year-old waitress, who allegedly admitted being in the car while Najjum was being attacked.

Ricker, who lives on Rhode Island avenue northeast, and Meinzer, who lives on Seventeenth street northeast, are alleged to have beaten Najjum fatally the night of January 20. His body was found January 21 by a passing motorist, who reported the discovery. Taken to his home at 1809 North Capitol street, Najjum took a turn for the worse and was rushed to Sibley Hospital, where he died.

Robbery Charged.

The police theory of the attack is that Najjum was picked up by the two young men at North Capitol and N streets about 10 p. m. He is said to have been drinking. The car was driven toward Maryland after some liquor had been purchased, and someone struck Najjum several times and $2 was taken from his pockets. Najjum was put out of the car at Central avenue and Chapel road, and the party returned to Washington without him.

In another indictment, the jury charged John P. D. Henkel, 23, with the slaying of Clarence Hill, 24, who was fatally shot January 17, and accused Mrs. Mattie C. Bray, 43, with manslaughter, because of the death of her 20-year-old daughter, Dorothy E. Fenwick, who died from burns caused when her mother threw a jar of gasoline at her stepfather and accidentally struck a lighted stove.

Indictments Listed.

Those indicted were: Garfield Mitchell, Willie Thomas, Chester J. Johnson, Irving Parker, Raymond C. Myers, George Price, Jack Runyon, Frank J. Mattia and Ray K. Barkley, housebreaking; Charles F. Alexander, Frank J. Mattie, Anthony G. Aravanis, Walter P. Mosby and Maurice J. Irving, joy-riding; Charles C. Williamson, Edward Grinder, Raymond C. Abbott, Benjamin Jordan, Corine Hickman and James Curtis, robbery.

Jesse Turner, larceny from the United States; James Jumper, William J. Murray, George Bruce and Henry Bailey, assault with dangerous weapon; Alice Doomes, violation section 73, title 18, U. S. Code; Babe Barnett and Marvelous Barnett, violation of section 285, title 18, U. S. Code; Bert J. Watson, Myrtle Gray, Josephine Gray, Earl Jones, William Riley and Brutus Layne, violation of the liquor-taxing act of 1934; John P. D. Henkel, Lawrence Narden Ricker and Robert William Meinzer, first-degree murder, and Mattie C. Bray, manslaughter.

Scotch Miners Vote Strike.

Glasgow, Scotland, March 24 (AP). Union delegates representing 95,000 coal miners decided today to call a strike April 9, if the mine owners refuse to recognize their demand for a standardized wage scale.

Hit-Run Autos Injure Cyclist And Pedestrian

3 Other Persons Hurt in Traffic Mishaps, One by Street Car.

Traffic accidents yesterday sent five persons to hospitals and started police on a city-wide search for two hit-and-run motorists responsible for injuries suffered by two men.

Lorenzo Jackson, colored, 36, handy man at 716 Rock Creek Church road northwest, was the first victim of a hit-and-run driver. He was struck at Georgia avenue and Barry place northwest while crossing the street. The impact threw him into the path of another machine operated by Irvin M. Hayman, 19, 1614 Montague street northwest. Police said the first car failed to stop.

Taken to Freedmen's Hospital, Jackson was not expected to live last night. Physicians said he suffered a fractured skull, fractured right leg and severe cuts.

Jack Berger, 21, 1315 Park road northwest, was arrested by Motorcycle Policeman R. T. Conklin, in connection with the accident and held at the Twelfth Precinct for investigation.

Cyclist Struck.

The second hit-skip victim was George Ward Skinner, 19, of Edmonston, Md., who was knocked off a bicycle at Bladensburg and Queens Chapel roads northeast. Skinner was taken to Casualty Hospital and treated for cuts on his head and face and shock. His condition was not serious. A lookout was sent for the car.

Mrs. Mary Quigley, colored, 70, of the 3100 block of Stanton road southeast, was in critical condition in Emergency Hospital last night after having been struck by an automobile in front of her home.

Robert V. Wilkerson, driver of the automobile, was not held.

Joseph F. Dredge, 13, 1131 D street northeast, received a fractured finger when knocked down by a bicycle at Ninth and F streets northwest. He was treated at Emergency Hospital.

Struck by a street car on Pennsylvania avenue northwest near Madison place, Etta Greathouse, colored, 58, 1208 Fifth street northwest, escaped with minor cuts and bruises. Police said the street car was operated by Henry C. Brooks, 37, 1326 Thirty-fifth street northwest.

Five Permits Revoked.

Five driving permits were revoked and 15 others suspended for temporary periods yesterday when the Revocations Board acted on the cases of 20 motorists convicted of speeding.

Revoked—Ben Craig, 1909 H street northwest, 50 miles; Lawrence DiGuillan, 1300 Newton street northeast, 60 miles; Paul Kisner, 1324 L street northwest, 50 miles; John A. Stewart, 1226 Seventeenth street northwest, 50 miles; Paul E. Washington, 1329 Sixth street northwest, 55 miles.

Thirty-day suspensions — Nicholas J. Chiascione, 1339 Quincy street northwest, 42 miles; Newton Dennis, 1930 North Capitol street, 40 miles; Howard C. Kindle, 2916 Pennsylvania avenue southeast, 40 miles; Wesley E. Kocker, 2032 I street northwest, 42 miles; Henry F. Larmon, 412 Orleans place northeast, 40 miles; Charles L. McCreery, 1241 Potomac street northwest, 45 miles; Paul F. Mockabee, 305 Tenth street southeast, 40 miles; Arthur E. Morgan, 930 Randolph street northwest, 45 miles; Vincent E. Richards, 1501 Vermont avenue northwest, 40 miles; William M. Sinnell, 2510 Q street northwest, 45 miles; Rufus Strother, 2269 Eighth street northwest, 48 miles.

Auto Inspection Backed By Rock Creek Group

Approval was given by the Rock Creek Citizens Association last night to the Reynolds bill favoring semi-annual inspection of automobiles in the District of Columbia. The association also indorsed a mass meeting to be held April 9 in the auditorium of Garnet-Patterson School, under auspices of the Medico-Chirurgical Society, as a campaign for eradication of venereal diseases.

Other measures given approval were the Norton bill for creation of a small claims court, and the Randolph bill for election of District delegates to national political conventions. The Dirksen measure for lowering of age of consent to marriage to 16 for women and 18 for men failed of approval.

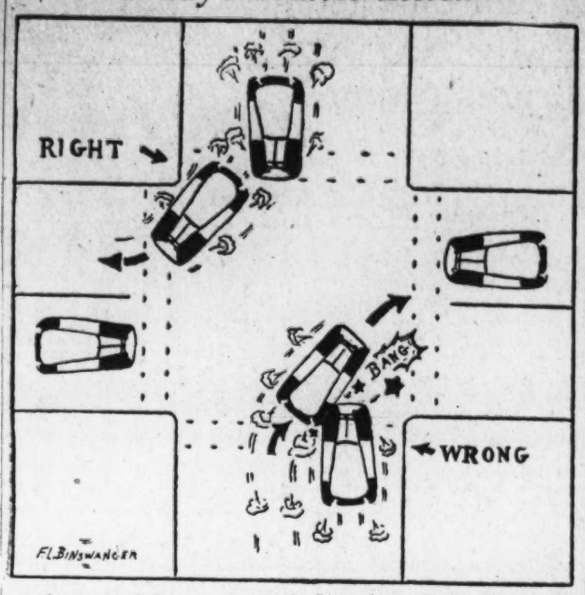
Today's Traffic Lesson



(Drawn by Policeman Forrest L. Binswanger, Traffic Division.)

Diagram illustrates right turn being made from the wrong lane of traffic. The following is quoted from Traffic Regulations:

"Approach for a right turn shall be made in the lane for traffic nearest to the right-hand side of the highway, and the right turn shall be made as closely as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the highway.

"Pedestrians crossing the intersection on proper signal have the right of way over turns."

Have consideration for other motorists and pedestrians, give signal of your intent to change your course.

Mansfield May Succeed Lamb As D. C. Traffic Supervisor

Mansfield is chosen for the job, Inspector Lamb will probably be given a "roving" assignment upon his return, The Post learned.

It was further learned that three other captains—Arthur Miller, Lloyd Kelly and Harvey Callahan—have been definitely eliminated as prospects due to their knowledge of problems in their respective precincts.

Maj. Brown, himself a former traffic commander, has been faced during recent months with a perplexing situation. The District's traffic toll continued to grow and administration efficiency dropped. All duties of traffic control fell on the Superintendent's shoulders. Inspector Lamb has been handicapped by ill-health and the problem has gradually increased.

Maj. Brown's decision to make a change was not sudden, it was learned. The matter had been under consideration for several weeks. But it was not until Inspector Lamb requested a transfer to easier duties that the plans were announced.

Inspector Lamb Handicapped.

The duties of traffic supervisor require his presence at meetings to talk on traffic problems in addition to a constant contact with the motoring public. Recently Inspector Lamb has been unable to do this.

Capt. Mansfield was apopinted to the police department in 1911. He rode both a bicycle and motorcycle on traffic patrol. He served several years in the detective bureau and was attached to headquarters with an opportunity to observe operations of the traffic division.

Meanwhile, Senator Reynolds (Democrat), North Carolina, yesterday assailed the Bureau of the Budget for its slowness in acting on a bill to require semi-annual inspection of motor vehicles in the District.

Citing the American Automobile Association's recent charges against local used-car dealers, Senator Reynolds, in a letter to Daniel W. Bell, acting Budget Bureau director, requested "full information" on the measure.

The semi-annual inspection bill, drafted by city and traffic authorities, is designed to rid the streets of mechanically defective autos—major problems in highway safety.

"I don't feel it is the intention of the President to have the bureau sound the death-knell to legislation," Senator Reynolds wrote, "particularly that which pertains to the preservation of life and property, and thereby circumvent Congressional action."

Up to Budget Bureau.

All legislation proposed by the Commissioners, as well as requested expenditures, must be presented to the Budget Bureau before reaching Capitol Hill. The inspection measure was submitted to the bureau several weeks ago.

When a similar bill was submitted last year the bureau contended the money could be used in other ways. As a consequence the measure was defeated in the Senate after passing the House.

The entire matter, Senator Reynolds said, will be taken up with the Senate District Committee, of which he is a member.

Also taking a hand in the local traffic problem yesterday was Fire Chief Charles E. Schrom. He warned members of his command to comply with regulations controlling the speed of fire engines answering alarms.

Engines, under the rules, are limited to 35 miles an hour, trucks to 25 miles an hour, and all apparatus to 20 miles an hour while crossing intersections.

Ex-Army Tailor Dies of Poisoning

Abraham Mollinoff, 51-year-old tailor, died in Gallinger Hospital yesterday from what physicians said was a dose of poison.

Investigation disclosed that the elderly Russian went into Fort Myer and said he had taken rat poison. He was taken to Emergency Hospital and later transferred to Gallinger.

Police said they interviewed Mollinoff's wife, who lives in Hatfield, W. Va. She stated she was estranged from her husband "and did not want to be bothered about him."

Navy Contracts For $629,956 In Steel Signed

Delay in Obtaining Total of 12,568,000 Pounds Costs $75,000.

The Navy's four-month efforts to obtain steel for Naval construction were again partially successful yesterday when contracts were signed for 12,568,00 pounds of steel at a cost of $629,956.05. Delay in getting the metal however, has cost the Department more than $75,000.

Yesterday's eight contracts, four of them with the Carnegie-Illinois Steel Corporation, of Washington, meant that all but 5,500,000 pounds out of 25,000,000 needed, have now been contracted for. Contracts for 7,000,000 pounds were signed Monday, and deliveries of the remainder probably will be made today or tomorrow.

Bids were first asked on December 4 and 18, but manufacturers refused to comply with wage and hour conditions for employes, as prescribed by the Walsh-Healey act. Yesterday's prices, it was learned, are approximately $75,000 higher than those offered in December, the increase being attributed to the cost of complying with the terms of the Walsh-Healey act. All but one type of steel showed decided increases in price; the rise varied from $1.38 to $18 per ton.

Based on yesterday's higher prices, Navy officials estimated steel for the 1938 construction program will be about $175,000 higher than estimated a few months ago. About 15,000 tons will be used in one of the new battleships, while four destroyers and three submarines will each need 1,000 tons of steel. Based on yesterday's contracts, an $8 per ton increase was forecast.

A.F.G.E. Is Silent On Lovell Action

The District Department, American Federation of Government Employes, last night declined to give to the State Department lodge the report of the District Department's credentials committee on the application of Leander B. Lovell for a seat in the District body.

Lovell was denied a seat at the District Department's last meeting and subsequently the State Department lodge, which had proposed him as a delegate, requested a report on the department's action.

A resolution requesting the department to press for extension of the retirement benefits to legislative employes was received and approved. The department also was asked to investigate the working conditions of employes at the National Training School. The sponsors mentioned overtime hours and other conditions which they said were "unfavorable" at the school.

Davison's Wife Collapses on Witness Stand

Becomes Hysterical at Bankruptcy Trial in Alexandria.

Mrs. Emmett C. Davison, wife of the Mayor of Alexandria, a motherly appearing woman past middle age, suffering still the after effects of a major operation, collapsed on the witness stand yesterday afternoon while defending her husband on charges of concealing bankrupt assets on which he is being tried in Federal court at Alexandria.

She was assisted from the courtroom by Dr. O. A. Snyder, the Davison family physician, and a nurse and revived in the witness room. There she wept hysterically. Later, her composure recovered, she was taken home.

Mrs. Davison's testimony came in the closing hours of yesterday's session and provided the trial of the Alexandria official, who also is secretary-treasurer of the International Association of Machinists, with its only touch of drama.

Both defensee and prosecution rested as Judge Luther Way recessed court last night. The case is expected to be given to the jury at noon today.

Mrs. Davison entered the courtroom supported by Dr. Snyder and the nurse. Frequently she sobbed and on one occasion had to be given a drink of water before continuing a recitation of the Davison domestic financial arrangement.

Davison, who spent three and a half hours on the stand before her, had testified that during the 39 years of their married life, Mrs. Davison had handled the family funds, save that which she gave him for "spending money."

Mrs. Davison said this was right, and that all she was able to save after payment of household expenses belonged to her, by agreement. Her savings went into a bank account held jointly by husband and wife.

Mrs. Davison said she knew nothing of her husband's financial condition and of his filing in bankruptcy until after the joint account was transferred to one held by her and a daughter, Mrs. Laura A. Heflin.

Davison had told the jury the transfer in accounts, made about a month before the bankruptcy petition was filed on November 18, 1935, was made without his knowledge.

His telephone wires were tapped and he received letters advising suicide while the charges on which he is being tried were under investigation, Davison declared.

"I know my telephone wires were tapped plenty," he said.

On several occasions his telephone conversations would be interrupted and sometimes voices would repeat the counsel of the letters, he testified.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation took part in the case, and Sterling Hutcheson, District attorney, asked:

"Do you insinuate that F. B. I. agents did the tapping?"

"I don't insinuate anything. I am merely stating the facts," Davison retorted.

Clarence M. Davison, the mayor's brother and another defense witness, told how the defendant loaned him $150 shortly before he filed in bankruptcy. The mayor said nothing about his finances, the brother said, when he asked for the money. The brother, a resident of Baltimore, said he was unemployed at the time, had a large family and needed money to repair his furnace.

William E. Leahy, chief defense counsel, brought to the stand ten character witnesses for the mayor. They were James H. Price, lieutenant-governor of Virginia; Allen G. Jones, special assistant to the United States Attorney General; Robert G. Highfield, executive secretary of the Mount Vernon Liquidating Trust of Washington; Owen W. Lynch, Alexandria postmaster; Clyde W. Saunders, Richmond postmaster; Frank M. Lee, vice president of the City Bank of Washington; Fred Hewitt, editor of the Machinists' Monthly Journal; Clyde D. Stovall, of Arlington; Charles H. Callahan, Alexandria city tax collector, and Frank M. Pratt.

Rebel Trenches On Guadalajara Front Smashed

Loyal Infantry Continues Advance; Planes Demolish Troop Train.

By the Associated Press.

Madrid, March 24.—Government militiamen reported today they had smashed through a trench system near Cogollor, on the Guadalajara front in which insurgents were attempting to stand and halt the tide of government advance, which reached points nearly 60 miles northeast of Madrid.

The government infantry, dispatches said, charged after a three-hour artillery preparation and cleared the way for new gains east of the Aragon highway. The scene of this success was less than 5 miles south of Almadrones, from which the insurgents launched their recent drive against Guadalajara.

Government air scouts brought in reports of heavy damage to Almadrones and Jadraque by bombing raids yesterday, and government gains in Avila Province, west of the capital, were described in war dispatches.

A troop train, preparing to transport insurgents to the front, was demolished when government planes rained bombs in the Montoro railway station, in the southern sector.

Madrid newspapers and officials, with the capital's immediate battle fronts quiet, launched bitter attacks against Premier Mussolini of Italy, aroused by Ambassador Grandi's London statement that Italy would not withdraw volunteers from Spain.

Glaring headlines told Madrilenos the Fascists had defied the world and made a laughing stock of the nonintervention committee's labors.

All newspapers took the view that Il Duce had been driven to fury by what they called the shameful defeat of his forces in the Guadalajara drive and predicted he would soon "take revenge" to save his prestige.

Gen. Jose Miaja, commander of the government's central forces, who has repeatedly asserted the army defeated in the Guadalajara sector was Italian, announced government operations are continuing successfully against increasing insurgent opposition on the northeast front.

Man Shoots Wife, Ends His Own Life

New Orleans, March 24 (U.P.).—Adolph Steinhardt, 58-year-old importer, shot his estranged wife four times late today as she was consulting a physician in a downtown office building, then turned the gun on himself and committed suicide.

The physician's office on the ninth floor was thrown into an uproar when Steinhardt began firing wildly with a .38-caliber revolver. Four shots struck Mrs. Steinhardt as she crumpled to the floor.

Steinhardt fired a fifth bullet into his own body, ran down a fire escape, and died a few moments after reaching his office a block away.

Dust Storms Close Oklahoma Schools

Boise City, Okla., March 24 (AP).—Schools were closed in at least two Oklahoma cities today as heavy clouds of dust swirled over parts of four States, cutting visibility to near zero in some sections.

The blinding dust pall blanketed virtually all of Oklahoma and parts of Missouri, Kansas and Texas. A heavy snow followed dust, rain and hail in northwestern Kansas.

Schools in this Panhandle city were closed while the "duster" raged through its second successive 24-hour period. At Woodward, where the visibility was only half a block, schools were dismissed at noon.

Windsor's Toothache Is Treated in Vienna

Vienna, March 24 (AP).—The Duke of Windsor was treated for a toothache tonight by Dr. S. T. Moore, a dentist who came from London to attend him.

The former British King made plans to motor Monday to St. Wolfgang, a health resort in the Austrian Tyrol. Preparations were made to receive him there. Telephones were installed, new beds purchased, and the opening of the season was advanced for the expected early arrival of other tourists attracted by the duke's presence.

Dieckhoff to Replace Luther As Germany's Envoy to U. S.

By the United Press.

Berlin, March 24.—Dr. Hans Heinrich Dieckhoff, chubby-cheeked state secretary of the foreign office and one of the few high government officials who are not members of the Nazi party, announced tonight that he will arrive in the United States early in May as Adolf Hitler's new ambassador.

The 52-year-old Dieckhoff, a career diplomat who was counselor of the German Embassy in Washington from 1922 to 1927, will succeed Dr. Hans Luther who reportedly complained he is "fed up" with bearing the brunt of recent anti-Nazi incidents in the United States.

The United States Government cabled that Dr. Dieckhoff would be acceptable and official announcement of the appointment probably will be made as soon as Hitler returns from an Easter vacation at Berchtesgaden.

Officials said Dieckhoff's appointment has "absolutely no connection" with the incident created by attacks on Hitler by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York.

It was understood Dr. Luther, who has held the Washington post for four years, will be retired on pension.

A former cabinet minister and governor of the Reichsbank, he has been in official service since 1907—through monarchy, republic and dictatorship.

DR. HANS HEINRICH DIECKHOFF.

Dr. Dieckhoff said, "my work in Washington will be that of regular ambassador and I will do my utmost to further cordial relations between the countries. I will be happy to return to Washington after ten years absence. I know it will be especially interesting in view of the changes in the United States scene in that time."

France Claims Proof of Italian Troops in Spain

her allies, indicating the seriousness with which France views the situation, included talks between Delbos and Stephan Osusky, Czechoslovakian Minister in Paris, and discussions in which Leopold Lacroix, French Minister in Praha, figured.

It was stated Czechoslovakia was in accord fully with France.

Bojidar Pourritch, Yugoslavian Minister, brought to Delbos an assurance that the visit of Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian Foreign Minister to Belgrade, would in no way affect the French alliance with Yugoslavia.

He told the French foreign minister that Yugoslavia, while seeking betterment of her relations with Italy, would remain fully faithful to France.

Alois Vollgruber, Austrian minister, came to the Quai D'Orsay with the thanks of Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg for "the generous terms" of the French commercial treaty, recently signed with Austria, and for "the warm sympathy France has shown for the present Austrian government."

Delbos, in his conferences with the German and British ambassadors, told them that France had proof of violations (denied yesterday by Italy, which said only medical units had gone to Spain since the volunteer ban) and that "there are limits beyond which France is not willing to allow intervention to go."

Delbos contended that the presence of "regular Italian troops" in Spain had been proved by a series of "irrefutable" documents, including photographs and orders found on prisoners of the Spanish government.

He said France had been "very conciliatory and very patient" in the face of many violations of the nonintervention agreement but that the "wholesale Italian invasion in Spain" brought the risk to France of seeing her communications cut with north Africa possessions.

Franco Is Courted.

Meanwhile France was reported in diplomatic circles to be taking her first timid steps to woo the friendship of Generalissimo Francisco Franco in the event the insurgents win the Spanish civil war.

The French government, high French diplomats said, was caught among the necessity to maintain neutrality, its natural inclination to favor the Spanish popular front, and the practical need for the friendship of any government in power in Spain.

The fall of Madrid, these diplomats asserted, would cause France to end her official relations with the Spanish Valencia government immediately.

"Appearances" would be safeguarded, they said, by leaving a consul in charge of the French Embassy at Valencia, but the present charge d'affaires and the third secretary, now at the embassy, would embark for France immediately on a warship kept ready for that purpose.

which the committee had planned to put in full operation next Monday.

During the angry scene before the neutrality committee word came from Paris that Yvon Delbos, French foreign minister, had informed the British and German ambassadors there that France may appeal to the League of Nations for direct naval action if Mussolini persists in sending more troops to Spain.

Delbos, it was said, asked Germany to intercede with Italy to prevent the flow of Italian soldiers into Spain.

Rome Treaties Reported.

Rome, March 24 (AP).—Informed sources said tonight two political and economic treaties will be signed in Belgrade by Count Ciano, Italian foreign minister, who left for that city today to confer with Premier Stoyandinovich of Yugoslavia.

The political treaty, according to Virginio Gayda, writing in the Gionale d'Italia, embraces first, respect of reciprocal positions and frontiers; second, abstention from every hostile intervention, and, third, abstention from every movement within or without which might damage the interest of the other nation.

Leopold Quits London.

London, March 24 (AP).—King Leopold III departed for Brussels tonight after a three-day visit during which he presented Belgium's neutrality policy to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

The fruits of the Belgian monarch's visit were not disclosed but diplomatic sources which told the following story believed it presented the essence of his talks with the British government:

"What if one of the three proposed guarantors of Belgian neutrality (Britain, France, Germany) takes it into its head to invade Belgium as a protector of that neutrality?" Eden asked the King.

"Wait until we call for you," was the King's reported reply.

Mrs. Lillie D. Baxter Dies in California

Mrs. Lillie Duncan Baxter, daughter of Gen. Thomas Duncan, well known in Army circles all her life, died last Thursday at her home in Monterey, Calif., where she had lived for the last 14 years, relatives here announced yesterday.

She is survived by her daughter, Mrs. George Steele Gillis, and by her grandson, Lieut. Thomas Duncan Gillis, now stationed at Monterey. Funeral services were held last Sunday.

Italian Embassy Won't Send Reds' Protest Here to Rome

Counselor Longhi Says Italy Has Not Intervened in Spain; Declares 'Vicious Propaganda' Is Headlined in U. S. Press.

Assailing what he termed was "vicious propaganda" headlined by the American press, Alberto Rossi Longhi, counselor of the Italian Embassy, yesterday denied his country has actively intervened in the Spanish civil strife.

"The alleged invasion of Spain is pure fantasy," he said. "Italian troops participating are merely volunteers."

Signor Longhi said that the written protest delivered by a committee, representing the Communist and Socialist parties of the District Tuesday, would not be transmitted to his government at Rome. The committee arraigned the alleged participation of Black Shirt legions in the Spanish embroglio.

"The protest does not concern the Embassy here," he said. "All our information of the Spanish war is gleaned from the American press."

The Italian diplomat stated that what his country needs is peace and that talk of premeditated war is "ridiculous." He denied Premier Mussolini canceled his Libyan tour because of the defeat of Italians on the Guadalajara front. "Il Duce arrived only one day ahead of schedule," he said. "The Spanish situation did not determine his return."

Questioned about the reported massacre of Ethiopians in reprisal for the attempted assassination of Viceroy Graziani, Signor Longhi said that natives had been given 12 days to lay down their arms.

"The execution of Ras Demtu and other natives was justifiable under our proclamation," he said. "There never was an unwarranted massacre of civilians; those shot we considered outlaws and bandits."

Commenting upon the recent statement of an English churchman that Mussolini is a modern "Antiochus and a madman," Signor Longhi condemned "that large mass of English people" which is swayed by the "hysterical" statements of its leaders.

"That churchman belonged to the same clique that contributed to the ouster of the Duke of Windsor," he said.

The American press, the diplomat reflected, has overstepped itself in its condemnation of Il Duce. Yet nothing has been said about Fascist progress and the development of Italy's North African colonies, he said.

"Libya is a shining example of what Fascist Italy has accomplished," he added. "There you have Moslems, Moors, Jews and Christians living harmoniously under one flag."

Va. Farm Federation Supports Court Plan

A resolution adopted at the closing session of the federation's annual convention here yesterday said the group was "in accord with the President to place younger men on the Supreme Court bench.

Arrest Spoils Plans Of 4 Girls for Easter

New York, March 24 (AP).—Four little girls sobbed tonight in juvenile detention headquarters—their dreams of finery for the Easter parade wrecked on the hard rock of police charges that they stole more than 100 purses from baby carriages in recent days. When arrested they had already embarked on their Easter shopping.

WHO SAID YOU COULDN'T AFFORD THE BEST TIRES?

THE PUBLIC SAYS "THEY'RE BEST!"

How the public ranks all makes of tires is shown by the fact that for 22 consecutive years it has been true "more people ride on Goodyear Tires than on any other kind!"

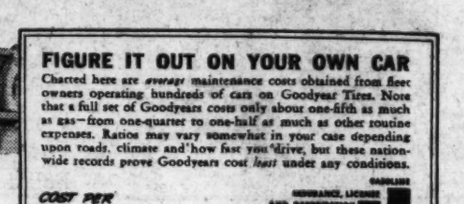
Charted here are average maintenance costs obtained from fleet owners operating hundreds of cars on Goodyear Tires. Note that a full set of Goodyears costs only about one-fifth as much as gas—from one-quarter to one-half as much as other routine expenses. Ratios may vary somewhat in your case depending upon roads, climate and how fast you drive, but these nationwide records prove Goodyears cost least under any conditions.



ANYONE who can afford to run a car today can afford the greater safety and mileage of Goodyear Tires — the world's most popular tires!

Proof? Look at the chart above showing the average operating costs of the nation's largest fleet owners. Note that a full set of Goodyear Tires costs only one-fifth as much per mile as gasoline — and far less than lubrication, repairs, garage and other ordinary expenses.

Priced to fit all purses

The plain truth is, Goodyear Tires are the smallest expense in running a car because they give the most mileage for your money.

You can buy a Goodyear today in any one of several different price classes—the price you pay depending solely upon how much mileage you require.

All Goodyear Tires give you all the features that have made Goodyears best sellers for 22 years. Road-holding center traction! Quick-stopping All-Weather type grip! Patented Supertwist Cord blowout protection in every ply! Tough, long-wearing treads!

THERE'S A GOODYEAR BATTERY NOW — the better battery you'd expect from Goodyear. Latest improved construction with ample reserve power for all accessories. Made in five models and prices to suit all purposes.

Jersey Firm's 200 Employes Now 'Partners'

Workers Are Jubilant at 15 Per Cent Share in Monthly Profits.

By the Associated Press.

Jersey City, N. J., March 24.—Recognized now as "partners," the 200 employes of the Union Packing Co. set out today to increase business and the profits they will share in.

A promise of monthly "dividends" to the extent of 15 per cent of the profits came in a surprise announcement by Joseph Gross, president of the meat store chain, and Louis A. Falk, secretary-treasurer.

Employes, jubilant at the news, estimated their monthly "cut" would range from $5 to $20 each for butchers and $18 to $75 for managers of the 50 stores in New Jersey and New York.

$75 a Month More.

"I stand to make $75 a month more under this system," said Stanley Tarack, manager of the largest in the chain.

"It is one of the best things that ever happened. It is going to make every man step out now and see that more sales and more profits are made."

Tarack also predicted employes would be anxious to cut down operating expenses.

Joseph Coppola, who has been behind a meat counter three years, commented:

"I would rather work under this system than to get a flat raise of so many dollars a week. It is a very fine thing the company is doing and they will benefit by it in the end."

May Solve U. S. Problem.

As for the "bosses," Falk says the company has never had any labor difficulties, and the partnership idea might prove a way out for the rest of the country if it follows suit."

"We may be altruists," Falk said, "but we can't see why one person should earn $1,000,000 and another $20."

In business 16 years, the company has stores in Manhattan, Long Island and Westchester County, N. Y., and in five north Jersey counties, Hudson, Passaic, Bergen, Union and Essex. In 1935 it gave employes $14,000 in cash bonuses.

Chloroform Death Trial Set April 12 In Charlottesville

Charlottesville, Va., March 24 (AP).—Judge Lemuel F. Smith, of Albemarle Circuit Court, yesterday fixed April 12 for the opening of the trial of Dr. R. G. Miller, Charlottesville dentist, who is under indictment on charges of murder in connection with the chloroform death of 18-year-old Cleo Sprouse.

Dr. Miller, arrested the day after the high school girl's body was found on the edge of the University of Virginia campus, remains a prisoner in the Henrico County Jail at Richmond.

Commonwealth's Attorney W. O. Fife has charged in a bill of particulars that Dr. Miller "deliberately" administered chloroform to the girl "with intent to cause her death" while engaged in an attempt "to produce an abortion or miscarriage" on the evening of March 1.

Lewis Agrees to Evacuation Of 6,000 Chrysler Sit-Downers

New York, without benefit of music. In both cases they had been ordered out by the courts. They continued both strikes, picket style. Agreement to close until a settlement was reached brought 550 squatters from the B. F. Goodrich plant at Kitchener, Ontario.

Recognition of the U. A. W. A. and other concessions terminated a two-week sit-down affecting 3,500 in five units of the Bohn Aluminum Co., Detroit. Strikes involving 250 auto mechanics in Duluth, Minn.; 350 employes of the Waters-Center division of the McGraw Electric Co. in Minneapolis; 81 at the Coulter Parts Co. in Oshawa, Ont., and city maintenance hands in Akron, Ohio, also were ended.

Meanwhile, Lewis invited 40 independent steel producers, employing more than 300,000, to sign contracts with his steel workers organizing committee. Five United States Steel subsidiaries and 18 other independents have recognized that division of the C. I. O. The convention of the National Council of gasoline Station Operators, an American Federation of Labor ally, voted to enlarge its membership and to resist C. I. O. attempts to enroll workers in the marketing division of the petroleum industry.

Roosevelt, Miss Perkins Talk.

Warm Springs, Ga., March 24 (U.P.).—President Roosevelt late tonight talked by long distance telephone to Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins in Washington, and received the information that strikers were evacuating Chrysler automobile plants in Detroit.

Miss Perkins also informed Mr. Roosevelt that Walter P. Chrysler and John L. Lewis would resume their conferences tomorrow with hopes high for an amicable settlement of the automobile labor controversy.

President Roosevelt then called Gov. Frank Murphy, of Mich., and congratulated him on progress made in heading the trouble toward an agreement.

Miss Perkins Pleased.

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Perkins expressed gratification last night over the developments in the Chrysler automobile dispute.

"It is gratifying to know," she said, "that the automobile dispute negotiations being conducted by Gov. Murphy in Michigan have resulted in steps being taken for the workers to leave the Chrysler plant and for the resumption of collective bargaining negotiations tomorrow morning."

Man in Argentina 'Lindbergh Case' Ends Life in Cell

Buenos Aires, March 24 (AP).—Jose Gancedo Gonzalez, cowboy accused in Argentina's "Lindbergh case," hanged himself today in the jail in which he was awaiting trial.

He strung himself from the bars of his cell at Dolores, near Mar Del Plata, where he had been held since, police said, he confessed the kidnaping and killing of 2-year-old Eugenio Pereyra Iraola.

The son of a rich Argentine cattleman was found strangled February 27 in a pigpen on his father's estate, where Gancedo Gonzalez had worked.

Showgirl Tells Court She 'Never Nestles'

New York, March 24 (AP).—The quaint question directed at pretty Gloria Cook, showgirl, on the witness stand was, had she nestled?

Douglas Bowles, colored, sued Frank Berend, promoter, for damages of $75,000 in payment for broken legs the plaintiff said were incurred when Berend's car ran him down. Bowles testified Berend was driving with one arm around Miss Cook.

"Are you sure," she was asked on the stand by Bowles' attorney, "you weren't nestled in Berend's arms?" She replied, "I never nestle."

The jury returned a $3,000 verdict in favor of Bowles.

Kuhn Asks Inquiry Into His Alleged Nazi Storm Troops

By the Associated Press.

Fritz Kuhn, head of what Representative Dickstein (Democrat), of New York, has called an organization of Nazi storm troopers in the United States, asked yesterday that his activities be investigated.

He made the request in a telegram to Chairman O'Connor (Democrat), of New York, of the House Rules Committee.

In announcing receipt of the message, O'Connor said he thought the committee would approve next week a Dickstein resolution for an investigation of propaganda against the American system of government.

House conference Saturday probably will discuss "something like the Railway Mediation Board," Robinson said yesterday, though conceding that "I don't see much that we can do because the court has held that neither the Federal Government nor the States can deal with labor problems."

The way to clear up the present situation is "through a meeting of minds," Senator Thomas, Oklahoma Democrat, said in urging that the Government "take no arbitrary action against either party in the dispute."

Conference Watched Here.

While Capital circles yesterday watched closely the auto strike peace conference being held in the offices of Gov. Frank Murphy at Lansing, Mich., belief was increasing that some 400,000 bituminous coal operators will quit work March 31, when their present contract with operators expires.

Attendance of John L. Lewis, head of the Committee for Industrial Organization, at the Lansing conference on the Chrysler strike, threatened to interfere with the New York meeting he had scheduled for today with the operators. It had been expected that today's joint session would mark an important step in the week-old negotiations for a new wage and hour contract. Information has come from both sides in the negotiations, however, that the conferees to date have reached no agreement and the conviction that no new contract will have been signed by the end of the month was increasing.

United Mine Workers officials hold the result will be not a strike but a "suspension of work." They maintain that without a contract the men have no right to continue work in the mines and will merely suspend operations until a new agreement is reached. In any event there is no likelihood of a "sit-down" strike, coal mining conditions being what they are.

Search for Flier Fails

Hopes of finding Britain's "Flying Duchess," missing since March 22, have been abandoned by searching planes who have been seeking some trace of the plane since her disappearance was reported. The 71-year-old Duchess of Bedford was last seen when she took off on a solo flight over a flooded area of Bedfordshire.

2 Sailors Accuse Captain of Beating And Eye Gouging

New Orleans, March 24 (U.P.).—G-men and a deputy United States marshal tonight watched a hotel and the luxurious steam yacht Blue Water of Miss Marian Huntington, San Francisco heiress, for Capt. Frederick Lange, after two of the crew filed charges in Admiralty Court that he beat one and tried to gouge out the eye of the other.

Miss Huntington herself was sued for $26,000 damages by Edwin Podola, cook, and for $22,000 by William Page, seaman. Papers were served on Miss Huntington, but Lange eluded Federal agents and could not be found.

14-Year Limit On Child Labor Asked by Borah

amendment, which has been before the public for 13 years without ratification, is invalid because it has not been ratified "within a reasonable time."

Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), of Indiana, arguing that the constant struggle in the legislatures over the program throughout the years indicated a reasonable time had not yet elapsed, advocated an 18-year minimum in the amendment as at present.

Recently defeated in the New York Legislature by a narrow margin, the child labor amendment was beaten overwhelmingly in Massachusetts the other day after several prominent Catholic clergymen had expressed the view that the measure would result in "youth control" or "regimentation by the New Deal" through its ban on the labor of workers under the age of 18.

Wheeler said he was not introducing his bill "to hinder the child labor amendment, but because I'm thoroughly convinced it would be held constitutional."

"Much other farm and labor legislation could be effected now and held constitutional if carefully drafted," he added.

A Unified Health Program.

It took eight years but at last, it seems, something is going to come of the Public Health Service's recommendation that Washington's municipal hospital facilities be unified. In 1929, Dr. Paul Preble emphatically urged it. Now word comes from Capitol Hill that the District supply bill, still in committee, aims to effect a consolidation of public hospital facilities here under the local Health Department.

No medical experience is needed to appreciate the advantages of this. Unification will permit that essential to all efficient public health administration, "continuity of service." For example, a child is sent home from school, sick. A physician diagnoses the illness as diphtheria—highly communicable and requiring immediate hospitalization. The Health Department orders it but the parents are unable to assume the expense. They turn to the Board of Public Welfare, which now controls free hospital care. For some reason—perhaps they have been in Washington less than a year—they may not be eligible for assistance. The child, under the circumstances, cannot be isolated.

Rearrangement of the hospital system, as the supply bill is reported to provide, would avoid such difficulties of divided authority. In addition, the bill is believed to take a sympathetic view of the Health Department's financial needs. The Budget Bureau's allowance of $150,000 for Washington's first health center is understood to have been raised to $200,000. Moreover, funds are said to have been requested for the expansion of the District's food inspection and public-nursing divisions. In a city with Washington's unenviable health record, the desirability of such improvements is apparent.

Whether unification of the hospitals is to be regarded as a step toward the general simplification and reform of District government is less certain. But here is one case in which concrete action to eliminate confusion and overlapping within the structure appears to be at hand.

Insulting Our Guests.

No constructive purpose is served through the picketing of embassies and legations in Washington by American groups and individuals hostile to the governments represented. Such sophomoric activities by persons with an obviously exhibitionist complex have not the slightest effect on the home governments. They may possibly serve to interfere somewhat with the normal conduct of embassy business.

The practice, moreover, comports badly with traditional American hospitality. As long as the United States maintains diplomatic relations with another nation its envoys are here in Washington as our guests. It goes without saying that they should receive at least as courteous treatment as America's representatives enjoy abroad. And no foreign government would permit such insulting treatment of the American diplomatic representatives in its capital.

There is no good reason why the practice should not be barred here. If the police department would merely refuse permits to all applicants for such offensive displays they would terminate gestures which might easily grow to cause this government serious embarrassment.

Only Two Alternatives.

Chairman Eccles of the Federal Reserve Board recently urged prompt balancing of the Federal budget as a means of avoiding monetary inflation. He advocated "increasing taxes on incomes and profits if necessary to sustain the volume of relief and at the same time bring the budget into balance and permit the paying down of public debt as private debt expands."

His suggestions have met with a decidedly cold reception in official circles in spite of the fact that a balanced budget is the best possible guarantee against the inflationary price increases that administration spokesmen profess to fear. Senator Harrison, chairman of the Finance Committee, immediately denied any intention of pressing for new taxes. And now the President has expressed a "hope" that there will be no tax increases.

In view of the disappointing returns from March income tax collections, and the unexpected additions to relief costs entailed by recent floods, the budgetary outlook is none too promising. Since the Administration has set its face against additional taxes, it is all the more imperative for it to curtail its spending program. That is the alternative preferred by Senator Harrison, and it is the proper approach to a balanced budget. Further tax increases would add to production costs, check industrial activity and accelerate the price rise that is already alarming the Administration.

Co-operatives And Chain Stores.

The voluminous report of the President's Committee on Co-operative Enterprise contains a mine of information, especially about consumers' co-operatives. Members of the investigating group, who spent two and one-half months in Europe visiting co-operatives and talking with their executives in many different countries, are by no means agreed as to the outlook for the movement here. Some believe that the United States offers opportunity for the development of a consumer-co-operative system comparable to that found abroad. Others are plainly skeptical for reasons that seem to be well-founded.

It is pointed out, for instance, that European consumer co-operatives were established and extended during a period when private retailing was most inefficient. In many countries the co-operatives were the pacemakers, setting standards of efficiency, lowering costs and bringing down prices in private retail establishments. Instead of being small-scale enterprises, they are the "big business" group in Europe, handling between 10 and 20 per cent of the retail food business in Great Britain, Sweden, France, Switzerland and Denmark, and about 40 per cent in Finland.

The investigators significantly emphasize the absence of the modern chain store during the period when the consumer co-operatives were becoming entrenched. Today, however, the growth of the chain store, especially in England, is causing worry among the co-operatives. Their apprehension is not without reason, since the growth of the chains has outdistanced that of the co-operatives in recent years. If that is the situation abroad, it is highly improbable that consumer co-operation in the United States will show a spectacular advance so long as our chain stores, voluntary chains and mail order houses provide cheap, efficient service for the public.

Of course, if legislation should be passed extending governmental assistance to co-operatives, either in the form of direct or concealed subsidies, they would be in a position to engage in unfair competition with privately owned and operated retail enterprises. The success of the European co-operatives is certainly not due to any such extraneous advantages. The investigating committee says that co-operatives have received "some access to Government credit, some exemption from taxes on plowed back surpluses, some subsidy to co-operative education—that is about all." The moral seems to be plain: They have succeeded because they have been relatively efficient. They have grown, not by being imposed upon the people, but because they met a need of the people.

In Europe consumer co-operatives have not crowded out other retail groups, although they have forced a higher standard of efficiency upon them. Hence it is altogether unlikely that they will interfere with the development of private business here, so long as no special favors are extended to the co-operatives by the Government. There may be surprises in store for us, however, if Congress should pass new regulatory laws directed against chain stores and at the same time undertake to subsidize consumer co-operatives equipped to give the same kind of service.

President Roosevelt has clearly defined the proper attitude of the Government toward co-operatives in an address approvingly quoted by a member of the committee of inquiry. "We in Washington," he said, "have recognized that co-operation and co-operatives must come from the people themselves. The Government can see to it that the rules of the game are fair as between co-operative enterprise and other enterprise. Initiative and management itself spring from and carry on from the bottom up rather than from the top down."

That opinion appears to be held by the executive heads of the European co-operatives with whom the visiting American committee conferred. Even for their own organizations they strongly oppose special privileges, believing them to be a source of weakness rather than strength, injurious to the subsidized as well as to competing concerns.

Regulation Of Trailers.

At a recent conference called by the New York Joint Committee on Interstate Co-operation the representatives of nine States discussed problems presented by the growing use of trailers. Two types of regulation were found to be needed—to protect settled communities from pollution of water supplies and other annoyances and to protect the trailer population itself against insanitary conditions at parking sites. Then, of course, there is the serious question of deciding what responsibility local communities should assume for care of these transients, education of their children and such matters.

With a large and rapidly increasing population on wheels, the States must act promptly to prevent groups without a fixed habitat from becoming a social menace. The question is rightly recognized as one calling for interstate action, since the effect of applying protective legislation in one State would be to encourage an exodus to a neighboring State.

A committee of nine members representing each participating State was created to study questions arising from the use of trailers and to draft model regulations for presentation to their respective Legislatures. Success in working out a uniform plan ought to be relatively easy because there are no existing legislative conflicts to be reconciled in this new and untried regulatory field.

If the States had shown the same willingness in earlier years to consider their common problems, and to work out solutions satisfactory to all, we might have had much more effective regulatory action by interstate agreement and probably fewer demands for Federal intervention. However, it is the spread of rapid transportation, especially the widespread use of automobiles, that has brought home the necessity of extending regulatory laws beyond State lines, while leaving responsibility for enforcement in the hands of local authorities.

No Casualty Lists.

The "imperturbable calm" on which Mussolini prides himself seems to have been very severely shaken, his furious assurances to the contrary notwithstanding. And what is the more disturbing is that he is not in a position to refer to the real cause of his present irritation, which is obviously the smashing defeat inflicted on the Italian expeditionary force which was supposed to insure the fall of Madrid.

By this defeat, so disastrous for Italian arms that it is described as a second Caporetto, Fascist military prestige has been very seriously impaired. That is realized everywhere outside of Italy, where the way the blackshirt contingents evaporated before the determined attack of the Spanish loyalists is common knowledge. But in Italy it is impossible to admit the disaster.

To do so would be, first, to dissipate the pathetic hypnosis whereby the Italian people believe that under Mussolini, and after Ethiopia, they can lick their weight in wildcats. And, second, it would be to admit to the world that the "medical units" which Italy has so abundantly poured into Spain have become very belligerent on foreign soil, thereby showing the deceit of Italian participation in the non-intervention effort.

None the less, casualties are casualties, and even under a totalitarian state questions are asked when conscripts disappear, never to come home again. The Italian losses before Madrid are estimated at several thousand. That means a lot of families will soon be talking sotto voce with their neighbors about the disappearance of Guiseppi, and whether present economic conditions in the village are adequate compensation.

This would be enough to disturb the "imperturbable calm" of a dictator, and therein lies the danger. It is not yet too late for Mussolini to admit, by actions rather than by words, that Spain has been too much for him, as it was for Charlemagne and Napoleon. It is not too late quietly to withdraw his thinly-disguised troops and leave Spain to settle her own problems her own way.

But under the sting of defeat Il Duce is not unlikely to press on to disaster; to turn his concealed intervention into open war; and to risk consequences rather too big for even his unquestioned stature.

Such a mistake, among other undesirable outcomes, would of course force the Roosevelt Administration to recognize the fact of an Italo-Spanish war, and to apply our neutrality legislation, present or pending, to Italy as well as to both sides in Spain. Many Americans who are planning to visit Italy this summer must now be considering that very real contingency. It would make quite a difference in the itineraries they have planned.

Chest Leaders.

For the fourth year, Clarence Phelps Dodge has accepted the presidency of the Community Chest. No other person has served more than twice in this office. There had been talk this year of limiting, on principle, officers' terms to two years. But a canvass of the community found a consensus of opinion that this was no time to deprive the Chest of the interest, enthusiasm and ability that have characterized Mr. Dodge's leadership. In bowing to this sentiment, he once again gives an inspiring demonstration of civic responsibility dispatched to the fullest.

To serve with Mr. Dodge next year are four vice presidents and a secretary nominated with a particular eye to their organizing and administrative abilities. Most of these have long been identified with the Chest and all can be counted on to render tangible assistance in a task showing little sign that it will be less arduous or better rewarded—except in unspoken gratitude—than in other years.

Mr. Quezon's Visit.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I was amazed to read in the letter of Mr. Garrett in The Post of March 21 that the mission of Manuel L. Quezon, President of the Philippines, to the United States will cost the Filipino people $75,000. Well, I found it to be true. A law was passed authorizing the expenditure of that amount.

The amount is excessive. Why can't the mission of Mr. Quezon here be completed as soon as possible? According to the law the mission's purpose is to decide when the trade conference between the U. S. and the Philippines should take place. Why should that take long to decide? The program for the conference should not take more than a day to prepare.

I was amazed also to see that Mr. Quezon has again brought up the question of independence. I thought that was settled. I now favor the granting of independence as soon as possible and without further relations of any kind with the Filipinos. Heretofore, I opposed early independence for the sake of the Filipinos. Now let Quezon have it.

Another thing that amazed me is the attack of Quezon against our judiciary, our Congress and our Constitution. Why should a man like Quezon be stopped from going ahead and giving his people the government that he wants? Quezon is now too big for the U. S. A.

HARRY V. MASON.
Washington, March 22.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I am a Filipino houseboy. I go to school at night. I work hard for my pay, so I know the value of money. Now let me say one word about President Quezon of our Philippine Commonwealth.

He is spending, that is President Quezon, $75,000 for his trip here. I believe what Mr. Garrett says, "It's a lot of money in the Philippines, or perhaps in Washington." Now what does President Quezon do for the $75,000?

He talks with President Roosevelt for half an hour perhaps, with Mr. Cordell Hull for one hour, and with other minor officials. Then he makes speeches, the same one all the time. Then he gave banquets, and at night he goes to night clubs. That for $75,000. God help us!

I want President Roosevelt to finish his talk with President Quezon and then tell him to go back home at once and save the money of the poor Filipinos.

Ships From Savannah.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Referring to the article in The Post of March 7 regarding Savannah, I wish to call to the attention of your readers that the Confederate cruiser Alabama, was not built in Savannah; besides I doubt if she ever entered a United States port.

She like the Florida, was built in 1862 in Birkenhead, England, and delivered to Admiral Semmes, of the Confederate navy, in the Azores. At the same time her equipment was delivered to her by two small British ships.

A few years ago the writer had the pleasure of having Mr. Dabney Scales (who was one of the officers on the Alabama) to a sea dinner with him.

However, the first iron steamboat built in this country, the John Randolph, was built in Savannah in 1834, the iron plates having been shipped from England. There the second iron steamboat, the Chatham, was also built in 1836.

"Sports" For The District.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why be pikers? If horse racing will bring large revenues into District treasury through taxation (and the District will need far more money than it now gets, providing the hybrid Jacobs proposed reorganization goes through), why not legalize bull fighting, dog racing, cock fighting, gladiator fighting a la Roman holidays, strip-tease shows, duels between honorable men at 20 paces with shotguns, Bowie knives, or what have you, and numerous other revenue producing games of chance—and excitement for the spectators?

I am sure there are gentlemen of sporting blood willing to be the "angels" for the mere opportunity to be known among us as leaders in civic enterprises, who heretofore have not had the good fortune to prove their several capacities—locally. As for master of ceremonies, several names immediately pop into one's mind, but shall go unnamed here.

No longer would the School Board, or Sewer Department, or Public Welfare, or the National Training Schools for boys and girls, or Hazen's proposed hospital for inebriates, or the Community Chest, or the several free clinics in operation or proposed, or Gallinger and Emergency Hospital, and the several poorly equipped "flop houses" lack funds to carry on their work of mercy and character building.

I'm for all these "sports," providing——. GROVER AYRES.

Subway "Visualizing."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It seems just a bit screwy that some of our best "visualizers," who just now are "visualizing" subways, etc., for the District, seem to concentrate their periscopes on upper Connecticut avenue. This is plainly "class" or "neo-upper-bracket" visualizing, but it sends a glow through the boys with the quarter and half-acre estates out around Bethesda and Chevy Chase. No longer are they to be forgotten men. An extra half hour to laze in bed or loll about in the dewy a. m. listening to the jaybirds before being wafted toward one of those cold and forbidding piles on the avenue. And nary a subversive brain tremor concerning the pokey driver just ahead. But really it would be topping if there were free underground parking, also! Taxes? Don't we buy gas in the District?

And the proletariat on H street northeast and Georgia avenue will continue to shift gears and cuss. Ah, me! CHARLES E. CROSS.

"Walk" Lights.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: May I make a suggestion in the commendable safety drive now under way in the District of Columbia?

Would it not be for the mutual protection of driver and pedestrian, if all traffic lights were so regulated that pedestrians used only the yellow lights?

It would seem the only change involved would be a retiming of the interval now in use, and having the work "walk" replace the word "caution" now appearing on the yellow light.

The red interval could remain as at present, the yellow given a longer duration, and the green still longer to permit turns.

"Schools For Crime."

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: In a letter which appeared lately in your columns I was appalled to read the high figures on crimes committed, and also the sinister conditions in prisons which actually turn them into schools for crime.

The prime question is now can citizens force a reorganization of such a system. No wonder that a shocking condition exists in most penal institutions. No wonder that crime has increased under such conditions, with offenders returning to worse crimes, when officials in charge of prison inmates are appointed by political choice rather than by merit and capability.

Of course, to rid any system of politics would mean a hard-fought battle. A merit system could be a compromise and might be accomplished if the lawmakers from governors down would take the matter in hand. They would act if they felt the force of public opinion.

Barbering On Sunday.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Again there is before our Congress a bill attempting to legislate on religious matters. This bill (S. 1270 and H. R. 3291) is a bill for the regulation of the barber trade, and contains many laudable features in regard to sanitation, etc., which seem to be above reproach and no doubt are. We find in section 14 (a) "It shall be unlawful, 6; "to maintain or operate any establishment in the District of Columbia wherein the occupation or trade of barbering is conducted on Sunday, except that the foregoing provisions of this paragraph shall not apply to persons who actually refrain from the practice of such occupation or trade on Saturday solely because of religious beliefs."

This bill does not discriminate against those who want to close their business on Saturday, although it does not say that they would be allowed to work on Sunday, but that is not the point. I am not a barber, nor am I interested in this for union or non-union reasons, but for this, and this alone: From the very beginning of our Nation we have practiced religious liberty in this country and have followed the admonition of our Lord Jesus and have kept our church and state separate, and under this type of government we have flourished and prospered as has no other nation on the face of the globe.

And so we will continue to do as long as we follow Divine instruction. I sound the warning of past history of those nations which have failed to heed the individual's right to worship as he pleases. This bill is only a beginning and will open the way for a flood of like bills all over the Nation.

The American people as a whole do not want this type of law, they are too fundamentally fair. It is only those with a mistaken sense of duty as to what is right who foster these things, for I am sure that at heart they are trying to do what they believe is right. I offer no criticism of those proponents of these bills who honestly believe it is the way to do, but I do not believe that they have considered the final result of such laws in this land, or any land for that matter. ROBERT H. RIECKS.

Corporation Taxes.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is gradually beginning to dawn on Mr. Average Man that he, not the economic royalists, must pay for the Roosevelt spending spree.

The American Telephone & Telegraph Co. informs its 641,000 stockholders, the majority of whom are women, that taxes increased over $22,000,000 in 1936 and equal $5.98 per share of common stock. Standard Oil of Kentucky reveals that total taxes amount to "nearly one-third of sales." It further states, "Taxes have become so numerous and heavy as to lay a serious burden on the company's business and earnings." Other great corporations likewise state that they are all but engulfed by ever mounting taxes which continue to rise.

Sane men, governed by reason and not emotion, are asking themselves what will happen when we are overtaken by the next depression when corporate surplus is being confiscated by political spendthrifts, taxes mounting skyward and a public debt of $35,000,000,000 anchored to our necks. E. K. G.

Is Vanity Feminine?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Westbrook Pegler's column of March 22 entitled Puffers and Pouters, was most amusing and clever, but the opening sentence carried a barb that still sticks in the writer's tender flesh.

He speaks of the "feminine vanity and jealousy of the men who personify the great and little nations of the earth in foreign lands."

Is this an attempt to trace the origin of vanity and jealousy to the female sex? And if so, doesn't vanity and jealousy change sex when (as it often is) in the male personality?

In my years of secretarial experience I have observed the childish vanity and jealousy of a number of men and seeing these traits called "feminine" doesn't set well.

Good Friday In Pamplona.

If I had been looking for a revolution instead of a bull fight, I might have been impressed by what the soldier told me as he tried to roll a cigarette out of my rough-cut pipe tobacco. But since I had hitch-hiked alone through the Pass of Roncesvalles in a snowstorm on the strength of a rumor that I might see an Easter bull fight in Pamplona, I was disappointed. Coming events, even when they amount to a civil war, do not cast their shadows before them clearly enough to impress a foreigner who cannot speak the language and is besides very wet, very cold, and very hungry.

It was the village of Burguete where I first heard that I was to see no Easter bull fight, and failed to observe the smoldering embers that were to set all Spain aflame. Yet, even in a mountain village of only a score of families, the essential elements of rebellion were plain to see. There were four soldiers trying to look like the chorus in Carmen, perhaps a half dozen priests, and poverty-stricken villagers whose refusal to speak anything but their native Basque might have hinted their potential enmity to radical Madrid and its secular Spanish government.

To Pamplona, the capital of old Navarre, the Basques of the Spanish Pyrenees took their wives and children and leather wine bottles, bundled all together in donkey carts, like old-fashioned American farmers on their way to the county seat for court day. I followed them and awoke in a cheap Pamplona inn on Good Friday of 1935, uncertain of what the atmosphere of aggressive celebration signified, and hoping to find someone who could speak English and tell me.

* * * *

Navarre, even to the most casual observer, was a country different from Castile or Andalusia. Its men had the rugged features and angular frames of the Basques, who had preserved their racial identity and their language in spite of invasion and attack by Moors, Spaniards and French.

The dusty town square was full of country families that Good Friday morning, and of peddlers of wine and undigestible fried delicacies. The arcades that surrounded it sheltered from the sunlight crowded sidewalk cafes, where the local dandies sipped their mid-morning coffee. The local belles paraded by, wearing their high combs and mantillas with far greater public freedom than purely Spanish custom and the usual Spanish climate permit, for chaperones are less strict and the sunshine less damaging in Pamplona than in Madrid or Seville. The occasion for all this gayety was the revival of a public celebration which had been discontinued since the deposition of the King and the installation of a radical and secular national government, the Good Friday parade of the religious brotherhoods.

As sundown approached, the general hubbub quieted. The men and boys left the pelota courts, and the aficionados deserted the bull ring where they had been loudly discussing the merits of some newly purchased bulls.

At sunset the procession emerged from the nave, presenting in a magnificent series of pageants the Passion, the Crucifixion and the Resurrection. There were a dozen life-size groups in sculpture, each group borne on the shoulders of a half-dozen men, who had to be replaced at intervals, as their burden made them stumble over the cobblestones. There were elaborately costumed companies, such as whole battalions of Roman soldiery on horseback and in armor, and long lines of children bearing the instruments of the passion, the crowns of thorns and the scourges. The dignitaries of the church were there in their most magnificent vestments, leading long files of regular clergy.

But the great majority in the parade were in the corps of the religious brotherhoods, lay organizations whose influence in the conservative Basque provinces was supposed to be tremendous. Clad in coarse robes with girdles of rope, carrying tremendous tapers, the thousands of those anxious to reaffirm their loyalty to the church and to Navarre in defiance of the government at Madrid, marched and chanted through the city streets from dusk until nearly midnight, while statues of Navarre's heroes, their inscriptions written in the Basque language, looked on with approval.

* * * *

If I had known the political undercurrents as well as did the thoughtful-looking squads of soldiers who surveyed the scene, I would have been excited by its significance. It symbolized the passionate religious loyalty of the Basques to their mountainous provinces and their enmity to the new political ideas through which industrial workers were seeking to control all Spain. In those quiet soldiers and ardent marchers I might have seen men prepared to die with the troops of Mola and Franco.

But there was no one to tell me these things. The nearest American Express office was in Madrid, and the Cook's office was closed for the holidays. And so I went to the city hall of Pamplona for a schedule of bull fights. If I had to travel over half of Spain, I was determined to get some local color.

Fair Enough

Income Tax Weakness.

THERE IS a dangerous weakness in the administration of the Federal income tax which provides an opportunity for graft on the part of the reviewing agents and for harassment of the taxpayer for political or personal motives.

The reviewing agents are given discretion in many cases to approve, curtail or entirely disallow deductions and raise the tax—a power which obviously creates a temptation for a dishonest agent to strike a private compromise with the subject. It may be that the Government is fortunate enough to have only honest men in this service, and I claim no evidence to the contrary, but the opportunity is there, nevertheless, in a field of problems known as the twilight zone.

The best protection, and the only sure way of preventing graft, is to provide definite checks, and these do not exist in the type of cases referred to here. There is espionage to back up the honesty of honest men and worry the dishonest agents, if any, but crooks take chances in any zone of operations.

But even if the agent is strictly honest as to personal larceny he still has a power to mulct the victim on behalf of the Government merely because of some personal dislike for him. This puts the citizen at a disadvantage, for he must plead for the agent's favor and abide by his whim when the law should strictly define his rights and permit him to stand on them.

* * * *

IF HE OFFENDS the agent, who is only human, whether by the cut of his jib, his political views or the smell of his pipe, he runs the risk of an adverse decision and a loss of money which might not occur if he could only harmonize with the Government representative. I would like to believe that the agents are all above such conduct, but my experience with human nature and men who are given optional powers in the public service is not reassuring.

In addition to all this the agents have a right to delve deep into the taxpayer's private accounts, and thus intrude in matters so intimate as to be none of the Government's business. Conceivably this could lead to blackmail, and at the very best it sets up a personal inquisition certainly no less searching than the questionnaires to which organized labor takes such violent exception in large industrial plants.

If the hardy freeman of the republic thinks his privacy is invaded by some of the questions which are put to him as a prior condition to a paltry job with a shovel, it may comfort him to know that the Government sometimes is even more inquisitive. Not a check may be paid, not a purchase made but that the agent may consider it his right and duty to demand a full explanation, though the item may have no bearing on the computation of the tax.

* * * *

THE CASE of the man who, after years of respectable married, life was called on to produce proof of the marriage may not be typical, but if it is an exception it shows the powers which an agent may take to himself if he believes the victim stands in need of a little personal discipline. Such proof is not generally required, but that very fact suggests that the demand was intended as harassment in this case.

I believe the taxpayers in these inquisitions are inclined to fear that the agent has final powers and must be propitiated at any sacrifice of self-respect. The truth is, however, that the agents themselves are rated according to their work and conduct, and may be called to strict account for abuse of their position if the taxpayer is sure of his own ground and willing to go to the trouble.

The taxpayer naturally does not like to take an appeal from the reviewer's decision if the amount involved is small, as it often is. He may decide to skip it and pay off to avoid expense and trouble. But if he has reason to believe that the agent has tossed him around for spite or for any other reason, he may go to the local collector about it or, mistrusting him, carry his grievance to the Secretary of the Treasury.

However, that is small assurance. Because under the existing system the discretionary powers of the reviewers, combined with the taxpayers' reluctance to carry things further, constitute the germ of an American G. P. U.

With danger ever at her side
Her mood is calm, her manner light.
(My wife when on a flivver trip
Displays more nervousness than she,
And even on some five-mile ride

II.

Amelia climbs into a plane
And says as if 'twere nothing new,
"I think I'll fly around the globe—
Today I've nothing else to do!"
(When to my Jennie I propose
A Sunday trip to Tompkin's Dell
She says, "My goodness! Way out there?
And on such sudden notice? Well!")

III.

Not satisfied with tested routes,
Amelia picks the untried way;
The unknown world is her delight—
She treats it all as just child's play.
(My little woman throws a fit
When on the Sunday flivver ride
I take a slighted, unmarked turn Into some road she's never tried.)

IV.

Amelia picks far Howland Isle,
A tiny dot upon the sea
And seeks to find it by the stars
Without the least timidity.
(When I would drive to Pawson Park
My wife demands road maps galore
And if the guide signs seem too few Chirps, "I've not seen THIS road before!")

V.

Celestial navigation and
Dead reckoning are apple pie
To fair Amelia when she would
A brace of seas and oceans fly.
(My Jennie thinks the best known roads
Are rather shy of guide signs, quite;
And even on Route No. 1
Declares, "I don't think this is right!")

VI.

Some 27,000 miles
Are taken in Amelia's stride;
To touch five continents is but
Her notion of a little ride.
(My Jennie says, "Now, George, have sense!"
When out to Coney Isle I'd roam;
"It takes two hours!" she exclaims.
"Can't we ride somewhere nearer home?")

VIII.

Amelia wears a flying suit,
Amelia wears a flying hat;
She merely totes a few boiled eggs,
Some sandwiches and things like that.
(My Jennie to a Sunday trip
Declares, "I've nothing fit to wear . . .
When you propose a thing like this
I must have some time to PREPARE!")

Dizzy Conforms.

Dizzy Dean, in signing that recent contract, refused to promise good behavior, thereby becoming a symbol of the country. Obey the rules? Keep the faith? Live up to an agreement? Say, where do you think you are, anyhow! Russia?

Poll Shows 27 States Against Roosevelt Plan

Back-To-Wall Fight Is New For President

Fireside Chats, Hughes Letter May Cause Shifts.

By Dr. George Gallup,
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 24. — In the seven weeks since President Roosevelt exploded his Supreme Court plan before Congress the predominant public opinion of America has opposed the President's plan. The complete Nation-wide poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion shows that 27 States oppose the White House proposal while 20 favor it. In the forty-eighth State public opinion is exactly even.

On a Nation-wide basis 53 voters oppose the plan for every 47 who favor it.

These figures are based on a careful sampling of opinion in every State, and they represent approximately the result if the entire voting population had expressed its opinion. The Institute distributed ballots to farmers and city people, Democrats and Republicans, rich and poor within each State, the exact proportions depending on the distribution of the voting population in each case.

Today's Institute poll dramatizes the back-to-the-wall fight that faces President Roosevelt if he is to have his way without compromise. With less than a majority of popular support he must convince a wide-split Senate that his plan is the best plan and that it should be passed "now."

New Role for President.

In previous crises the President has been accustomed to strong popular majorities at his elbow. In 1932 he was elected with 59 per cent of the major party vote. In 1936 he was re-elected with 62½ per cent. Today his support on the Supreme Court plan drops below the 50-50 line.

Translated into millions of votes and using the 1936 election as a model, Roosevelt's Supreme Court plan has about 21,000,000 votes today against 24,000,000 opposition votes. In the election last November the President received about 28,000,000 to 17,000,000 for Gov. Landon.

For an explanation of this shift one must look to the Democrats. The Institute poll shows that in every State a contigent of them have taken sides with the Republicans. There is no exception to this fact. Even in States like South Carolina and Mississippi, where the President was almost unopposed last November, there is Democratic opposition to the White House plan today.

This is emphasized by an official test of public opinion recently made in Georgia. In the three counties of Mitchell, Randolph and Seminole almost three times as many ballots have been cast against the Court plan as were cast against Roosevelt when he was a candidate last November. The official vote gives Roosevelt's plan a 6 to 1 majority in the three counties, but there have been approximately 550 votes against the plan as compared with 189 votes for Landon in these counties in November

On the average, out of every 100 Democrats last November just 70 favor the President's plan to remake the Court while 30 oppose it. This reduces the President's customary popular majorities all through the South, even though most of these States are numbered among the 20 which favor the plan.

Other States where the President's plan wins are California, Washington, New Jersey, West Virginia and most of the Rocky Mountain States.

All the New England and Middle West States, on the other hand, vote against the President's proposed Court changes. Against him too are most of the Eastern industrial States, including New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois.

State Legislatures Speak.

In about half the States one or both houses of the State Legislature have passed official resolutions favoring or condemning the White House plan. The Texas Senate was among the first to pass such a resolution. It condemned. The lower house took no sides, going on record as neither for nor against the plan.

Some of the States where both houses voted against the plan include Maine, Vermont, Massachusetts, Kansas and South Dakota. In eight States—Indiana, Michigan, North Carolina, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, South Carolina and West Virginia—both chambers have approved. In several other States there have been divided resolutions.

But these do not complete the picture of public opinion.

Another Institute poll, conducted nationally this month, helps. This poll asked, "Do you think some kind of change is necessary regarding the Supreme Court?" This question was, of course, quite different from a test on Roosevelt's specific proposal. Throughout the country a majority indicated that "some change" is desired, although no choice was made among the many plans available. The vote was 59 per cent to 41 per cent.

Two other assays of opinion have been reported by other organizations. The American Bar Association polled its membership of 29,000 on the full text of Roosevelt's plan, including his suggestions for lower Federal codrts. This test resulted in a vote of about 6 to 1 against the President's changes.

The other test was a newspaper coupon poll sponsored by the N. E. A. Service and conducted among readers of certain newspapers in 42 States. This poll, which was intended to give vent to reader-opinion, showed the newspaper readers two to one against the plan.

Congress Also Divides.

With public opinion divided like two teams at tug-of-war, Congress will be under terrific pressure. At present all signs point to a Roosevelt victory in the House of Representatives but to a bitter fight to the finish in the Senate where the opposition—although out-numbered—have the powerful weapon of the filbuster. By continuously holding the floor even a few Senators can stall the legislative machinery of the upper house until their demands are met or until a compromise or both may be in the offing for Roosevelt's plan, therefore, as about 24 Democratic Senators—in addition to the little battalion of 16 Republicans who make up their party in the Senate—are reported against the plan at the present time.

The Institute finds that in the country at large Republican voters are almost as unanimously against the White House plan as their bloc of Senators in Washington. Nevertheless a small group of Landon voters, mainly from the West, take sides with the President on the issue. This is the way opinion within party ranks divides:

	For Roosevelt Plan	Against Roosevelt Plan
Republican voters	8%	92%
Democratic voters	70	30

Figures already reported show an important split between farmers and city people, between the upper professional levels and organized labor.

In the voting to date American farmers are 58 per cent against changing the Court, while city voters average 52 per cent against the change.

In a special poll of lawyers last month the Institute found the heaviest opposition. Representatives of the 165,000 lawyers throughout the country—not merely the upper crust members of the bar associations—averaged 4 to 1 against the plan.

At the other extreme, persons on relief averaged 73 per cent in favor of Roosevelt's proposal.

Meanwhile public opinion is under new influences as it digests two fireside radio speeches by the President and a deluge of evidence and testimony before the Senate judiciary committee, including a letter from Chief Justice Hughes bearing the indorsement of Justice Brandeis and Justice Van Devanter as well.

Under these influences which way will public opinion trend?

The Institute of Public Opinion is now conducting a new Nation-wide poll to answer that question. First returns will be published Sunday in The Washington Post.

Nation's Reaction To Plan

By Institute of Public Opinion.

New York, March 24.—Final figures in the Supreme Court poll of the American Institute of Public Opinion show 53 per cent of the voters of the United States opposed to the President's plan, 47 per cent in favor of it. The line-up of opinion in each State follows:

State.	Percentage of Public Opinion. Yes.	No.	Reported Attitude of U. S. Senators.	Resolutions of State Legislatures.
Alabama	58%	42%	Black for; Bankhead non-committal.	None.
Arizona	54	46	Ashurst, Hayden for.	None.

Oklahoma	36	64	Thomas, Lee for.	Both chambers in favor.
Oregon	46	54	McNary, Steiwer against.	None.
Pennsylvania	48	52	Davis against; Guffey for.	Both chambers in favor.
Rhode Island	42	58	Gerry against; Green for.	Senate opposed; House in favor.
Tennessee	54	46	McKellar for; Bachman against.	None.
Utah	53	47	King against; Thomas for.	None.
Virginia	52	48	Glass, Byrd against.	None.
Washington	52	48	Schwellenbach for; Bone non-committal.	House in favor.
West Virginia	55	45	Neely for; Holt against.	Both chambers in favor.
Wisconsin	48	52	LaFollette for; Duffy non-committal.	None.
Wyoming	50	50	O'Mahoney, Schwartz for.	None.

Public opinion favors the President's plan in 20 States, opposes it in 27 States and is evenly dividend in 1 State. The probable line-up of Senators show 42 for the President's plan, 40 against it and 14 non-committal. Slightly more than half the State legislatures have passed resolutions on the question.

Angry Duce

By Barnet Nover

Mussolini Lashes Out.

"A MAN in a passion," said Benjamin Franklin's Poor Richard," rides a mad horse."

In lashing out, with a fury unusual even for him, against British and other critics of his policies in Ethiopia and Spain, Mussolini revealed that his is no elephant hide. Some of the barbs apparently went home and goaded the Duce into a violent outburst of wrath difficult to reconcile with his boast of Italy's "imperturbable calm."

His own remarks show clearly that Italy today is uneasy and on the defensive. This is a dangerous position for a totalitarian state to be in. For its greatest strength, internally and externally, lies in the legend of its invincibility. That legend must constantly be fed by victories of prestige.

At the moment, however, there are no new Fascist victories, only defeats. It is understandable, therefore, why Mussolini addressing his Black Shirts following his return from Libya, took occasion to boast of such triumphs as the revenge of Adowa and the victory over sanctions. But these belong to the rapidly receding past. To a hungry national ego it is like offering not solid food but the diary of yesterday's banquet.

* * * *

MUSSOLINI also held out to the Italian people the promise of future glories. What these will be, if any, remains, of course, on the lap of the gods. There is certainly a real possibility that the Italian setback in Spain may lead the Duce to stake everything in a fight to the finish with Loyalist Spain. Already, in fact, Count Dino Grandi has informed the London non-intervention committee that Italy has no intention of recalling its "volunteers" now in Spain. The next move by the Duce may be in the direction of reinforcing the Italian army fighting for Gen. Franco.

In any case, one fact has become very plain. The recent accord on the Mediterranean did not write finis to Anglo-Italian rivalry. That agreement turned out to be only a truce of relatively brief duration.

Before the ink was dry on the document its spirit was violated by the Fascist government in dispatching to Spain a new force of Italian soldiers. This had a very adverse effect on British public opinion, which flamed into renewed fury against Mussolini when, following the attempted assassination of Marshal Graziana, a systematic massacre was carried out in Addis Ababa at the direct instance of the dictator at Rome.

In turn, this outcry of British rage exacerbated the Fascist government and has now led Mussolini himself to strike out against his foreign critics.

There can hardly be any doubt that the anti-Italian press campaign in Great Britain and such denunciations of Italian activity in Ethiopia as those made by the Archbishops of York and Canterbury are viewed with alarm by Downing Street.

In the eyes of the British Foreign Office Italy is still regarded as a potential partner; it is Germany which is viewed as the real enemy. Yet the British press is no organ upon which the government can play at will as is the case in Germany and Italy. Thus the efforts of British statesmen to increase Anglo-Italian amity are thwarted by public opinion. Once again the world is being provided with the object lesson of how difficult it is for totalitarian and democratic nations to live in a state of harmony.

* * * *

IT IS NOT to be supposed, however, that Mussolini's savage speech of March 23 was simply the product of irritation with the foreign press and public opinion. He was moved by something more important than the gloating of the British Liberal and Laborite press over Italy's setback in Spain or the violent denunciation by British clericals and others of the massacre of Addis Ababa. What irks him more than anything else is the British rearmament program to which, as it happens, he cannot officially object.

This program was put into effect at a moment peculiarly unfavorable for Italy.

The Ethiopian war and the League's sanction program played havoc with Italy's financial and economic situation. Italy today is very close to the peak of its military, naval and air power. It cannot go much further in the direction of rearmament without courting bankruptcy and collapse. Yet it is now faced by the circumstance that during the next five years Great Britain plans to spend $7,500,000,000 for war preparations and of trying to match such efforts.

The ultimate effect of British rearmament, therefore, even though it is primarily directed against Germany rather than Italy, is certain to be a shift in the Anglo-Italian balance of military power very much in Italy's disfavor.

With each passing week, therefore, Mussolini realizes he will find himself less and less capable of continuing his policy of blackmailing the democratic nations into concessions.

* * * *

IN EUROPE he still has one great card left. He can still carry out the threat of a thoroughgoing alliance with Germany. But that is a dangerous card to play since it would mean making Italy the prisoner of the Third Reich.

The conflict of German and Italian policies in Austria, the Balkans and Europe generally has been suspended as a result of the creation of the "Berlin-Rome axis;" it has not been eliminated. Even an infuriated Duce is likely to hesitate a long time before burning all the bridges between Rome and London and Rome and Paris.

Mussolini's answer to British rearmament, therefore, did not take the form of a tightening of the link with Germany. His answer did take the form of increased Italian military activity in Spain and the assumption of the role of protector of Islam.

An Italian victory in Spain, one may surmise, was designed to prove anew to the world and to the Italian people the might of Italian arms while giving Italy a new base of operations in the Mediterranean.

Mussolini's Libyan tour, on the other hand, was in part, no doubt, designed to show Great Britain that without Italian friendship the British empire was vulnerable.

It is clear, however, that both Mussolini's Spanish ambitions and his role as the great and good friend of the Mohammedan world would be thrust into limbo if, in Spain, the weakness rather than the strength of Italy is revealed.

From this point of view the enormous potential importance of the struggle in the Guadalajara zone not only as an incident in the Spanish civil war, but as a landmark in Italy's bid for world power can hardly be exaggerated.

Court Change Seen Menacing Church Liberty

position to, religious or racial groups."

"The rights of minorities, the rights of religious liberty, the right of freedom of conscience, are matters with which we dare not trifle. No majority anywhere, anytime, has a right to amend or change the cardinal principles of our Bill of Rights, except through the deliberate and orderly method of amendment to the Constitution."

Edits Church Paper.

Dr. Graebner told the committee he was editor of a Lutheran Church paper of 225,000 circulation, had aired his views freely against the court plan, and had received no dissenting reaction.

He said "of course" there is no religious implication in the President's proposal, "but there may be consequences affecting religion."

"If it is permissible to ignore the provisions made for the adoption of amendments because there is a struggle between certain economic forces, it is permissible in matters involving the relations of church and state," he said. "The guarantees of religious liberty are no more secure than the guarantees of the same document against usurpation of executive power."

Cites High Booklet.

Graebner charged that "only last summer" in this country there was "an attempt to make the State a sponsor for certain religious views and policies."

"Stanley High issued a booklet in which he pointed out that New Deal legislation is simply the acceptance of discipline and leadership provided by certain spokesmen of Protestant, Catholic and Jewish connections. That for which 'the churches have long been contending' was urged upon the voters as a reason why New Deal policies should be continued—a somewhat attenuated, but none the less real, state religion."

(High, author of a recent magazine article on Democratic Party trends, claims to have been a White House adviser on some 1936 campaign speeches.)

Mentions Oregon Case.

Graebner also cited the Oregon case, and declared that "between those school cases of the early 1920's and the present situation, the analogy is obvious."

The witness said "pressure groups" have always "strained at the provisions which separate church and state." He said the same "pressure groups" are active today, and exhibited circulars to the committee, some of which he said were designed to "destroy the Jew."

"The movement persists to the present day and is issuing an enormous amount of literature, all directed to the end of adopting a Christian amendment and making Jesus Christ the ruler of the United States," he said.

"Separated by seven horizons from this category is the dictatorship assumed by some Protestant bodies in affairs of the state. It made, some years ago, the transition from a mildly erudescent social gospel to a decidedly pink socialism and has recently completed the cycle with the plunge into the reddest kind of political radicalism which clamors for a new economic order capable of providing the abundant life. The Good Neighbor pamphlet of 1936 sang the praises of this movement. It is intensely, passionately political."

Name Is Omitted.

Graebner did not name the organization. He is said to have included the name in an earlier draft of his statement, later eliminating the reference.

He assailed the preaching of "pacifism" in the churches, and declared "a new Stanley High, or the same one, would write you now a tract showing that the abolition of our Army and Navy would be simply bringing in the Kingdom of God."

Declaring there is "more than one dangerous type of churchmanship which might work upon the ambition of our statesmen," Graebner asked:

"If a future Chief Executive would remember the line of direct action which in 1937 was considered defensible in the economic strife, what could not be expected of some President with a Messiah complex who could unite in his support sectarians, ministerial alliances, Socialists, and a million unclassified crackpot pacifists and reformers by forcing, let us say, some anti-military measures through Congress, and then applying some arbitrary standard for the rebuilding of a Supreme Court to realize so great and moral a purpose?"

Dodds Denies Emergency.

President Dodds, of Princeton, who opened yesterday's opposition witness list, denied there is any national emergency making Supreme Court enlargement necessary. He differed sharply with the views of Edward S. Corwin, professor of constitutional law at Princeton, who testified for the plan last week.

When Senators reminded him of this, he said:

"This isn't a question of constitutional law. It is a question of political realism."

Puffing complacently at a pipe as he testified, Dodds said the President "has invented a scheme by which he hopes to control the opinions of the court."

"Stripped of excess verbiage," he said, "this is what the proposal amounts to. While the undated resignations of the new appointees may not be demanded and filed in advance, the result will amount to the same thing, and Americans have already deplored appointment to any office, judicial or otherwise, under such conditions."

Hits "Emergency Psychology."

Criticizing what he called the "emergency psychology" in support of the court plan, Princeton's president warned that the downfall of German democracy began with the issuance of "emergency decrees."

"I do not mean to charge that the conscious purpose of the present policy is to establish authoritarian government, without popular or judicial restraint," said Dodds, "but the consequence of the President's proposal, if adopted, will be a first step, and a long step, toward this result in its effect on the public mind."

He said government probably will continue to extend its control "over our daily lives," but should do so by Constitutional methods.

"Temporary maladjustments are no excuse for weakening an institution which, even hostile critics must admit, has so well protected the American people from the tyranny of public officials," this witness concluded.

Hirth, who rounded out the witness list for the day, told the committee he supported the President before Chicago, and stumped for him in the campaign. He described himself as a farm publisher and head of "the biggest farm co-operative in the United States." He said he never would have supported the President had he known Mr. Roosevelt had the court program in mind.

"It is safer that nine men should say what the Constitution is than that one man should have this authority," he told the committee.

"Two things about it stand out like mountains. He (the President) wants to say what the Constituion shall be. Second, he has no patience with amending it."

The religious discussion had a sequel in the Senate, where Senator Sherman Minton (Democrat), Indiana, read what he termed "scurrilous propaganda against the Jewish race," which he said was sent to him by express because "it was too indecent to get through the mails."

"Crackpot" Propaganda.

Minton read from a letter denouncing a recent mass meeting in Carnegie Hall, New York, addressed by three senatorial opponents of the court plan. Senator Copeland (Democrat), New York, one of the Carnegie Hall speakers, replied that the meeting was "a gathering of the common people," with Jews present as well as "Christian men and women."

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, another of the Carnegie Hall speakers, said the circular sent Minton was written by "crackpots." He said he opposed the court plan "upon principle alone," and was "saddened" at the necessity of breaking with the President.

The first opposition witness before the Judiciary Committee this morning will be Dr. Young B. Smith, dean of the Columbia University Law School. J. G. Wickey, Washington churchman, and Fred Brenckman, of the National Grange, also will testify today.

Four Cruises Arranged For Annapolis Class

Second Class Midshipmen at Annapolis will make three cruises to North Atlantic ports during the summer, in addition to the regular midshipmen's practice cruise of the First and Third Class to European ports, the Navy Department announced yesterday. One-third of the Second Class will be sent on each cruise, remaining members taking the regular aviation training course for Second Class Midshipmen.

The ports to be visited include Dahlgren, Newport, New London and New York. The gunboat U. S. S. Erie and six destroyers, U. S. S. Jacob Jones, Fairfax, Roper, Marley, Claxton and J. Fred Talbot, will be used.

Workmen Prepare White House Lawn For Egg-Rolling

Workmen were busy yesterday at the White House, erecting temporary buildings and conditioning the south grounds to stand up under the burden of 50,000 pairs of legs which will be scampering up and down the slopes at next Monday's Easter egg-rolling.

Last year 48,000 men, women and children participated in the traditional event, and the 1937 renewal is expected to draw still greater attendance.

From 9 a. m. to 3:30 p. m. the gates will be open to children 10 years of age or younger and their guardians. Adults unaccompanied by youngsters will be admitted between 3:30 and 5 p. m.

A number of boys' bands will play during the children's hours, and the Marine Band will give a concert beginning at 3:30. Boy and Girl Scouts will be on hand to look after the children.

With both the President and Mrs. Roosevelt due back at the White House for the holidays, they are expected to greet the throng from the south portico, probably with some of the grandchildren.

1st Navy Chaplain In 117 Years Will Open House Today

The first Navy chaplain to officiate in Congress since 1820, Capt. Edward A. Duff, chief of the Chaplain Division, Bureau of Navigation, will offer the invocation at the opening of the House this noon.

Capt. Duff, who lives 2400 Sixteenth street northwest, was invited to officiate by Dr. James Shera Montgomery, regular chaplain of the House for 17 years. The honor is frequently given to distinguished clergymen, members of the Catholic Church, Capt. Duff's denomination, the Church of Greece, Jewish rabbis and representatives of other faiths having officiated in recent years.

The last Navy chaplain to offer the invocation at the opening of either house was Burgess Allison, who was regular chaplain of the House in 1820. In 1823 he resigned to become a chaplain in the Navy. Although Army records were not available last night, spokesmen said no Army chaplain had officiated in several decades.

Capt. Duff has lived in Washington since July, 1935, when he became chief of the Chaplain Division, Bureau of Navigation at the Navy Department. He is one of five Navy chaplains to hold the rank of captain, the highest in his branch of the service.

Socialists Meet Friday To Study Labor Crisis

Chicago, March 24 (AP).—Roy E. Burt, executive secretary, announced today Socialist Party members of the United States would meet in special session here Friday to formulate a course of action as a result of "the upsurge of the labor movement."

Lady Day

By William Lyon Phelps.

The Annunciation.

Today, the 25th of March, is Lady Day, the Day of Our Lady, the Day of the Annunciation.

We hear a great deal about the union of all churches and the union of all Christians. I do not believe it would be possible to unite all churches in a common declaration of faith or any common ritual; and I am not at all sure that such a result would be beneficial. Religion is an individual matter; and it is fortunate that there is such a great variety of churches and forms of Christian worship so that everyone who wishes to can find the particular form most in harmony with his own aspirations and feelings.

* * * *

Thus it seems to me that we can have church unity without having church uniformity. But there is one thing, it seems to me, on which all Catholics and Protestants, and in fact all people of Christian spirit, can unite, although they have never done so. This is in an affectionate, reverent attitude toward the Mother of Our Lord. In the old days when the feeling between Catholics and Protestants, based on ignorance and prejudice, was quite different from what it fortunately is today, Mary was not often mentioned in Protestant houses of worship or among Protestant people. But it seems to me that all of us could unite in recognition of the First Lady of the universe. As we say "Our Lord," we can also say "Our Lady." And on this day especially devoted to her memory we can venerate her no matter whether we are Catholic or Protestant; for it should be remembered that the Catholics never worship the Virgin Mary, but they do venerate her. There ought to be something intimate and affectionate in our attitude toward the Mother of Our Lord.

On the Air Today

If radio ever follows the example of other lines of endeavor and makes an award to the most useful all-around man in the business, it ought to go to Harry von Zell. At least Von Zell should be 'way up in the ratings. You hear him as an announcer—but he's actor, talent scout, singer, script writer and production man.

As straight announcer he's heard on the Fred Allen, Stoopnagle and Budd and Ed Wynn shows. For this variety of weekly work he received top mentions in most of the early 1937 popularity polls.

For Fred Allen's "Town Hall Tonight" he serves as a regular member of the "Mighty Allen Art Players" cast and frequently "does" as many as six characters before the hour is over in one capacity or another. He also scouts talent for the Allen hour. He helped round up the amateurs when they were in vogue and now functions in a similar capacity in the case of the professional performers heard.

These little chores, however, just account for the daytime hours. Evenings he huddles over a typewriter in company with no less than Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle, helping with the Colonel's and Budd's scripts. Saturdays he turns impressario. He directs the rehearsals and broadcasts of the Wynn show.

As already reported in this space, Van Zell really earns his salt in my opinion when he makes the preprogram talk of welcome to the studios audiences of these three shows. Getting a studio audience in the proper humor for instance and full response to the comedian's funny business is important enough and Von Zell has a way about him.

Features today:

Pope Marcellus Mass—Palestrina's celebrated choral work in modern arrangement by the Eastern School of Music chorus and orchestra, WMAL, at 3:30.

Tyrone Power—Heads list of Vallee guests, WRC, at 8. With Edgar Bergen, Florence Desmond, English mimic; Bob Hope and Tony Sarg. Power will do a scene from "The Wind and the Rain."

"Show Boat" — Presents Ethel Barrymore in scenes from "The Kingdom of God." WRC, at 9. Also Vienna Choir Boys.

"Is a World System Possible?"—Discussion in "America's Town Meeting," by Lor Elton, member of Britain's House of Lords; Salvador de Madariaga, former Spanish Ambassador to the United States, and Nicholas Roosevelt, former United States Minister to Hungary, WMAL, at 9:30.

WJSV has concluded there must be something "in the line" rather than in the air. Specifically, its the line between the studio and the Raleigh's Pall Mall room. First Eddie Elkins, who is heard weekly from this supper room, married in February, soon after leaving the Pall Mall room. Then came Marjorie Naylor with the Sammy Robbins orchestra—and Hugh Conover, who announces WJSV's pickups from the Raleigh, soon found her so thoroughly enchanting that word now comes that he and Miss Naylor will be wed early in April. Yessir, there must be something about that mike over there. J. H. H.

Heart, Blood Vessel Diseases Largely Caused by Syphilis

By Gerald G. Gross.

(This article is one in a series to acquaint citizens with the tragic neglect of the venereal disease problem in the District of Columbia.)

Surgeon General Thomas Parran estimates that syphilis is responsible for 18 per cent of all diseases of the heart and blood vessels.

According to the most conservative authorities, there are 240,000 persons in the United States now suffering from cardiovascular syphilis and 20,000 of these die each year.

Incidentally, another syphilis death was reported to the Health Department yesterday. It was the eighth in March and the forty-third this year. This does not include deaths from general paralysis and locomotor ataxia, most of which, if not all, result from syphilitic infection.

Effect on Heart Important.

Following is the second of a series of articles contributed by prominent Washington specialists under sponsorship of the District Medical Society and the Health Department. Writing of the effect of "the greatest killer" on heart disease, this authority says:

Of the 20 various causes of organic heart disease, syphilitic heart disease is one of the most important, for these reasons: its cause is known; its prevention relatively easy; its cure possible.

Syphilis tends to attack the aorta (the great artery which carries blood from the left side of the heart) to cause signs or symptoms of heart disease 15 to 20 years after the initial syphilitic sore (chancre). It is much more common in men than in women—about 4 to 1.

By attacking the great vessel of the heart, it may produce dilatation or enlargement of this artery, or damage the adjoining valve, causing leakage of the heart, or by blocking the openings of the vital small coronary vessels (these supply the heart muscle itself). It may affect them so as to cause angina pectoris—the latter is most often found in middle-aged men.

In contradistinction to rheumatic heart disease (specific cause of which is unknown), syphilis is more important from one angle—that is, its cause is known and thus more can be done for the individual affected by this type of heart disease than the one affected by rheumatic heart disease.

Symptoms Confusing.

Symptoms of syphilitic heart disease are a trifle confusing—for the reasons stated above—in that, the great vessel of the heart is not affected until 15 or 20 years after the initial infection. However, the most prominent symptom is pain in the chest. Due to the enlargement of the heart, which is very frequent in syphilitic heart disease, the person will note shortness of the breath; rapid heart rate; easy fatiguability; and sometimes faintness. These should be danger signals for the person to consult his physician.

In the diagnosis of syphilitic heart disease, the blood Wassermann or Kahn Test is the most important finding in helping the physician arrive at the diagnosis—because, in a large proportion of patients with syphilis of the heart, or great vessel leading from the heart, this blood test is very often positive at one time or another. By no means is the heart always affected if a person has a positive blood test.

However, with other aids, such as a history and physical examination, especially with reference to the heart—and if the case is an early one, other instrumental aids, such as fluoroscopic examination or X-ray of the heart, along with an electrocardiogram (an instrument for tracing the heart), the diagnosis can be made much earlier and more definitely than in former years.

5 Years Added to Life.

The great benefit of early finding of syphilitic heart disease is that the patient through immediate treatment can have the affection arrested, and the cure is easier and more certain. The treatment of the moderately advanced cases of syphilitic heart disease has been revolutionized again within the past five years. These patients, who formerly looked forward to death within two years, have their span of life extended upward of five years and now are free from pain and other heart symptoms. Also a moderately large number have been returned to work.

In those with slight disability, due to syphilitic infection of the heart, those who will take enough treatments often do better than the person of a similar physical condition, who is affected by rheumatic heart disease.

Prevention of syphilitic heart disease is even more important than early diagnosis—for example: If a person has syphilis, and his heart has not been effected by the germ, by taking definite courses of treatment he can rest assured that his heart probably will never be affected—because the cure of syphilis is possible.

Prevention Steps.

The prevention of syphilitic heart disease therefore depends on, first, the prevention of the disease itself; secondly, on the early diagnosis and thirdly, the complete treatment of the disease when once it is acquired.

To summarize: The cause of syphilitic heart disease is known. We have more exacting means of detecting it in its early stages than formerly, and a cure is possible.

Even in the moderately advanced heart case caused by syphilis, life can be prolonged through treatment, and made much more comfortable than it previously was.

In tomorrow's article, an ear, nose and throat specialist will discuss syphilis in relation to diseases of those organs.

Bourne Will Aids 6 D. C. Charities

Six Washington philanthropic institutions were named beneficiaries of the estate of Mrs. Linne M. Bourne, who died in Atlantic City March 11, it was shown yesterday when a petition for the probate of her will was deposited in District Court.

St. Margaret's Church for the Home of the Poor is to have $3,000; the Community Chest, $4,000, and $1,000 each to the Association for the Blind, Child Welfare Society, Washington Home for Foundlings and the Animal Rescue League. The latter gift is made as a memorial to her son, Thomas Randolph Bourne.

Mrs. Bourne left $19,000 in real estate and $33,904.45 in cash, stocks, bonds and other securities. After all bequests are met, the rest of the estate is to be divided between three cousins, Alexander Macomb, Francis M. Smith and Herbert D. Smith. The Munsey Trust Company was named executor of the estate.

Wife Asks Divorce From G.H. Cushing

Accusing her husband of infidelity and desertion, Mrs. Ciel C. Cushing yesterday asked District Court to award her a divorce from George H. Cushing, who, the suit alleged, is a kell-known authority on the coal industry, and who formerly edited a publication for the industry.

Mrs. Cushing alleged her husband earned some $24,000 a year as editor of the publication. He recently gave that up, she asserted, and is now attempting to market a non-glare headlamp for automobiles. He has invested $250,000 in the invention, Mrs. Cushing said.

Through Attorney Jean M. Boardman, Mrs. Cushing said her husband had contributed nothing to her support in recent months, thus forcing her to live on the $50 a month she receives in a millinery shop. The couple has an adult child.

Bob Burns Says

Copyright, 1937

As long as we are contented, we should turn a deaf ear to all wild stories that make us dissatisfied with our lot. Nine times out of ten, if you git to the bottom of these wild tales, you'll find out that there's a catch in 'em. We had a married men's club down home that used to meet every Thursday night. You couldn't find a more happily married bunch of men anywhere.

Finally a new family moved to town and the man joined this club. Right away he started braggin' about bein' boss in his home. He bragged that he could stay out as late as he wanted to an go home whenever he pleased. Pretty soon all the other husbands started complainin' to their wives about not havin' any freedom, and they told their wives about this new man carryin' the latchkey.

A committee of wives called on this new lady and told her that her husband was settin' a bad example for their husbands. They said, "We even hear that you let your husband carry a latchkey." The man's wife said: "Well, yes, I do let him carry a key, jest to humor him—he likes to show it to the boys to show how independent he is, but the key don't fit the door!"

THE FEDERAL DIARY

Reg. U. S. Patent Office.

By Scott Hart.

Random Writing.

A girl over at Interior opened a letter, read it and said: "It's true all the time; after we get what we want, we don't want it" . . . The letter was from a lady in Charlotte-Amalie, Virgin Islands—where the palm trees grow and it's balmy all the time—who was seeking all the information, pamphlets and the like, on Alaska, where it's 40 below sometimes and not balmy or especially inviting . . . "The lady," said Interior's girl, "probably wanted all the information she could get, not long ago, on the inviting beauties of the Virgin Islands . . . Now she has the Virgin Islands and wants Alaska" . . .

• • • •

Just now, the Government is anxious for all letters and shipments intended for the Virgin Islands Capitol to be addressed to "Charlotte-Amalie, Virgin Islands . . . People who have visited St. Thomas, the Capital City, will find it in the same location, but officially it isn't St. Thomas now . . . The island people, through an ordinance in their Colonial Council, dispensed with the name St. Thomas and readopted the old Danish name, Charlotte-Amalie . . .

• • • •

And so Interior's girl, after philosophizing, brought forth another letter of tremendous appeal, if not, indeed, of tremendous opportunity . . . The letter was from two ladies, wealthy, who reside on the Island of St. Croix, certainly not an unpleasant spot . . . These ladies own a big estate called Clifton Hill, and they wished to notify the American Government that the estate would be open to winter tourists and others intent on remaining some time in the tropics. (This sort of thing, it was learned, is generally done down there) . . .

But the point is this: The two ladies have, by inheritance, come heir to a great and renowned distillery, located hard by the estate . . . They point out in the communication that the scenery is beautiful and that the serenity and delightful weather are too well known to require specification . . . So Clifton Hill, undoubtedly propped and pillared by the finest traditions of hospitality, would certainly extend all of its appointments and resources, which, in the scheme of things, would include the juices from the distillery . . . And so, in the sequence of things, life for the visitor would indeed be a tropical moon with a soft surf setting, all too splendid, indeed, to require specifications . . .

Between the hours of sunrise and sunset—April 15 to June 30, inclusive—all the streams on the eastern slope of the Blue Ridge may be fished . . . Which would seem to afford an excellent opportunity to those Government outing clubs . . . The place is the Shenandoah National Park, Virginia . . . These waters comprise approximately seven-eighths of the trout waters in the park . . . Streams of the western slope are to be kept closed for the season of 1937 . . . Catches in the open streams are limited to a maximum of 20 fish to an individual . . . Size limits are the same as those prescribed by the Virginia law . . . The park makes no charge for fishing, but the State requires anglers to have fishing licenses . . .

D. C. Hospital Transfer Plan Stirs Congress

Supply Bill, Including Proposal, May Go to House Tuesday.

King Disposed to Favor Control by Health Department.

Sentiment on the proposed transfer of the Capital's municipal hospitals from the Board of Public Welfare to the Health Department began to crystallize yesterday.

That the issue will be thoroughly aired in Congress was indicated clearly by the comments of Senators William H. King and Elmer Thomas and Representative Mary T. Norton.

The 1938 District supply bill, which delivers the hospital appropriations to the Health Department as disclosed yesterday in The Post, will be reported to the House not sooner than Tuesday, it was learned yesterday.

Senator King, chairman of the Senate District Committee, said he tends to favor the proposed reform, but withheld a more positive statement pending study of the question with the Commissioners.

Calls Setup Unsatisfactory.

"For the past year," he asserted, "I have wanted to look into this matter, but I have not had the time. I can conceive of the Health Department's having plenty to do to discharge its present duties, yet I am not sure it could not take on the operation of the hospitals.

"I am not entirely satisfied with the existing hospital setup and I shall give the question of their transfer very careful consideration when the supply bill is sent to the Senate."

Senator Thomas, chairman of the Senate sub-committee on District appropriations, said both defenders and opponents of the proposal will be given opportunity to testify before his group when it holds hearings on the measure, following House passage.

Mrs. Norton, chairman of the House District Committee, likewise said the proposed shifting of Gallinger Hospital, the Upshur Street Tuberculosis Hospital and the adult tuberculosis sanatorium at Glenn Dale, Md., from Welfare Board to Health Department control "must not be done on snap judgment." The "lady mayor" of Washington also was inclined to doubt whether the transfer could get by on the House floor without a "point of order" being raised.

Allen Noncommittal.

Commissioner George E. Allen, who has both the Bureau and Public Welfare and the Health Department under his official wing, was noncommittal because he has not yet learned officially of the action taken by the House sub-committee on District appropriations.

Allen's fellow Mississippian, Representative Ross A. Collins, is chairman of the sub-committee. The latter, who is vacationing in Florida, is reported to have shifted the hospital appropriations after being convinced by expert testimony that such action would be to the benefit of the public by eliminating the "twilight zone" where Health Department treatment leaves off and hospitalization, a welfare function, begins.

"Personally I am very much in favor of the shift," said Dr. A. C. Christie, chairman of the health committee of the board of Trade and a former president of the District Medical Society.

His committee is making a study of the city's health and hospital establishments, Dr. Christie declared, and probably will report by April 2.

Dr. Earl R. Templeton, public health chairman of the Medical Society, said his group will take up the issue at its meeting April 5.

"Undoubtedly there are merits to both sides," he asserted.

Dr. William Mercer Sprigg, president of th Medical Society, said he has begun to sound out members of the local profession and that his sole interest is adoption of a plan which will be in the interests of the public.

Forum Discusses D. C. Relief Needs

That Washington is in great need of money to be used for direct relief was the conclusion reached last night in a welfare symposium broadcast over radio station WJSV.

The money contributed to the Community Chest goes to charitable institutions, it was said, and the Congressional appropriation is insufficient. As a consequence many "people here are suffering."

Speakers were Herbert L. Willett, jr., director of the Community Chest; Dr. Frederick W. Perkins, chairman of the public assistance committee of the Board of Public Welfare, and Coleman Jennings.

Britain Is Democracy's Hope, Cutting Lecturer Says Here

HAROLD J. LASKI.

In Western Europe where "the sands of peace are rapidly running out," the England that 130 years ago saved Europe from Napoleon is again the hope to save democracy, Harold J. Laski, professor at the London School of Economics, said last night at Constitution Hall.

But this note of slight optimism which the political economist and liberal ended his Bronson Cutting memorial lecture on "Europe and the Future of Democracy" scarcely balanced the gloomy picture he described.

"One by one," he said, "the lamps of reason are going out. And there is no assurance that they will be relit." War impends, he said, after which, if it comes, there will be a "dark age in which democratic government will be legend."

Introduced by Landis.

The slim, spectacled and black-mustached Englishman was introduced by James M. Landis, chairman of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The crowd that nearly filled the huge square forum was intent, eagerly following his quiet but incisive speech.

Applause was greatest when Laski forecast "the coming victory of the popular front in Spain." Applause had come also previously when he had praised the courage "of the mass of the Spanish people defending against a dark and ugly onslaught."

Many members of Congress and many representatives of the Diplomatic Corps attended. Conspicuously absent from the list of diplomats who accepted invitations were representatives of Italy, Germany and Spain.

Laski opened his lecture by warning that it "will not be pleasant hearing," and saying he was a passionate believer in democracy for "under it men may best fulfill the potentialities of their personalities."

Describes Crisis.

Then the lecturer described the crisis in democracy—that Capitalism, now in a contracting form, can no longer satisfy the wants of the multitude. The result, he said, in Germany, Austria and Italy has been a union of old parties against those representing the people, and eventually the Fiscist dictatorship.

In the Fascist state, he said, capitalism suppresses democracy. For democracy to survive, he said, it must transform capitalism.

Then Laski described how he believes Fascism threatens to engulf Europe in a destructive war.

First, he said, to cover difficulties at home the Fascist nation adopts a "spirited foreign policy." Then this policy is challenged. Then there is more arming. Then another rearms. And so, he said, it continues until there is an "incident" born of mutual suspicion. Prestige must be maintained, and then "the nations march to war."

Calls Fascism Impermanent.

"There is no example known to me in which a class living by ownership of the instruments of production has voluntarily abdicated from their place of power," he said.

Because of this, he said, Fascism is born, but it is not permanent. For permanence, he said, a society must be built on a "just" foundation and must be able to confer betterment on the multitude.

The crowd laughed when Laski said that as a student of political science he looked not at party platforms but at the names of party contributors to determine its character.

"The party's heart lies in its treasury," he said.

In England, Laski said, there is a tendency to think an end of democracy there is impossible, because England is "different" and will again, "muddle through."

No Place for Optimism.

But there is no place for this easy optimism, he said. Similar causes result in similar effects, he added, and the same cause which operated in Germany, Italy and Austria are operating in England.

The real problem of democratic government, the lecturer said, is to resolve the paradox of capitalism—"poverty in the midst of plenty"—to remake the economic foundation of the State.

The audience applauded when the speaker said he did not believe the "orthodox economists" would lead the way to a solution to the problem.

"Here and there," he said, "you can find men and women battling for freedom."

"The vested interests would rather risk all that democracy has gained than abdicate."

"Men will begin to realize how urgent it is to keep democracy alive and act while it is yet time."

In conclusion, he said, of Western Europe:

"May we realize while there is time the glory of its traditions."

The audience hissed at one questioner who asked why England, which once tried to "exterminate" Germany, should seek support to try again. Laski replied that England had never sought to "exterminate" Germany.

British Policy Like U. S.

Laski's reply, which brought laughter, was that England's Spanish policy was curiously like that of the United States.

Asked if he believed capitalism and democratic principles were irreconcilable in a just society, he replied they are irreconcilable when capitalism reaches the limit of its expansion stages and begins to contract.

Laski found an optimistic future in France under Premier Blum who, he said, has made a beginning toward a just government.

The lecturer will speak tonight at Constitution Hall on "America and the Future of Democracy."

Churches Plan Special Rites For Holy Days

Services marking Maundy Thursday today, and Good Friday tomorrow were announced by Protestant and Catholic churches yesterday as they prepared to conclude another Lenten season.

The Catholic parishes will have eucharistic processions today, while many of the Protestant churches will present special ceremonies.

Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, dean of the Hartford, Conn., Theological Seminary, will be guest preacher at 8 p. m. at Holy Thursday services in First Congregational Church. The a capella choir of 60 voices, led by Ruby Smith Stahl, will sing.

In Grace Lutheran Church the Rev. Gerhard E. Lenski, pastor, will preach at Holy Communion scheduled for 8 p. m.

Dr. Herbert Scott Smith, rector of St. Margaret's Episcopal Church, will have charge of the annual night celebration of Holy Communion at 8 o'clock today. He also will conduct the three-hour devotional service beginning at noon tomorrow.

Clergymen from various parts of the United States and Canada will take part in Good Friday services for the Catholic Evidence Guild at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow in Franklin Park. The Rev. John Maloney, of Toronto, the Rev. Leon Aycock, of the Alexandria diocese in Louisiana, and Father Gerard Greenwald, of the Capuchin College in Brookland, will join in assisting the Rev. Charles A. Hart, moderator of the Guild, in presenting the Stations of the Cross.

New York Avenue Presbyterian Church will conduct its annual Easter Communion service at 8 o'clock tonight.

Holy Communion celebrated in many of the Protestant churches tonight will be in commemoration of the institution of the Lord's Supper.

Track Bill For District Is Recalled

House Group in Future to Ballot Secretly on Measures.

Racing Defended by Mrs. Norton as Source of Revenue.

House District Committee balloting henceforth will be done in executive session, with the press barred, Chairman Mary T. Norton announced yesterday after the committee had decided behind closed doors to recall the District race track bill.

She said other House committees go into executive sessions whenever they vote on bills and she could see no reason why members of the District Committee should be subject to embarassment when expressing their views on local legislation.

Citizens and interested parties will be admitted as heretofore to all committee or sub-committee hearings, Mrs. Norton said, but balloting will be secret.

Unanimous Recall.

The recall of the race-track bill was effected by unanimous vote upon motion of Representative Nichols (Democrat), of Oklahoma. Further action was postponed, the chairman said, until April 15.

Although Mrs. Norton insisted the recall does not kill the bill and that the concensus of the committee is that hearings should be held, opponents of the bill predicted it will not be reported out again during the current session.

Mrs. Norton issued a three-page typewritten statement following the committee meeting assailing what she termed "the unfair and one-sided publicity" with regard to the bill that has threatened to split the committee.

Policy Explanation.

It was the dissension over the race track bill and the dispute over the vote by which it was reported formerly that led to the decision of the chairman to hold executive sessions. Mrs. Norton said that while no vote was taken, the committee is in agreement with her on the change of procedure.

The Norton statement reviewed the history of the race track legislation, beginning with the Seventy-third Congress, when the Black bill passed the House.

Recalling that she had reintroduced the bill last session and again this session, Mrs. Norton said:

"I was of the opinion, as I still am, that not only are the people of the District entitled to witness horse racing within the District without having to travel 15 to 20 miles to the adjoining State of Maryland, but the District government being in dire need of revenue should receive this revenue instead of presenting it to the State of Maryland.

"Further, I considered the fact that since the unemployment situation is very serious here the erection and maintenance of a track would furnish considerable employment and help to alleviate some of the distressing conditions.

Letters of Opposition.

Mrs. Norton stated that since the bill had been reported she had received a number of letters from local organizations opposing establishment of a race track in Washington. Explaining that her "only interest in District legislation is to carry out the wish of the majority of the people of the District," she added that the letters had created "some doubt in my mind that the majority of the people want a track at this time."

Concluding, she cast a dart at opponents of the bill on the committee by saying:

"This is the first time in my experience that a bill has been opposed not on its merits. Certainly it is a new thing in legislative procedure that a bill, submitted in good faith, should be used as this bill has been used.

"If the people of the District are interested they will have another opportunity to demonstrate whether or not they have changed their attitude on a race track in the District since hearings were held a year or more ago."

Youthful 'Merchant of Venice' Is Produced by 12-Year-Olds

26 Children Stage Play Without Learning Lines or Imitating 'Business,' Developing Own Version From Character Study.

Twenty-six boys and girls, averaging 12½ years of age, through the Children's Community Theater staged their own version of "The Merchant of Venice" last night at the Roosevelt High School Auditorium. They performed under auspices of the Community Center Department of the public schools.

They developed their version in this manner: They studied the plot and analyzed each character. No lines were learned and no bits of formal action were imitated. The play was made to grow and develop out of the children's minds and imaginations, with a resulting poise and spontaneity which does not come when lines are memorized and business imitated, the sponsors feel.

The Washington Civic Orchestra provided music. Helen I. Burton directed the play.

Alcohol Association Officers Are Elected

Cherry Festival Date Will Be Selected Today

Spurred by requests for reservations from as far away as Omaha, Nebr., the Cherry Blossom Festival committee will meet today to definitely fix the date for the colorful spring celebration.

Several days ago after conferring with Parks Service horticulturists, the committee tentatively set the date for the festival at either April 2 or April 9. Today one of those two dates will be eliminated.

Weather Bureau experts, the Hagerstown Almanac, the left foot of a cross-eyed rabbit, cherry blossom experts and heartfelt prayers will be employed by the committee in selecting the definite date.

Meanwhile, the drive for funds to defray costs of the festival is being pressed with renewed vigor. The committee is approximately $1,000 short of its goal of $3,000.

The barge from which 10-year-old Sakiko Saito, daughter of the Japanese Ambassador, will alight through an artificial mist to be crowned Queen of the Blossoms was christened "Sakura Maru," or "Cherry Boat" yesterday.

The committee will meet at 2 o'clock in the office of Commissioner Melvin C. Hazen.

6-Man Group Investigating Jacobs Report

By James D. Secrest.

Chairman Mary T. Norton, of the House District Committee, last night announced the membership of a new sub-committee that will delve further into the Jacobs fiscal relations report and probably into the Senate District Committee report on District government reorganization.

Headed by Representative Kennedy (Democrat), of Maryland, the sub-committee is composed of Representatives Nichols, of Oklahoma; McGehee, of Mississippi, and Allen, of Delaware, all Democrats, and Dirksen, of Illinois, and Cole, of New York, Republicans.

The six-man sub-committee supplants two five-men sub-committees appointed earlier in the session. Nichols recommended yesterday to the House District Committee that these two units be dissolved as their work would overlap.

Representative Kennedy Ill.

The full committee yesterday did not discuss the suggestion of Kennedy that a full-time investigator-attorney be employed by the sub-committee to prepare bills and act as counsel at public hearings. Kennedy was not present on account of illness.

Whatever action is taken in this regard, it is believed, will depend upon the wishes of Kennedy and the new sub-committee. The names of William A. Roberts, former people's counsel, and E. Barrett Prettyman, former corporation counsel, have been mentioned by Kennedy as possibilities for the post.

Prettyman is reported to have stated he did not wish to take the job, while Roberts has intimated he would accept the appointment, if made.

The voluminous report prepared by Roberts, in association with Auditor Daniel J. Donovan and former Budget Director Lewis A. Douglas, will form the basis of any inquiry the House sub-committee may make into government reorganization.

Delay of King Inquiry.

Although Chairman King, of the Senate District Committee, initiated a similar inquiry almost two months ago, it has not yet been launched and there is reason to believe it may be delayed indefinitely because of the refusal of the Senate Committee on Accounts to approve a request for $10,000 to finance it.

Senator King planned to employ Roberts to conduct the Senate inquiry, which would have centered around the reorganization report made to the committee three years ago.

The matter may be discussed today when the Senate committee meets to clear its docket of pending District legislation.

The first part of the meeting, to begin at 3 o'clock, will be devoted to a public hearing on the controversial juvenile court bill, after which other bills, including the measure to prevent blindness in infants, will be called up.

SEC Retracts Charge Against D. C. Directors

Issues Stop Order on N. I. S. C. Statement of Registration.

The Securities and Exchange Commission yesterday retracted what it said in November about 20 prominent residents of Washington, directors of the National Invested Savings Corporation. The commission had said that while the names of these residents appeared in a prospectus, they knew next to nothing about the corporation.

Yesterday the SEC issued a stop order suspending the effectiveness of the registration statement filed by the National Invested Savings Corporation.

At the same time, it said former Senator James E. Watson, once Republican leader, and the other directors were not "mere dummies."

"Since the earlier hearing," the statement said, "additional testimony was adduced indicating that the directors actively participated in the conduct of the business, and that our earlier conclusion in this respect was in error."

Besides former Senator Watson, the directors listed by the National Invested Savings Corporation are Tom D. McKeon, former Democratic Representative from Oklahoma; Samuel L. Holton, holder of the Remington Medal, highest known in chemistry; David Burnett, former Internal Revenue Bureau official; Joseph McCoy, administrative examiner for the War Labor Board in the World War days; Fred W. Buck, former executive secretary of the Federal Dispensary Tax Reduction League; Admiral Mark L. Bristol, U. S. N., retired; William Tyler Page, minority clerk of the House; George S. Carll, Martin W. Hysong, Kelly Kash, H. C. Macatee, William Gerry Morgan, R. E. Miller, John H. Small, Arthur C. Smith, David D. Porter, Robert L. Ramsey and Arthur H. Ladner, jr.

While the SEC took back what it had to say about these directors, it emphatically reiterated what it previously had to say about the corporation's "general committee of national founders," prominent persons who were given stock to lend their names to the corporation and to help its agents sell insurance. The corporation planned to purchase the Washington General Life Insurance Co.

$4,009 Tax Protested By Behrends Executors

By the Associated Press.

Melvin Behrends, Milton Nathan and Philip May, all of Washington, as executors, protested yesterday to the Board of Tax Appeals a $4,009 deficiency assessed against the estate of Leopold Behrends, of Washington, who died in 1934.

They contended the Commissioner of Internal Revenue erred in determining at $135,000 the value of a realty interest at 722 Seventh street, and in placing the value of interest in a note at $2,154. They contended the value of the realty was $112,310, while the note interest was valueless at the time of Behrends' death.

R. O. T. C. Association Honors Four D. C. Men

Four Washington men were elected members of the board of governors of the R. O. T. C. Association of the United States, at quadrennial elections Tuesday. One of them, Lieut. Orvel Johnson, also was re-elected as director general of the association national advisory board, having served in the position for eight years.

Col. J. Miller Kenyon, Walter S. Steele and Col. Edward A. Harriman are the other new members of the board. A. Cressy Morrison, of New York City, was elected president. The association, with national headquarters in Washington, concentrated upon opposing the development of communism on the campuses of 150 schools and colleges in which military education is being carried on.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those nagging, aching, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous wastes out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, lumbago, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills. (Adv.)

District Legion Chapter Votes Against Pilgrimage to Europe

Because "the whole proposition seems to have the earmarks of foreign promotion," the District Chapter of the American Legion, meeting Tuesday night, voted unanimously against the Legion's annual pilgrimage to France and Italy.

Though it is entirely fitting, says the resolution as adopted, for American legionnaires and other World War veterans to visit the "sacred shrines of their fallen comrades" and it is a burning desire in the heart of every veteran to do so, "this year, according to the National Legionnaire, veterans are to be the guests of the French and Italian governments."

In addition, the resolution continues, "it is of doubtful propriety for American veterans of the World War to be guests of any former allied government that has defaulted on its obligations to the United States."

In announcing the invitations of France and Italy, the National Legionnaire, American Legion national publication, says, "The government of France will entertain the legionnaires for six days, furnishing free hotel accommodations, including food, and, yes, vin blanc and vin rouge. The Italian government, not to be outdone, is also planning generous entertainment and unusual accommodations."

Copies of the resolution were sent to 48 selected Legion posts in 48 States; to Harvey W. Colmery, national commander, and to Senator Hiram Johnson (Republican), of California.

The pilgrimage which the local veterans would boycott is scheduled to start in September immediately after the close of the national convention.

Grocery Concern Extends Leaves

Vacations with full pay for all of its regular grocery and produce warehouse employes was announced by the Sanitary Grocery Co. here yesterday.

The company now grants annual leave with pay to its personnel in all its warehouses, offices, stores and markets.

Some 2,600 persons are benefited. "Vacations are granted for the purpose of recreation and pleasure," say the Sanitary officials, "and we require that each employe be absent from his duties for the required time."

Last August the Sanitary announced shorter hours for its store personnel and again in November hours were reduced.

Cincinnati Alumni Dinner Set Monday

The local alumni of the University of Cincinnati will hold their banquet at the University Club Monday at 7 p. m. The celebration here will be simultaneous with the celebration at the university.

Radio Schedules 5 Health Playlets

Seven Roosevelt High School students were selected yesterday in a radio audition for roles in a new playlet to be given over the air Saturday in connection with the tenth annual early diagnosis campaign of the District of Columbia Tuberculosis Association.

"From Pharaoh to O'Brien" is the title of the first five playlets in a series which is entitled "Too Young to Die." The prologue will be spoken by Dr. Joseph A. Murphy, chief medical inspector of the public schools, at 11:45 Saturday over Station WOL.

The cast of the first playlet includes Bent Boving, Carol Hogan, Emma Jane Harbin, Edward Fowler, Joseph Acton, David Harpin, Thomas Colbeck, and Kay Kennard. In charge of rehearsals is Miss Esther Galbraith, speech teacher at Roosevelt.

Colored Man in Prison Named in Old Robbery

Curtis Lewis Knight, colored, 34, sentenced last month to from six to ten years in prison for robbery, was identified yesterday in a robbery that occurred last year, Detective Sergt. Robert Barrett explained that the complaining witness, Helen Young, manager of a High ice cream store, could not be located when Knight was arrested.

Yesterday Barrett recognized the woman as she walked past Police Headquarters and asked her would she attempt to identify her assailant. At a line-up in the District Jail, Barrett said she picked out Knight. No additional sentence was given the man.

Military School Delegates Hear Schwellenbach

'Good Neighboring' Offered as America's Safest War Preventive.

Furtherance of the "good neighbor policy," development of new markets in Central and South America to supplant European markets in wartime, and leadership in the fight to reduce tariff walls are the three things America should do to prevent being drawn into another world war, Senator Lewis R. Schwellenbach (Democrat), Washington, said at a dinner of the Association of Military Colleges and Schools of the United States at the Mayflower last night.

It was not a group of munition makers or Wall Street bankers who brought the country into the World War, the Washington Senator said, but the desire to sell surplus goods spread throughout all the people, and they regarded interference with their world markets as an infringement on their rights. He added that the same reaction will come again if new markets are not developed and if tariff barriers remain prohibitive.

Referring to recent neutrality legislation, he stated:

"We cannot stay out of a world war by the simple procedure of keeping our fingers crossed and sticking our heads in the sand." He added he did not mean to deprecate neutrality measures, but to emphasize that they alone will not solve the problem of war and peace.

Teaching Is "Salesmanship."

In the afternoon session of the association, Col. Roy F. Farrand, of St. John's Military Academy, stated: "Teaching is first of all a salesmanship job."

"The task is to sell the pupil the subject," he continued. "Given the benefit of inspirational instruction, no boy outside of an imbecile is hopeless."

Col. R. T. Jackson, of Western Military Academy, discussed the cultivation of a better understanding between members of the association, and told something of how this problem had been solved in the Middle West.

A "round-the-clock" schedule that had proved particularly effective in one school was discussed by Col. T. J. Roller, of Augusta Military Academy. The importance of religious training as a foundation for high-standard school work was pointed out in a talk by Dr. John T. Wicker, of Fork Union Military Academy. Regulations governing old and new students were outlined by Col. C. R. Endsley, of the Tennessee Military Institute. A round table discussion of this subject ended the program.

Col. Pearson President.

Yesterday morning, Col. Guido F. Verbeck, of The Manlius School, in a speech on "Educational and Social Guidance," talked about the importance of military training in later education and as a social asset.

Maj. W. R. Brewster, of Georgia Military Academy, discussed a new experiment in improvement in letter writing and Col. A. M. Hitch talked on "Vocational Guidance," pointing out that the secondary school could well devote its attention to other phases of guidance, since boys could get vocational training later. Dean Theodore Distler, of Lafayette College, spoke on the subject "How Can Private Schools Best Prepare Boys for College?"

Col. D. C. Pearson, of New Mexico Military Institute, was elected president of the association, whose final session will be held today. Other officers elected were Col. H. B. Moore, of the Greenbrier Military School, vice president, and Col. J. M. Sellers, of the Wentworth Military Academy in Missouri, secretary treasurer.

WPA Handicraft Shown at Store

An exhibit of the handicraft of the 1,310 women working in the 21 sewing rooms operated by the District WPA was placed on display yesterday in show windows of Garfinckel's, Fourteenth and G streets northwest.

More than 300,000 garments for men, women and children, as well as household furnishings, have been produced.

Of articles of wearing apparel produced, 129,384 were garments for boys and girls up to the age of 14 and 59,732 for infants.

All articles are distributed among local needy, and charitable institutions. The exhibit of WPA women's handicraft will continue through Wednesday.

Allen Orders Inquiry to Cut Fire Insurance

Firms Accused of Refusing to Slash Rates With Excess Profits.

An investigation of local fire insurance rates has been ordered by Commissioner George E. Allen as a result of complaints that insurance companies are refusing to share excess profits through reduced premiums.

Although Allen refused to reveal the objective of the investigation it was indicated the Commissioners are contemplating asking Congress for authority to regulate fire insurance rates.

Fire insurance companies for the last several years have been paying out only approximately one-third of the amount they collect for fire losses, Allen was told. The remaining two-thirds reverts to the treasuries of the companies.

Although in Virginia and a number of other States the fire insurance companies are allowed to retain only 50 per cent of the amount they collect in premiums, J. N. Moor, District Superintendent of Insurance, has no authority to govern fire insurance rates. The companies, under present interpretation of the law, are required merely to file their rates and financial condition with Moor.

In 1934 the more than 200 fire insurance companies operating here collected $3,800,000 during the year and paid out in fire losses only $1,295,000.

It was pointed out that, if the District had a rate-making body such as exists in Virginia, a substantial reduction in rates could have been ordered for the ensuing year.

Large fire losses in Washington are extremely rare because of its lack of commercial fire hazards, its wide streets, its efficient fire department and the fact that most of the dwellings here are of fireproof construction.

Jane Wyatt says:

"Luckies are a light smoke my throat approves and my taste prefers"

"I first chose Luckies about five years ago because I had noticed that other actors and actresses seemed to prefer them. I enjoyed Luckies so much I've smoked them ever since. In the new picture, 'Lost Horizon', in which I was Ronald Colman's leading lady, the film ran 36,000 feet—almost 7 miles—before it was cut down. That gives you some idea how much work it was and what a strain it put on my throat. Luckies, I feel, are the obvious cigarette for an actress. They are a light smoke that my throat approves and my taste prefers."

Jane Wyatt

FEATURED IN NEW COLUMBIA PICTURE "LOST HORIZON"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Wyatt verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

Should She Marry Man She Doesn't Love to Get Away From Fault-Finding Aunt? Orphan Asks.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: When you answer this letter it means a soul either saved or lost. My mother died when I was born, leaving my brother and me. He was 8 years old at the time, and we were taken in by mother's sister. I am now 19 and he is 27. I have been denied every privilege since cradle days. I could not go to college or have any higher education because of lack of money. I am trying to keep house for my aunt, which is the unhappiest task I have ever tried.

• • • •

I can't go to school dances unless my 16-year-old girl friend asks permission for me; I can't go to the theater alone, which is four blocks from our house; I can only visit one girl friend because the others aren't good enough to associate with. If any young man comes to see me my aunt starts saying, "He doesn't mean you any good." If I try to bake cakes or cookies I am wasting ingredients which could be better used.

• • • •

When company comes my aunt shows off by inventing all sorts of embarrassing stories about me. The more I do to try to please her the more she fusses. When anyone comes to see me she cuts off the heat and makes remarks intended for their ears, such as "Some more common trash." If I am invited anywhere I don't have the proper things to wear. When some of her own friends come she serves drinks and sandwiches, and she often has parties and regularly entertains her club. I have to prepare for these parties and clear away the mess afterward, and take her cussing out for everything that goes wrong. I am just a slave for her.

• • • •

There is a nice young man of 27 who is madly in love with me. He knows my circumstances and wants me to marry soon. He can afford a wife but I don't love him. I might gain a lot that would be an improvement over my situation, but I still don't think it would be fair to either of us to marry him without love. I want to work. These are things I can do: Operate an elevator, work in a beauty shop, be a waitress or do nursing, be a maid or sing on the stage. Please advise me what to do. I want to be fair to my aunt. After all, she has done for me for 19 years and I would like to repay her.

• • • •

What would you do? Would you marry? Would you leave home and seek work? Would you stay at home and seek work? Or would you commit suicide? Please let me know as soon as possible. Thanks a million. Truly yours,

LITTLE GINGER.

The Thing to Do.

DEAR LITTLE GINGER: Don't marry a man you don't love in order to get away from the petty tyranny of a fault-finding aunt. Tied down at an early age to the responsibilities of wifehood and possibly motherhood, you might find your last state considerably worse than your first. For now, at least, you have hope; and then you might have none. If you possess abundant self-confidence, average intelligence, good health, willingness to work, dependability of character, and a fairly pleasing personality, you ought to be able to change the face of your situation without doing anything so melodramatic as eloping.

• • • •

My advice to you is to stay at home and seek work. Scour the community for any kind of job: nurse maid, housemaid, mother's helper, waitress, cook, store clerk, or whatever occupation suggests itself to you mind. You might tell your aunt that you are job-hunting; that conditions have become so unbearable you feel you must get a job and make a life of your own, or otherwise you may feel driven to run off and get married. If she realizes you are feeling desperate, she may change her attitude somewhat, for I have no doubt she loves you after her fashion and would be disturbed if she thought you were really suffering.

M. H.

Wants Legal Aid.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am 24 years old and have been married. I have been separated from my husband for more than three years. There are no children. I left my husband because of his cruelty to me, and have since supported myself. I wish to obtain a divorce from him and I do not want any support. I would like to know if there is any agency or lawyer here in the District prepared to render such a service for a small fee. I am poor and earn only a small salary. Respectfully yours, B. Y.

• • • •

DEAR B. Y.: The Legal Aid Bureau, located 1010 Vermont avenue, in the Denrike Building may be able to furnish you with a list of local lawyers who will handle your case for a minimum fee. This bureau, which is a social agency, furnishes free legal representation to persons unable to pay for such services; and also, I am told, keeps a list of attorneys who are willing to give of their services for half-pay or less, as it were, in really deserving cases.

Etiquette of Dating

IT'S FUN to date Peggy. She accepts by saying, "Oh, I'd love to!" She says good night with "I had a grand time." And the hours between run smoothly.

She knows that at a dance the young man should take his "date" to the door of the club or hotel before he parks his car. If he doesn't think of this little courtesy, she says, "Why not drop me off first? I'll get my primping done and meet you near the east door of the ballroom." He's glad when he sees other smart couples following this custom that Peggy tipped him off.

If he says she dances well, Peggy doesn't embarrass him, make him seem insincere, by saying, "Aw, that's just your line." She says with a pleased smile, "How nice of you to tell me."

If they drop in somewhere for a bite to eat after the dance and see Dave and Sally eating, Peggy gives a friendly nod and smile and a "How do you do," and passes on. If she stopped to chat, Dave—gentleman that he is—would have to rise.

No wonder Peggy's date book is full! Even so, she's tactful in turning down dates. "Sorry, but I'm going to be busy Tuesday," she says simply, without inventing elaborate excuses for not going out with a boy she doesn't like. He'll catch on by and by to the fact that she prefers other company. But she hasn't said anything to hurt his feelings.

Our 40-page booklet, "Etiquette for Every Day," tells you what to do and say, no matter where you are. Learn the gracious ways that make you admired at dances, dinner, theater.

Send 15 cents for our booklet, "Etiquette for Every Day," to The Washington Post Home Institute, 109 West Nineteenth street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

If you'd like to get to work on something pretty in handwork for your house, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for the writer's bulletin, "Things to Make for the House." It contains directions.

Lacy Pompons in Jabot Effect Tend to 'Pep Up' Dark Frocks

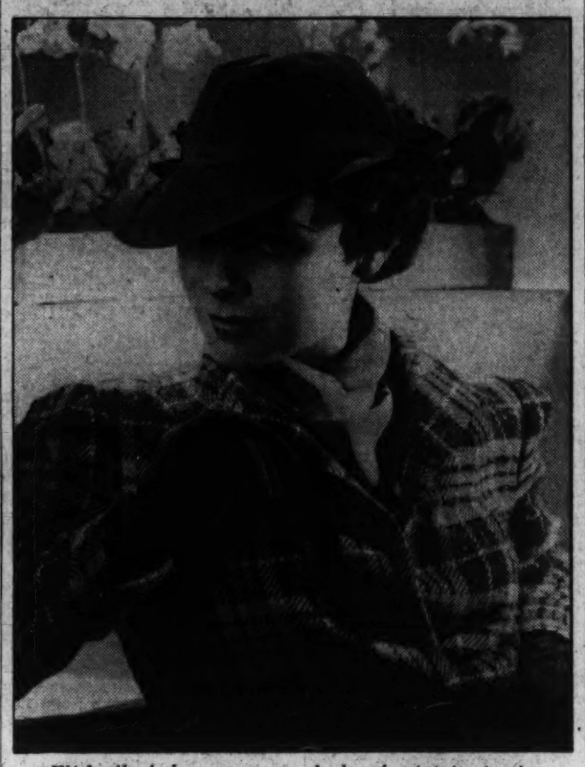
By Alice Brooks.

HERE'S BEAUTY for spring—for fashion demands frothy, fluffy bits of neckwear to "pep up" dark or plain frocks. Crochet lacy pompons, to wear in jabot effect as shown, in a pair close to the neck or outlining the neckline. Irish crochet roses are "tops" for a jabot of simple mesh, while the dainty, petal-shaped collar would be lovely in string or petit boucle. Smarten your spring suit with boutonniere of colorful cherries, crocheted in wool. In pattern 5827 you will find complete instructions for making the neckwear and boutonniere shown; an illustration of it and of the stitches used; material requirements.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to The Washington Post, Household Arts Dept., 259 West Fourteenth street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your name, address and pattern number.

You Can Be Casual for Easter



With all of the romance and ultra-femininity in the current fashion scene, you might dare to be different and affect a casual, classic-like costume for Easter, like the smart model above. It has swank, youthful styling and color, besides exploiting the latest ideas in clothes of this type. The gay plaid topcoat is topped by a feminine version of the man's classic felt hat, repeating one of the colors in the plaided design; for instance, king purple, crown gold, regal blue or British tan. Gloves could match either the hat or frock in colors. The frock to accompany an outfit of this type should be either wool or silk in a simple, softly tailored styling.

CAPITAL MANNERS

By Margaret Wallace.

Guest Who Outstays Welcome Is Frequent Problem in Washington.

THE GUEST who does not know when to go home is well known to many Washington households. Many hostesses have written complaining of this type of nusiance, but now this department for the first time is in receipt of a letter from such a guest. A young girl writes as follows:

I have been the guest in the home of the mother of my fiance for two weeks. I was invited for ten days but had such a good time my future mother-in-law and my fiance invited me to stay the two weeks out. Since that time I have been invited to several parties which will take place within the next ten days and I am having such a good time that I do not want to go home. My fiance has not said anything about my remaining. He even said that when I went he was going to work overtime so that we would have more money when we marry. I notice that my future mother-in-law has not asked me to stay and has left me out of a number of her plans for next week. I want to stay very much. Do you think it would be proper for me to say I want to stay. Do you think it would be better to hint. I am surprised because they both know of the invitations I have received. I found out that they only have an extra maid when I am there. Do you think I could pay the maid and then it would be proper for me to stay?"

Should Leave at Once.

If this young girl is wise she will go home at once. It is very evident that her future mother-in-law and her fiance expect her to go. The fiance may want her to stay but he is doubtless undergoing much embarrassment because his mother thinks the young woman should depart. This young girl made a grave mistake when she remained over the ten days she was invited. It would be very bad form to offer to pay the wages of the extra maid."

As rude as the guest who does not know when to go home is the guest who comes for an allotted time and leaves beforehand in spite of the fact that the hostess has made plans for her entertainment and invited people to meet her. Of this problem a girl writes as follows:

My college chum came to visit us recently. We invited her for two weeks. I planned a dinner-dance for her and invited some of her friends from a nearby city to be our house guests for the dance. My aunt also invited people to dinner to meet her. The day before my dance our guest announced that she was getting homesick and that she was rather bored with Washington and thought she would go home. She said that doubtless we would be glad not to give the party for her as parties were a bore and lots of trouble and expense. I was afraid that she was offended at something and talked to her privately. She said that she was not offended at all but the thought of having to be polite to so many people and get tired appalled her. I consulted her before I arranged my dinner-dance and she seemed eager for it. In fact, she was the one who first suggested it. Do you think she was courteous? My mother has forbidden me to ask her to visit us again and has refused to allow me to accept an invitation to visit at her home in another city."

Guilty of Rudeness.

This young girl was, of course, guilty of great rudeness and lack of consideration. No one would want her for a guest, and a guest in her house could not expect much courtesy when her standards on such matters are so incorrect.

Lots of us are eager about parties, until the date arrives. It is only polite to be just as enthusiastic and to express gratitude to the hostess who has arranged the party for us.

Cabbage, Olives Good Combination

'California' Dish Will Vary Lenten Menus.

"CALIFORNIA CABBAGE" is an unusual blend of gently sauteed cabbage and ripe olives which will give desired variety to Lenten menus. Both cabbage and ripe olives are valuable carriers of vitamin A, so that the recipe should prove useful for regular introduction into menus for that reason alone.

The heightened sweetness of cabbage cooked in this manner and the interesting blend of flavor with ripe olives are added inducements.

California Cabbage.

1 medium sized cabbage
½ cup butter or other fat
4 tablespoons chopped onion
½ cup water
1 cup sliced ripe olives
4 tablespoons vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons sugar (optional).

Shred cabbage. Melt butter in heavy frying pan, add cabbage, onion and water; cover and allow to cook slowly until cabbage is tender. Add remaining ingredients and continue cooking about 10 minutes to blend flavors. The sugar may be added if desired.

Serves 4 to 6.

Today's HEALTH TALK

By Dr. Logan Clendening.

The vitamins finally got into the U. S. Pharmacopeia, the eleventh revision, and methods of standardizing them by experiments on animals are described.

In a phamacal laboratory in North Chicago the other day I saw some white rats which were being prepared to test vitamin A products. Vitamin A had been excluded from their diet for some time, and very sorry looking rats they were. When they have attained the eye effects of vitamin A deficiency, the stubstance to be tested, such as cod-liver oil, is fed them. If they gain in weight and their eye condition improve in a standard period of time, the product is judged potent. It is measured in units on the basis of the weight of the rats, and one gram (about one-fourth of a teaspoon) must contain 600 units to be acceptable.

When animals and humans are given diets deficient in vitamin A, the mucous membranes dry up and the skin becomes keratinized. Here we have grandmother's scruff hands and the reason of her feeling that if she could only get "a mess of greens or some tubers," she would feel better. The rationalization of the tuber idea is found in the fact that carrots contain a substance known as carotene, which is the precursor of vitamin A in the body. Carrots are changed into vitamin A by the metabolism of the body and act to prevent all the signs of vitamin A deficiency.

Vitamin D in Sunshine.

Another important vitamin—vitamin D—is found in the spring sunshine. Rickets, the disease of darkness, appears in the spring after the long winter night, unless the young body (it occurs only in children) is protected by the use of cod-liver oil or some similar vitamin D-containing substance.

Vitamin D also appears in the Pharmacopeia, and a product which claims to contain it must conform to certain tests made on rats, and contain at least 85 units of "D" per gram.

It is not wise to try to take too much vitamin D, as large doses of it will result in excessive deposition of calcium salts in the blood vessels and kidneys. Viosterol, a drug which contains large amounts of vitamin D, is quite potent, and it is estimated thath two-millionths of a grain is the daily average maintenance dose.

A new vitamin—F—has been suggested, deficiency of which causes thickening, dryness and roughness of the skin, brittleness and thinning of the hair, and brittleness of the fingernails. Soaps, manicure preparations, hair preparations and face creams have been suggested as suitable agencies for this vitamin.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Seven pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 1 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a 3-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

Pleasant HOMES

By Elizabeth McRae Boykin.

BATHING is no everyday luxury, even if it is an everyday habit. No indeed—it has a regal history, as you know from high-school classes in history, explaining the grandeur of the baths built by the Roman emperors. And so we really feel that any lady should strike a queenly note when she takes a bath. Even if it's a strictly private affair, it will give her a fresh lease on poise to carry her grandly through the day. That calls for something flowing and becoming in the way of a negligee.

And a bathroom that's more than just adequate. Recently we visited Helen Hayes' home and we were so delighted with all the bathrooms in the genial old white clapboard house where she lives with her clever husband, Charlie MacArthur, and her little girl, Mary, who has two long blonde pigtails down her back.

But especially with Miss Hayes' own bathroom which was mostly in very pale beige. First it was larger than most bathrooms, and included a small size upholstered sofa and a dressing table-lavatory. The plumbing fixtures were all pale beige and so were the walls, and the floor was covered in a deep napped rug, also beige, and the tiny sofa was beige, too. The only note of color was a picture, reproduced after Van Gogh, with lots of that lovely light yellowy green that he used so pleasantly.

Of course, most of us can't go in for any such grandeur in the bath as that. But there's lots to be done with just an ordinary bathroom—emerald-green paint above the white tile of the walls, for instance, with an emerald-green fuzzy mat and bath linens with huge emerald-green monograms. Emerald-green oil-silk curtain and dressing table skirt, too. Or try scarlet instead of green to pep up your plain white bathroom.

If you prefer something daintier, coral is delicious, so is lavendar. Then you might add a flowered wall paper border all around the walls for pure frivolity.

Cheese Carrots Are Specialty of Senator Hattie Caraway.

By Pattie Ellicott.

IN LENTEN DAYS the housewife is ever on the search for meat substitutes to add variety and proteins to the daily diet and still keep in step with the general rule of little meat during the season of penance. Senator Hattie Caraway, of Arkansas, has found a solution for this demand in a tempting dish "Cheese Carrots," which is colorful, tasty and satisfying.

Guests at Senator Caraway's home in Arkansas, or Washington, for that matter, smile with pleasure when this dish is served at any meal.

The cheese carrots are prepared in the following manner: Grate any yellow American cheese, add cream to it to make of the right consistency to mold, then roll into carrot cones, dust with paprika; stick a bit of parsley in the end of it and it would take an expert to decide whether or not it was a real carrot.

This is a tempting addition to salad and often at holidays Senator Caraway has it on the salad plate with the salad itself served in apple cups, thus making an attractive color combination.

Bag Aids 'Picking Up.'

You'll find the task of "picking up" around the house much simpler if you carry a paper bag around with you while going through the rooms.

Flying Easter Fashion Show Presents Newest for Spring

Aerial Style Group Presents Advance Easter Parade.

By Ethel Ehlen,
The Post Fashion Editor.

AN EASTER PARADE of spring fashions descended upon Washington from the air yesterday. To acquaint women of the entire country with the type of clothes smart New York women will wear Easter Sunday, a traveling fashion show was assembled in New York by Viola Shefer, and has been displaying spring wardrobes from coast to coast, commuting via American Airline Flagship. The clothes and accessories selected from leading style sources are available in a number of the Washington stores and shops.

The Washington showing for the fashion press and store executives was held at the Mayflower Hotel. Mannequins displayed the latest styles sponsored by leading American designers. If you want to follow the lead of the best-dressed women in New York, here are some timely suggestions:

A copper-colored novelty silk frock with long sleeves, featuring shoulder tucking, topped by a rough straw, medium-sized cartwheel hat of the same shade with grosgrain ribbon as the decorative medium. With this outfit was worn a sable-dyed Kolinsky coat in the new short length; a dark brown quilted leather bag, slip-on glace kid gloves of the same tone and brown calfskin shoes, high-cut with porthole cutouts.

White Linen With Black.

A clever jacketed-frock of sheer black woolen, was accented with a white linen blouse and detachable white linen lapels on the coat. The accompanying black toyo stray hat of the Breton sailor style was bound with black satin. Twin silver fox scarfs gave a luxurious touch to the costume—the white note echoed in the doeskin gloves. The handbag and shoes were both of black patent leather stitched in white.

Black sheer woolen and print merged to fashion a chic dress-maker costume, print being chosen for the blouse and appliques on the coat lapels. The hat, bag and gloves were black—a bit of color being introduced into the accessory theme by the royal blue chiffon band on the hat. Following the current vogue for gabardine shoes, those to acompany this ensemble were of black mesh and gabardine with calf accents.

Simplicity Stressed.

Kay Morrison, a young American designer who creates young and sophisticated clothes, noted for simplicity with ingenious detail, furnished all the costumes for this novel Easter fashion showing. The hats were by Florence Reichman, who is following a romantic theme throughout her spring collection. She advocates a classic model well balanced in detail with a minimum of trimming.

Richard Koret, one of America's foremost handbag designers, who also creates for smart European shops, designed the unique bags displayed. The shoes were by Schwartz and Benjamin; furs by C. G. Gunther's Sons; gloves from Ireland Bros. A new "dewy" make-up by Richard Hudnut was worn with all of the costumes.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes.

By Alice Hughes.

New York, March 24.

State pride is something to shun, but I can't resist pointing out that two New York State ladies have just passed 101 years on two wheels. They are Mrs. Mary Ann Crance and Mrs. Emma Bates, both residing within buggy distance of the thriving town of Bath. And both ladies have the same slogan to offer us youngsters of 60 and 20. It's "Don't worry!" Thanks very much girls—but easier said than done!

I have just received a full bulletin from Schiaparelli, who is the great French designer, Italian-born, and who spent many of her happiest and most productive years in our own Greenwich Village. That is evidently what it takes to be a French coutouriere!

Schiap goes for gloves with a ring finger, and gloves which may be worn on either hand. She even mentions a "cow's head" on a button—though this I pass without a bid. Here Schiap had me whipped.

Now shall we leap to her hats? Why not?

I quote her own release. "Flirt with the silly sailors. Frivol with flower-filled baskets! Frolic in shapes like a ship's funnel!" Can you make any sense of this? Then you have poor old Hughes lashed to the mast!

I spare you the rest of the incomparable Schiap's amazing release. But, believe me, it would drive you daffier than the above! Do you wonder that my kind are often bustled off to the rattle box?

The weatherman saved up all the winter's nasty weather for this month here. Snow, sleet, rain and slush to tht ankle have been our lot up to now. The girls now busily are praying that he will let up by Sunday, so that they can parade their finery in safety.

Speaking of modeling, it is now the top profession for pretty girls here. Not only is it pleasant work, but leads both to Hollywood and good marriages. Greenberg has just published the first text-book for prospective mannequins. It is called "Modeling for Money," and was written by a successful mannequin under the nom de plume of "Carol Lynn" . . .

Well, I see that really great story teller, Somerset Maugham, has launched his newest novel straight at us, and few there are of us who will dodge. Local critics seem to lean to the notion that "Theater" is not exactly top-drawer Maugham—but how the man can spin a tale! . . .

TOWN TIDBITS of the dizzier type—

Have you seen the new magazine, Congratulations? It began this month with 35,000 mailed to hospitals as soon as the publisher is sure that mother and baby are doing fine.

The two most near-sighted girls in show business—Libby Holman and Joan Bennett. Both wear specs when not on parade.

A local clergyman thundered from his pulpit last Sunday against the present type of idolatry that threatens us. He calls it "auto worship."

Now that the general market trend is up, Charles Darrow goes and invents a new stock market game called "Bulls and Bears." He's the fellow that created "Monopoly" a couple of years ago and cleaned up.

There was a terrific auction sale of old blue platters at a fancy gallery here the other day. The top price was $1,600 for an old blue Staffordshire item bearing the coat of arms of Pennsylvania, snatched by F. S. Gaillard. Important money for a platter, however old and blue! Not even a chicken on it, either.

Child's Library Is Incomplete Without Bible

Many Roots of Occidental Literature Have Their Origin There.

By Alice Clarissa Richmond.

MANY children's libraries seem complete to the casual observer. They contian fairy tales, folk lore, mythology, poetry, the classics, some history and biography, travel, an encyclopedia, atlas and dictionary. What more is necessary?

Again and again the most important item of our literary heritage has been omitted—the Bible.

Whether or no it is looked upon from the religious point of view is beside the question. Half of literature is unclear unless one knows its background, and many roots of Occidental literature have their origin in the Bible.

Contrary to what many people think, the Bible is not a book, but a whole library. It is the literature of the Hebrews and early Christians. On the literature of the Hebrews and Greeks is founded the culture of the Western world. Therefore, if the Bible, at least as literature, is left out of the children's education, half the foundation of their culture is lost.

Titles, references, quotations from the Old and New Testaments abound in literature, for they have become an integral part of speech:

"A land flowing with milk and honey," "the plagues of Egypt," "eye for an eye," "the widow's cruse," "the widow's mite," "he drives like Jehu," "Job's comforters," "go to the ant, thou sluggard," "hope deferred," "pride goeth before a fall," "heap coals on fire," "vanity of vanities," "eat, drink and be merry," "the golden bowl," "the house of mirth," "the fruit of the tree," "the valley of decision."

These are a very few of the phrases in everyday use, which eventually will lose their meaning unless the children are as familiar with the Bible as they are with Homer and Shakespeare.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt Returning to Capital

Lord, Lady Tweedsmuir to Arrive at White House Monday; Will Be Guests at Dinner Tuesday for Katherine Cornell.

Mrs. Roosevelt will return to the White House tomorrow morning after a trip through the South and West, and the President, who has been at Warm Springs, Ga., will come back to Washington early Saturday morning.

Monday afternoon the Governor General of Canada and Lady Tweedsmuir will arrive to be guests at the Executive Mansion, and Tuesday will be among those present at the dinner the President and Mrs. Roosevelt will give when the National Achievement Award is presented to Miss Katherine Cornell.

The Secretary of State and Mrs. Cordell Hull will be hosts at luncheon Wednesday in honor of Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, and that evening the visitors from Canada will be the guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at dinner. Thursday the Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay, will be host at luncheon for them.

Training Ship's Officers Entertained at Embassy

The Counselor of the French Embassy, M. Jules Henry, also entertained at a dinner last evening in honor of the officers of the French training ship, Jeanne d'Arc, anchored at Baltimore. In the absence of the Ambassador and Mme. Georges Bonnet, who are at Palm Beach, M. Henry entertained at the Embassy on Kalorama circle.

Officers of the ship present were Commander Capt. Henri Latham, Chief Surgeon Lafargue, Chief Engineer Manach, Chaplain Galiaci, Capt. Briot and Capt. Bonnet.

The other guests were Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of the Navy; the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Edison, the Chief of Naval Operations and Mrs. William D. Leahy, Rear Admiral and Mrs. William S. Pye, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Thomas C. Hart, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. Hugh Matthews, Capt. and Mrs. William D. Puleston, Capt. and Mrs. Paul Bastedo, the French Naval Attache and Mme. Sable, the Military Attache and Mme. Lombard, the Air Attache and Mme. Champsaur, the First Secretary, M. Roger Guacheron, with his sister, Mlle. Simone Gaucheron, and the Attache and Mme. Charles Lucet.

The Italian Ambassador and Donna Matilde de Suvich were the guests in whose honor Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom entertained at dinner last evening at their home on Columbia road.

Others in the company were the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Henry A. Wallace, Senator and Mrs. Joseph T. Robinson, Representative Caroline O'Day, the Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Sumner Welles, the Commercial Counselor of the British Embassy and Mrs. H. O. Chalkley, Dr. Stanley K. Hornbeck, Miss Vera Bloom and Mr. Ralph W. Snowden Hill.

The Ambassador of France and Mme. Georges Bonnet were guests of honor at a dinner last evening given by Dr. and Mrs. Alexander Hamilton Rice at their villa in Palm Beach. The Ambassador and Mme. Bonnet are staying at the Breakers in Palm Beach during Holy Week.

Rear Admiral Adolphus Andrews, who is visiting Capt. and Mrs. John H. Gibbons, of Washington, at their Palm Beach villa, was guest of honor at a dinner given by his hosts recently. Rear Admiral Andrews is Chief of the Bureau of Navigation in Washington.

Mrs. Nicholas Longworth is leaving the end of the week with her daughter, Miss Paulina Longworth, to spend the holidays in Cincinnati. She will return to Washington the first week in April.

Ambassador Bullitt, Daughter Sail for Paris; Delegates on Same Ship

The United States Ambassador to France, Mr. William C. Bullitt, sailed yesterday on the Manhattan for Paris, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Anne Bullitt. He spent several weeks in this country, in Washington and Warm Springs, Ga.

Also on the Manhattan were Mr. Norman H. Davis, Ambassador-at-Large, who will head the five-man American delegation to the World Sugar Conference in London. The other delegates, who also sailed on the Manhattan, are Mr. Robert T. Pell, Mr. Frederick Livesey, Mr. John B. Hutson and Mr. Charles E. Bohlen, all of the State Department. Mrs. Pell and Mrs. Bohlen accompanied their husbands.

Mrs. Phelps Entertains Party Of Friends at Small Cocktail Party

Mrs. Katherine Phelps entertained at a small cocktail party yesterday in her apartment at 2209 I street. Mrs. Phelps is one of the many people who came to Washington from out-of-town to work for the New Deal and until recently worked with the Resettlement Administration.

Among the guests were Senator George Radcliffe, of Maryland, and Mrs. Edmund Donahoe, of Baltimore. Others were the Charge d'Affaires of the Brazilian Embassy, Senor do Prado, and the Commercial Attache, Mr. Paulo Hasslocher, who said that the Ambassador, Mr. Aranha, was expected back next month from Brazil, where he has been since November.

Others seen were Comdr. Gerauld Wright, Lieut. Robert Campbell, commander of the Sequoia; Lieut. Forest Close, Lieut. Edward Woodyard, Miss Mary Cowles, Lieut. Charles J. Whiting and Mr. Tilford Dudley.

Mrs. Virginius Dabney and her daughter, Miss Lile Dabney, sailed from Baltimore yesterday afternoon aboard the S. S. Barbara for Puerto Rico, where Miss Dabney's marriage to Mr. C. Stewart Graham, jr., will take place on Wednesday, March 31.

Fund Is Raised For Orchestra

Two-Thirds of Symphony Quota Obtained as Drives Closes.

The National Symphony Orchestra had $73,000, or about two-thirds of the amount of its goal, after workers reported their latest contributions at the final luncheon of the sustaining fund campaign yesterday in the Hamilton Hotel.

The annual drive is officially over, but a "clean up" campaign will finish the job. Mrs. Walter Bruce Howe, general campaign chairman, announced.

"We still can reach our $110,000 goal," she told the workers, "we are absolutely sure of several thousands of dollars more from supporters now out of the city, or who are, for other reasons, unable right now to make their usual contribution. We intend to keep after those supporters until our goal is reached."

Mrs. Howe also said that the orchestra fund should soon be able to claim the $5,000 gift offered by an anonymous donor on the condition that another $5,000 be raised in "new" money. Approximately $2,500 of this "new" money, representing gifts from new subscribers, or increased amounts from old givers, was reported yesterday.

The campaign chairman emphasized that the $5,000 gift, conditionally offered, was not included in the $73,000 total announced Wednesday.

Thomas P. Morgan's special gifts committee yesterday brought in a total of $2,777, an amount which raised that group's campaign total to $42,427.

"We are greatly cheered by the results we've had since last weekend," Morgan said. "We are not through yet, because we have more prospects to see. We'll see them all before we stop."

Mrs. Emory S. Land's Navy committee, which passed its $1,750 quota last Friday, reported additional contributions Wednesday amounting to $53.25. Its total now stands at $1,988.25.

The combined reports yesterday netted the fund $8,845.15. The divisions reported as follows: Special gifts, $2,777; men's business, $905; women's business, $618; Army, $159.93; associations, $1,100; civic, $605.50; education, $670.68; Government, $673.33; Junior League, $700; Orchestra Guild, $256.25; suburban, $176.21; National, $150 and Navy, $53.25.

Illinois Group to Meet.

Representative and Mrs. Frank Fries and Mr. and Mrs. Guy de Witt Sparks, who were recently married, will be guests of honor at the dinner to be given April 2 at Renckel's by Illinoisans from the Twenty-third District.

THE MERRY WHIRL

By Marylyn.

Bambie McKenna is due home tomorrow and is bringing with her her Vassar roommate, Dede Schwarz. They will stop in town just long enough to say hello to the McKenna family before dashing off for a week-end at Annapolis. Martha, who has turned to her studies at Wellesley with a vengeance after being one of the most popular debutantes of the year, also is coming home for Easter.

* * *

Eleanor Connolly is very particular about her coffee and must have it just so. She is past master in the art of brewing this beverage and loves to make her own. Each morning she takes herself down to the spacious kitchen of the Sulgrave Club, where she makes her home, and with the butlers and cooks looking on, proceeds to concoct her morning cup.

Speaking of culinary art, Mrs. Fred Biermann is famed for her cooking. There is nothing she cannot make, and all of the difficult things, such as lemon pie, pastries and souffles, turn out as if by the wave of a wand.

* * *

Jimmie Mann is what we call a spring walker. He strides along, his head in the air—taking it all in—his arms swinging—his constant companion an impressive brief case, firmly grasped in one hand. Saw him on H street yesterday afternoon at lamp-lighter time, attired in brown tweeds.

* * *

Someone asked Mrs. Henry Cabot Lodge if she did not feel quite at home in Washington, having lived here before during the Coolidge administration. But—(that word is forever popping up) there have been many changes since then. This is especially noticeable when the young senatorial matron goes out calling. Massachusetts avenue has grown by leaps and bounds and she discovers that many of the streets of Washington, like those of Boston, go round and round and come out nowhere near the destination for which she is bound. Consequently she spends a whole afternoon finding one of the places at which she plans to call, instead of checking several off the list.

* * *

Now, all ye shoppes and giftee corners take heed and hang your heads—one of Washington's most discriminating hostesses, from the Cabinet to be exact, has been on the hunt for lamp shades. After many tours through the large stores, and not overlooking the smaller ones, she was still without her shades. So-o-o—there was one place left and of course that was the very place which had just exactly what she had been hoping to find. The place? —believe it or not—the ten cent store.

* * *

What a flurry of excitement a few words caused yesterday afternoon downtown! Frances Hill, during her shopping tour, ran into an old friend, who, having a delightful sense of humor and seeing great possibilities, with the surrounding crowd, promptly greeted Frances—"Why, Wally Simpson, what are you doing here——"

Needless to say those near enough to hear (and apparently there were many of them) were startled and looked with wide but skeptical eyes at the person so addressed. Even the most searching glance left them a bit puzzled, because Frances does resemble W. S. to a remarkable degree, except that she is more fair.

Club Members Stage Egg Hunt

Members of the Congressional Country Club gathered at the clubhouse last night for a pre-Easter dinner-dance, a feature of which was an Easter-egg hunt.

The dinner at 7 was followed by the egg hunt at 9:30 and at 11 by a floor show presented by Jack Rollins Studio.

Mr. John Maury was in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Verne P. Simmons, Mr. Theodore S. Grape, Mr. Earle Chesney, Dr. O. U. Singer, Mr. Andrew Walker and Mr. Charles Hillegeist.

Mr. Robert P. Smith, president of the club, and Mrs. Smith have as their guests at their home on Sixteenth street Mrs. Morley McKenzie and Miss Irene Morrison, of Toronto, Canada, who are on their way home from a visit in Florida.

Rosemary Finney, Of Plainfield, N. J., Becomes Engaged

Mr. and Mrs. William F. Finney, of Plainfield, N. J., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Rosemary Finney, to Mr. William E. Edmonston 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar D. Edmonston, of Baltimore.

Miss Finney is a graduate of Smith College and is a member of the Plainfield Junior League.

Mr. Edmonston, who is a graduate of Princeton and now engaged in business in New York City, is a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Royal McKenna, of this city.

No date has been selected for the wedding.

Sables Hosts At Tea Party For Visitors

By Lynda Reeve.

The lovely old colonial home of the retiring French Naval Attache, Admiral Sable, and Mme. Sable, in Georgetown, was the scene of a delightful tea party yesterday when they entertained the officers and midshipmen of the French cruiser and training ship Jeanne d'Arc. Unfortunately not all of those on board could attend as some had to remain on shipboard to "have the duty."

Mme. Sable was gowned in gunmetal ribbed silk made on simple lines. The huge rooms of the home which faces on quiet O street and looks out over an enchanting garden, are filled with rich tapestried furniture. On the occasional tables were bouquets of spring flowers and in the dining room a sumptuous repast was laid. Also, in the main drawing room there was a table with tea and cakes. No matter where one was, there were refreshments to be had—with butlers passing and repassing with large trays of champagne, wine, cocktails and highballs

Difficult to Distinguish.

It was difficult to distinguish the officers from the midshipmen; many of them appeared so young. And not until one learns the various "stripes" does one know that a single gold band with two small blue patches on it signifies a student officer. When he is "graduated" he removes the blue, leaving the single gold stripe, to which are added others as he achieves higher rank.

Although this is the first visit to this side of the Atlantic for many, they have already summed up the American girls. Before going to Baltimore, where their ship is at present, they spent several days at Charleston, S. C., and were extensively entertained—thus providing ample opportunity to meet many of the debutantes.

One young chap commented upon their simplicity and charm, while another said that his most vivid impression was of the seemingly endless stream of questions which the girls in this country are capable of thinking up to ask. He graciously added that he found the ladies, both young and old—very nice.

A few of those who dropped in yesterday afternoon were the Counselor of the Mexican Embassy, Senor Don Luis Quintanilla, accompanied by his mother, Senora de Quintanilla, and sister, Senorita Lulu Quintanilla; Mrs. Celeste Crosby Miller, in black; Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murphy, she in a smart beige suit with brown accessories and handsome fox scarf; Mrs. William Castle, in black with a shoulder cape of Persian lamb; Miss Margaret Delano Gage, in black with touches of white on her brimmed straw hat; Mlle. Simone Gaucheron, whose vivid green hat of heavy faille ribbon gave just the right touch of color to her black costume; the Air Attache of the French Embassy and Mme. Champsaur, she in a gray and yellow tweed suit with a small off the face hat of black baku; Rear Admiral and Mrs. Mark Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Burke, Mrs. Emerson Howe, the Minister of Guatemala and Senora de Recinos and Miss Yolando de Mauduit.

Mrs. Berry, Mr. Hudson Are Married

Couple Will Live Here After Honeymoon in Florida, Cuba.

Mrs. Georgia Knox Berry, daughter of Mrs. William Salisbury Knox, of Washington, and the late Mr. Knox, was married yesterday evening at 8 o'clock to Mr. D. Hurd Hudson of Memphis, Tenn., and Washington. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. James S. Montgomery, chaplain of the House of Representatives, officiating.

The couple was married before the fireplace in the living room which was decorated with palms, ferns, and Easter lilies. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. W. Hamilton Knox, wore a frock of canary-colored lace with long sleeves, a Medici collar and a slight train and a corsage of orchids.

Mr. Edward Carl Hudson, brother of the bridegroom, served as best man and only attendant at the wedding. Following the ceremony, which was attended only by members of the two families, there was a small reception for a few close friends. Afterward Mr. Hudson and his bride left for a wedding trip to Charleston, S. C., Florida, and Cuba. She wore a three-piece gray suit with a gray fox collar, a top coat of the same material trimmed with fox and a blue hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Hudson will make their home in Washington.

Invitations Issued for Helen Sewell's Marriage to Capt. Morley.

Mr. and Mrs. Sewell M. Johnson have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Helen Sewell, to Capt. Henry Leslie C. Morley, British Army officer, on April 10 at Georgetown Presbyterian Church.

Miss Johnson is a granddaughter of the late Col. John O. Skinner, of Washington. She is well known in art circles, and studied art under American and English masters. Her work has been exhibited here and in New York.

Capt. Morley is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Morley, of Sussex, England, and has lived in the United States since 1923. He now lives in Washington.

Alumnae Sponsors Play by Students

Notre Dame Academy Will Present 'The Rivals.'

The Notre Dame de Namur Alumnae Association is sponsoring the spring play to be given by the students of Notre Dame Academy in Gonzaga College Theater on April 4 and 5.

Sheridan's classic, "The Rivals," has been selected for this presentation and will be under the direction of Rita Lynagh and Lorraine McLarney.

The leading roles of Lydia Languish, Capt. Absolute and Sir Anthony Absolute will be played by Mary Frances Connolly, Rhea Thaler and Kathleen Godfrey. Other members of the cast include Rita Lynn, Marie Hurley, Catherine Richards, Ann Tilson, Elizabeth Callaghan and Helen Brooks.

The Notre Dame Orchestra, under the direction of Miss Evelyn Fegan, has arranged a musical setting for the play. During the intermissions the sophomores will present a minuet by Beethoven, an old English song in costume will be the offering of the juniors, and the first year students will sing "Notre Dame," the school song.

Arts Club to Meet.

Dr. James G. McManaway, executive assistant to the director of the Folger Gallery, will be the guest speaker at the Arts Club this evening when the subject of his talk will be "The Elusive Shakespeare." Mrs. Foster Adams and Mrs. Teresa Howell Hulburt will be hostesses for the dinner preceding the program.

Stopping at Carlton.

Restricted Immigration Is Favored

Club Federation Adopts Resolution Concerning Alien Entries.

Woman's Party Holding Its First Dinner Meeting Tonight.

The General Federation of Women's Clubs has adopted a principle in favor of restricted immigration with preference quotas for the protection of the United States. A further resolution will be offered to the club women by Mrs. Jefferson D. Atwood, of New Mexico, chairman of the department of American citizenry, at the annual council meeting of the federation, to be held in Tulsa, Okla., April 26-30. This resolution will call on the federation to reaffirm its faith in the principle and urge a continuation of a policy of restricted immigration which shall include adequate provision for the assembling of immediate members of families, protection of the lawful entrant and speedy deportation after due process of law, of the illegal entrant and the aliens adjudged criminal or those detrimental to the welfare of the United States.

The first of a series of dinners of the National Woman's Party will be held tonight in "Olde Coach House." The national chairman, Mrs. Sara Thompson Pell, will speak. Ruth Hudnut, Maryland author and lecturer, will be a guest and also will speak. Martha Souder is chairman.

Mrs. Oscar Nelson, vice president of the Petworth Woman's Club, read a paper on "Schubert" at the meeting of the music section at her home last night. Miss Mildred Bishop played several Schubert selections on the piano.

Dr. James G. McManaway, executive assistant to the director of the Folger Library, will speak on "The Elusive Shakespeake" at the club dinner at the Washington Arts Club tonight. Mrs. Foster Adams and Mrs. Teresa Howell Hurlburt will be hostesses.

Mrs. Francesca Kaspar Lawson will present the musical program at the Easter Sunday tea at the Woman's City Club. She will be presented by Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, president of the club.

Among who have subscribed for tables for the benefit card party to be given for the Sarah G. Bowerman Memorial Fund, an emergency loan fund for the employes of the Public Library, April 9, are: Mrs. A. L. Baldwin, Mrs. Carl Brand, Mrs. Alfred Brooks, Mrs. A. C. Christie, Mrs. J. E. Falk, Mrs. Karl Fenning, Mrs. H. N. Fowler, Mrs. Francis M. Goodwin, Mrs. John D. Hird, Mrs. W. W. Husband, Mrs. Virgil Jackson, Mrs. Grosvenor Jones, Mrs. J. T. Kelly, Mrs. J. P. Leetch, Mrs. Charles C. Marbury, Mrs. William Maxon, Mrs. E. G. Montgomery, Misses Pillsbury, Mrs. David Skinner, Mrs. Philip S. Smith, Mrs. Jeanette Statham, Mrs. A. S. Stewart, Miss Emma Strider, Mrs. Henry Thurtell, Mrs. John L. Weaver, Mrs. F. E. Webner and Miss Joy Webster.

With Miss Mary Mason as guest speaker, Columbia Chapter, Women of the Moose, will meet tomorrow at 8 p. m. at Moose Hall, 1414 I street northwest, to observe the beginning of "Better Homes Week." Miss Mason has been in radio work for 12 years, and is at present conducting a National Broadcasting Co. program of especial interest to homemakers. Her topic this evening will be "Home Making, the Fine Art of Living."

Mrs. Anna Wagner, chairman of the homemaking committee of Columbia Chapter, will speak on "Mooseheart Standards for Better Homes." The girls who graduate from Mooseheart, the national home and school maintained by the Moose for its orphaned children, have had practical training in all phases of home-making—the planning and cooking of more nourishing meals at less cost—intelligent and economical buying, sewing, budgeting of time and money—creating a healthy and wholesome environment in the home, and interior decorating. Results of experiments conducted at Mooseheart along these lines are available to all members of the organization, and may be just as successfully applied to the private homes of members, as to the homes at Mooseheart.

Dr. A. W. Dodds Here.

Dr. H. W. Dodds, president of Princeton University, is staying at the Carlton Hotel while in Washington.

To Leave in May for Honolulu

Harris & Ewing.

Mrs. William Neal Hughes (above), and Capt. Hughes, U. S. N., with their daughter, Elaine, have been living at Wakefield Hall since their arrival here from the West Coast last May. They leave early in May this year by motor for San Francisco from where they will sail for Honolulu. Capt. Hughes' new station.

WASHINGTON SCENE

By the Poe Sisters.

Despite the fact that "J's" Jane and Jean and Joan and Jewel Davis, the daughters of the Senator from Pennsylvania and Mrs. James J. Davis, are fast growing up, Mrs. Davis still has to go Easter Bunny shopping for them. The "J's" expect Easter favors at their Easter dinner places, and Senator Davis likes them too. Mrs. Davis looked very smart the other day as she was deciding between green or white bunnies for the dinner table. She wore a black suit trimmed with Astrakhan and small black Astrakhan hat.

The Right Reverend James E. Freeman, D. D., LL. D., Bishop of Washington, will return to Washington Saturday night from a trip to California, where he went to make the principal address at the "Charter Day" celebration of the University of California Tuesday.

The Bishop left Washington last week and attended the dinner given in honor of former Senator George Wharton Pepper, who celebrated his seventieth anniversary March 16, as well as the fiftieth anniversary of his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania.

* * *

A week-end visitor in Washington was Miss Beverly Githens, of Chicago, who has been visiting friends in Richmond for a fortnight. Miss Githens is a poet and has the distinction of having received a letter from former King Edward VIII of England in commendation of a sonnet she wrote dedicated to the late King George V.

The letter was brought to Miss Githens by the English Consul in Chicago, who later read the sonnet before a dinner of the English-Speaking Union in that city.

Apropos of kings and coronations, at least one cousin of Mrs. Wallis Simpson—and she a Washington woman—will attend the coronation of King George VI on May 12. She is Mrs. Brady Greene Ruttencutter, and will sail very shortly for Europe for an indefinite stay in Italy, Germany, France, Russia and England.

Mrs. Ruttencutter is the great-granddaughter of Col. George Armistead, who defended Fort McHenry in 1812. It was at this fort, it will be remembered, that the American flag hung which inspired the writing of the "Star-Spangled Banner," by Francis Scott Key. Mrs. Ruttencutter is the granddaughter of the late Mr. William Stuart Appleton, of Baltimore and Boston.

Zeta Tau Alphas Hold 1937 Dance

Sorority Group Has Annual Affair at Shoreham.

Members of Zeta Tau Alpha, National college sorority, entertained at their annual spring dinner dance at the Shoreham last evening.

Mrs. John F. Warlick, president of the Pan-Hellenic Association, of Washington, is a member of the Washington alumnae chapter of Zeta Tau Alpha. Other members who attended included Mrs. Rene Reixach, Mrs. Paul Briggs, Mrs. Laurie Hess, Mrs. Linden Crone, Mrs. Virginia Nielson, Mrs. Lindell Leathers, Miss Beatrice Clephane, Miss Esther Arneson, Miss Elizabeth Arneson, Miss Dorothy Erdhammer and Miss Betty Erdhammer.

Egypt Envoy Leaves Texas On U.S. Tour

Agriculture Department Aiding Inspection of Farm Areas.

The Minister of Egypt, Mohammed Amine Youssef Bey, left Austin, Tex., yesterday for Los Angeles, continuing his motor tour of the principal agricultural districts of the United States, accompanied by the Agricultural Attache of the legation, Mr. Mahmoud Helmy.

They are following a 10,000-mile itinerary prepared for them by 150 experts under the direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, Mr. Henry A. Wallace, who has described their trip as the most comprehensive tour ever made in a single journey for the scientific study of American agriculture.

Every facility of the United States Department of Agriculture, the State agricultural departments and the United States Chamber of Commerce has been placed at the Minister's disposal, and he and Mr. Helmy are being extensively entertained in cities where they stop.

The journey is made under the auspices of the association of the Friends of Egypt, a social organization with no political or commercial motives, of which Senator William E. Borah is a member.

The Minister and Mr. Helmy were in Florida two weeks ago, and on their arrival in Miami were greeted by a committee of citizens headed by Mayor A. H. D. Fossey, Dr. George Henry Bradford, and the secretary of the chamber of commerce. They were escorted through the orange groves and gardens, and a banquet was given in their honor at the Columbus Hotel.

A Miami chapter of the Friends of Egypt was formed, with the mayor as honorary president and Maj. Richard Shipley 3d, noted traveler, as its president. A greeting was sent by members of the new group to King Farouk of Egypt through the Grand Chamberlain at Abden Palace, Cairo.

The Minister's tour will take him from Los Angeles to San Francisco, Medford and Portland, Oreg.; Seattle and Yakima, Wash.; Boise, Idaho; Salt Lake City, Denver, Omaha, Chicago, Detroit, to Cleveland and Columbus, Ohio, and back to the Capital by the first of May.

Kentucky Group Will Give Dance

State Group to Hold Reception Tuesday Evening.

A ball at the Willard Hotel on Tuesday evening will be the first meeting of the post-Lenten season for the Kentucky State Society.

Preceding the reception and dancing, which will begin at 10 o'clock, there will be a brief business meeting for selection of the nominating committee for next year's officers.

In the receiving line with the president of the society and Mrs. Lorenzo Martin will be the chairman of the standing committees, Mrs. Stanley F. Reed, Miss Fanny R. Wathen, Mrs. Gordon H. Edmonds, Miss Lela Mae Stiles, Miss Mae Helm, Mr. D. E. McQueary and Mr. Hamilton Alexander.

New Comedy Has Premiere Here Monday

'Hitch Your Wagon' to Open at Belasco; Curzon to Play Lead.

"Hitch Your Wagon," a new comedy by Bernard C. Schoenfeld, a resident of Washington, will be presented for the first time on any stage in the Belasco Theater for a week's engagement, beginning next Monday night, by Malcolm L. Pearson and Donald E. Baruch. The story concerns the situations that evolve from an English actor's dropping unexpectedly into a middle-class midtown New York home. The role of the British actor will be played by George Curzon, imported to these shores for "Parnell." Dennie Moore plays the stage-struck young girl. Joseph Greenwald will be seen in the role of her harassed father. Garson Kanin directed the company of 25 and Watson Barrett designed the settings for the play. There will be the usual Thursday and Saturday matinees.

"The Great Waltz," Max Gordon's memorable production for the giant stage of New York's Radio City Music Hall, will return to the National Theater for an Easter engagement of a single week. This splendid operetta is now in its fourth season and will bring back to the National stage many of the principals who were seen at the time of the production's first presentation here. This engagement will be notable for a popular scale of admission charges. Matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy will be heard and seen in the costellar roles of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's picturization of Sigmund Romberg's operetta of "Maytime" on the screen of Loew's Palace Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. They will be supported, needless to say, by a cast commensurate in every respect with the vocal and histrionic demands of one of the most pretentious musical productions of this or any other season. It is headed by John Barrymore. The story of "Maytime" is too well known to need outline or expatiation at this time. The major feature will be supported by a brief list of subsidiary subjects, the length of the operetta being such as to preclude any great number of supplementaries.

"The King and the Chorus Girl," costarring Fernand Gravet, the Warner Brothers' new importation, and Joan Blondell in the titular roles, will be the major screen attraction at the Earle Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. These two are supported by an admirable cast led by Mary Nash and Edward Everett Horton. The story is a familiar one, dealing with the popular subject of the king and the commoner, but has been tricked out with such opulence that it takes on new life and interest. On the stage, the entertainment will be headlined by Jan Garber and his orchestra, one of Washington's favorite organizations of instrumentalists. In addition to his band, Garber will introduce a considerable list of specialists.

Katharine Hepburn, currently appearing at the National in "Jane Eyre," will be the picture's star for the week beginning tomorrow at RKO-Keith's in RKO-Radio picturization of Sir James Matthew Barrie's play of "Quality Street," in which the principal male role will be played by Franchot Tone. Supporting the stars are Eric Blore, Fay Bainter, Cora Witherspoon and Estelle Winwood—a cast of imposing artistic proportions. As an extra added attraction, the bill also will embrace the latest issue of "The March of Time," dealing with "Child Labor," "Coronation Crisis" and "Harlem's Black Magic."

The Clark Gable-Carole Lombard co-starring picture, "No Man of Her Own," has been reissued in response to public clamor and will be the chief feature of the screen bill at Warner Brothers' Metropolitan Theater for the week beginning tomorrow. Supporting players in this subject include Elizabeth Patterson, Frank Mitchell, Dorothy Mackaill, J. Farrell MacDonald and George Barbier. The bill will be augmented by the usual short-reel subjects and full newsreel.

At Loew's Capitol Theater next week, beginning tomorrow, the screen will be occupied by virtually the same cast as lent distinction to the film version of "Ah, Wilderness"—Lionel Barrymore, Spring Byington, Cecilia Parker, Eric Linden, Julie Haydon, Sara Haden, Mickey Rooney and others. The title of their new vehicle is "A Family Affair." It deals with a crisis in the life of an honest judge who refuse to permit himself to be bulldozed by a clever gang of grafters and political plunderers. On the stage, Easter week will be celebrated at the Capitol by the presentation of another indoor circus, presenting all of the features usually encountered under the "big top."

"The Last of Mrs. Cheyney," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picturization of the Frederic Lonsdale play, will be brought back to F street at the Columbia Theater as chief screen feature for the week beginning tomorrow. The foremost roles are played by Joan Crawford, William Powell and Robert Montgomery, supported by Frank Morgan, Jessie Ralph, Nigel Bruce and Benita Hume.

Beginning Sunday at the Rialto Theater, the screen feature for the week will be a revival of "Ambassador Bill," starring the late Will Rogers. This is one of the few pictures in which Rogers ever assumed a role requiring him to wear evening clothes and comport himself after the manner of a distinguished member of the Diplomatic Corps.

The Little Theater announces Elisabeth Bergner in "Escape Me Never," a revival, as its chief attraction for Easter week. This is the vehicle which Miss Bergner played on both the stage and the screen. She is supported by a competent cast and makes of the leading role a poignantly pathetic figure.

At the Gayety next week, beginning with the customary Sunday matinee, the attraction will be Al Golden and his all new burlesque show, presented under the banner of the Independent Burlesque Association. Max Coleman and Harry Bentley are prominent in a cast that boasts the titian-topped Diana Logan in the feminine lead.

Nelson B. Bell About The Show Shops

Lionel Barrimore Has Another of His Compelling Legal Speeches in "A Family Affair," a Homey Hit

As a Jurist, Up for Reappointment, the Senior Barrymore Delivers Another Oration That Rings With Truth and Conviction; a Word Concerning Miss Roache; Bert Granoff, Washington Tenor, Is Headed Home After a Year of Wandering; News and Gossip of the Theater.

ALTHOUGH slightly obscured by the gabardine slackerism of Katharine Hepburn in the White House suite of the Willard Tuesday afternoon, the fact nevertheless remains that a minority of two-fifths of the local drama desks earlier in the day had previewed "A Family Affair," coming to the screen at Loew's Capitol Theater tomorrow.

BELL.

The two of us who were present—Miss Hillyer, of the News, and I—found "A Family Affair" to be a thoroughly sound "human interest" drama, even if a little on the side of homely hokum and a bit small-timey in content and characterization.

This is not to be construed as a criticism. The screen has a definite place for simple plays that deal intimately with the humdrum matters that concern all of us in the daily pursuit of our lives.

There is nothing "big" about "A Family Affair" except its fine concept of family relationships and the duty of parents to children. In these vital considerations the film adheres to a commendably rigid orthodoxy.

The scene of the play is a thriving city of 25,000 where bitter antagonisms spring up, affecting both the public and the private life of a judge whose conduct of office has been exemplary. He has never had a decision reversed by the supreme court of his State. Just how the tangle of domestic and political affairs works out, you will have to go to the Capitol to learn—or wait for the formal review of the picture which will appear here on Saturday morning.

In the meantime, however, it may not be overstepping the bounds of anticipatory comment to say that the piece is especially well cast. It affords Lionel Barrymore another opportunity to spout one of his impressively convincing legal harangues and provides, at the same time, an outlet for the romantic ebulliences of a junior cast headed by Julie Haydon, Cecilia Parker, Eric Linden and Mickey Rooney.

This little Rooney fellow, who was the Puck in the Warner's production of Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream," is quite an actor. So is the youthful Mr. Linden, for that matter. And so are all the other members of the cast.

If you are a small-town feller—as this typewriter is—you will derive a great "kick" from the unaffected perplexities of the household that makes the title of the picture so pat.

And there is a sequence devoted to an auto chase down the side of a steep and treacherous countryside that will chill you to the marrow—especially if you are a driver of a car, as who is not these days. Except me, that is.

* * * *

Among those who should have been noted in this space yesterday as one of the most charming of the guests at Hardie Meakin's Willard Hotel revel in honor of Miss Hepburn Tuesday afternoon was Viola Roache, the accomplished actress who plays the part of Mrs. Fairfax in "Jane Eyre," now on the boards at the National. You never would recognize Miss Roache, in persona propria, as the motherly housekeeper in the forbidding home of the austere and aloof Mr. Rochester, which, of course, only adds to her stature as an actress of the finest attainment. It is one of the mysteries of a benighted mind that she should have been omitted from our remarks here yesterday. Viola Roache is in the top flight of her profession.

It will serve as an answer to the many inquirers who have been perturbed by lack of word from or of Bert Granoff, Washington's eminent tenor, to announce that this brilliant young vocalist will celebrate a triumphant home-coming on the stage of the Earle Theater the week of Friday, April 2.

Returning to the Capital with his own act, "Melodic Moments," Bert will be the headliner of a five-act vaudeville program, it was announced yesteray by Zone Manager John J. Payette, of the Warner interests in the Washington territory.

It was something over a year ago when Bert left Washington. Most of the time since he has been in Chicago, where he was featured with Ted Weems and his orchestra in a special hotel engagement. For the past six months, Bert has been singing master of ceremonies at the Hotel Bismarck—a record-breaking engagement for the Windy City.

With him at the Earle will be Carolyn Henry, soprano, and Dean Herrick, organist. All of the trio will be heard in solos and Mr. Granoff and Miss Henry also will offer a duet or two.

The other acts on the April 2 stage bill will include the Eton Boys, Art Frank and Vivian Peterson, Harry King and the Sinclair Twins and Ray and Trent. So now you know.

* * * *

So Roland Robbins, manager of the new Trans-Lux Theater stops by the desk to pass the time of day and brag a little about the volume of business his house is doing. One gathers from Mr. Robbins' modest remarks that the newsreel theater on Fourteenth street at New York avenue and H street has done practically capacity business ever since the night it opened to the press, with the Women's Newspaper Club's benefit the following night and the general public admitted on Saturday. That approximately was a fortnight ago—which ought to be answer enough to the hordes who have asked this column, "Do you think it will go?" The only discouraging part of Roland's jovial observations was that that newsreel with the five Washington drama desks in it was continued on the screen for a full week, when we thought it had come off after the Friday night benefit sponsored by the distaff members of the press. "Into each life some rain must fall"—or something like that.

* * * *

Hasty Departure Note.

And so away to the cocktail party, dinner and preview of "The Good Earth," engineered by Master Norman Pyle and Kay Ford, representing Bill Ferguson, in the order named, in the exploitation of this picturized Pearl Buck novel. More of this later.

* * * *

On Screen at Palace Tomorrow

When the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picturization of Sigmund Romberg's operetta of "Maytime" comes to the silver sheet at Loew's Palace Theater tomorrow, the costellar roles will be played and sung by Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy. These two popular stars are pictured above in one of the romantic scenes of a work that represents a high achievement in both musical composition and filming.

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDDLER

HOLLYWOOD, March 25.—Settin' Around (RKO): Samuel Briskin, top man of this studio, tells me he learned a valuable lesson from the chaos that followed the death of Irving Thalberg. It is the custom of many producers to "shoot off the cuff;" that is, to change scenes on sets and sometimes to toss aside the written script entirely. When Thalberg died, he had three major pictures in production. No one knew just how he planned to carry out his ideas on these pictures. Their production was held up for weeks at a cost of thousands of dollars until new scripts could be worked out.

JACK OAKIE.

Briskin took this as a lesson. He has established a rule that a picture once in production can have no script changes that are not recorded and okehed by the front office. Check and double-check is the password at R. K. O., and though it causes irksome small delays, Briskin feels it will prove safer in the long run. He does not plan to be caught with his scripts on his cuff—and his shirt in the laundry.

On the "Toast of New York" (swell title, isn't it?) set, I edged my way into a chair between Jack Oakie and Edward Everett Horton. Both are great talkers, and they were having a battle trying to outword each other. While one talked, the other worked his jaws convulsively, barely able to wait his turn. But Jack was getting the best of it, and Horton at last snapped out with exasperation: "Jack, you've been married several months now, but I can't understand how your wife puts up with your eternal chatter." Oakie was ready for him (he is probably the fastest snapbacker in the colony). "It's like this," he retorted, "I just keep talking all the time, so she can't get a chance to tell me she's leaving me."

On the same set I talked with Edward Arnold. Arrival of his 19-year-old daughter, who acts as his secretary (part of Eddie's idea of rearing his children to be useful, and not drones), delved us into a discussion of fan mail requests. Arnold told of his interesting experiment with letters asking for photographs. He receives about three hundred such requests weekly. Now it costs a pretty penny to buy and mail out pictures. So Eddie figured that if he were going to answer the requests, some charity should profit thereby. So he sent out a form letter, telling fans that he would send autographed photos for a small fee, which would be turned over to the Actors' Relief Fund. He inaugurated this system five weeks ago. The net result of the campaign for needy actors to date is $2.65!

New Model Home In Planned Area

Washington is noted for numerous planned residential communities. Years ago various builders, realizing the certain future growth of the city, bought tracts of land with acreage sufficient to permit their development in ways affording plenty of space for home sites.

They also kept in mind the desirability of retaining the natural beauties of these fields of building operation and saved their contours, streams and trees in laying out streets and lots. As a result, they have given homes built in projects decided advantages.

Attention will be directed to a part of one of these wisely planned sections next Sunday through the medium of a new Washington Post model home. Information regarding the community and the new exhibit residence being shown there will be carried in The Post's real estate section.

U. S. Workers Will Get Leave for Army Parade

Government employes who actually participate in the Army Day parade April 16 will be excused from work for the afternoon by most Government departments, according to the Military Order of the World War, sponsors of the parade, yesterday.

Administrative heads indicated, the order said, "that if the leaves are not to be charged to annual leave, it will be necessary for paraders to present a certificate that they actually participated in the parade."

Ontario Annuls Catholic School Tax Legislation

Member Is Ejected From House During Stormy Debate Over Proposal.

Toronto, March 24 (Canadian Press).—The Ontario Legislature, in what was believed the stormiest session in its history, tonight voted unanimously to repeal separate school tax legislation passed in 1936.

The 1936 legislation granted a greater share of corporation taxes to Ontario's Roman Catholic schools—called separate schools in contrast to the state-supported public or common school system.

Premier Mitchell Hepburn, in announcing acceptance of a conservative bill to repeal the legislation, declared:

"So far as the act itself is concerned I say it has been a failure * * *.

"It is my responsibility at whatever the cost to forestall the possibility of a religious war in this province."

Leopold MacAulay (Conservative), York South, protested so loudly and lengthily in defiance of Speaker Norman Hipel that he was ejected from the house by the sergeant at arms.

MacAulay, believed to be the first member ever to be ejected from his seat in the Legislature, shouted to the house and gallery to see "the dirtiest trick perpetrated in Canadian political history for 100 years."

Premier Hepburn's move for closure brought cries from the opposition benches, including "Hitlerism," "the dirtiest trick ever" and "contemptible."

It substituted a compulsory for an optional provision that taxes from corporations support separate schools according to the religious make-up of each corporation. Separate schools previously were supported chiefly by a government grant and taxes of Catholics in the school area.

Under the new system, taxes from corporations were to be assigned to separate schools according to the proportion of Catholic shareholders in the corporations.

Grapefruit Pickers Labor in Frenzy; Fear Quarantine

Harlingen, Tex., March 24 (AP).—Working overtime to beat a Federal quarantine effective at midnight, hundreds of sweating men stripped grapefruit trees bare of their $12,000,000 crop in the rich Rio Grande citrus region tonight.

Highways leading into the Rio Grande valley swarmed with trucks and railroads used all facilities. Citrus shipments to 17 States and Puerto Rico were banned after midnight in an effort to isolate the Mexican fruit fly, reported to have moved in from across the Rio Grande.

Committee Favors Maritime Choices

By the Associated Press.

A Senate committee approved President Roosevelt's five nominees to the new Maritime Commission yesterday after the Senate itself had acted to assure the eligibility of Joseph P. Kennedy as chairman.

Despite a contention by Senator McNary, of Oregon, the Republican leader, that the procedure was "very, very unusual," the Senate adopted a resolution declaring Kennedy to be eligible regardless of his ownership of stock in a private shipbuilding concern.

Later the Commerce Committee agreed to report favorably the nominations of Kennedy and the four others—Thomas M. Woodward, Edward C. Moran, jr., Henry A. Wiley and Emory S. Land.

Wiley and Land are retired rear admirals.

Crew Reboards Ship Aflame in South Seas

Honolulu, March 24 (AP).—The crew of the motorship Fijian apparently won a fight against fire in the hold today after having taken temporarily to lifeboats in the South Pacific and calling for help.

Unable to contact the Fijian late today, coast guardsmen here expressed belief the crew had returned aboard after reporting the flames under control. The 333-foot Fijian, operated by Flood Brothers, of San Francisco, left the bay city March with a crew of about 30 and a general cargo for the South Seas.

$199,000 Is Allotted For River Work Here

Funds totaling $199,000 for dredging the Potomac and Anacostia Rivers near Washington were allotted yesterday by the War Department. The allotment is in line with the river and harbor act of 1935.

The appropriation calls for dredging in Virginia channel (Potomac River), near Arlington Memorial Bridge, at the junction of Virginia and Anacostia channels and in the Anacostia River, to deepen the channels to 23 and 24 feet at mean low water. Justifying the appropriation, the War Department stated traffic at Washington harbor totaled 1,797,716 tons valued at nearly $60,000,000 and more than 680,000 passengers during 1935.

Kidnaping Report Filed.

Providence, R. I., March 24 (AP).—The death penalty for kidnapers who kill their victims and life imprisonment for those who inflict bodily harm, was recommended today in a report by the Governor's commission on kidnaping.

Sneeze Girl Recovering.

Rossville, Tenn., March 24 (AP).—Ten-year-old Bertha Turner who has sneezed untold thousands of times in seven weeks, was on the road to recovery today, her physician said. On February 20, her family said, she sneezed nearly 5,000 times in seven hours.

Causes of School Tragedies?

Treadway Opens Fight on Extending Capitol East Front

A foretaste of the opposition expected to develop in the House to the Senate measure to extend the east front of the Capitol at a cost of $4,000,000 came yesterday from Representative Treadway (Republican), Massachusetts.

The bill, which passed the Senate Tuesday, "would do irreparable injury to one of our few historical structures," Treadway said in a statement. The measure, he added, "should be carefully scrutinized."

"Whether or not the building was completed after its burning in 1812 is of little consequence. It is a historic landmark, ample in its accommodations for the business of Congress, beautiful in its architecture, dignified in appearance, and rich with association so vital to our country and to present and future generations of American citizens."

Classwork Urged In Blasted School

New London, Tex., March 24 (AP). Officials of the New London Consolidated School were urged today to carry on classes at the scene of the blast which killed 455 students and teachers.

State department of education officials, following the aviation principle under which a pilot is made to take a plane up as soon as possible after he has survived a crash, recommended it would be good for the morale of survivors.

"I believe they will get possession of themselves quicker if they are allowed to complete their school work in familiar surroundings," said J. W. O'Bannion, State high school supervisor.

Lorton Reformatory Called Overcrowded

A warning that Lorton Reformatory is dangerously overcrowded and inadequately staffed was voiced yesterday by Col. W. L. Peak, superintendent, in his monthly report to the Board of Public Welfare.

The prison population at Lorton last month was 1,555, a 10 per cent increase over February, 1936, Col. Peak reported. The reformatory entered this month with 1,576 prisoners.

"There is neither adequate space for the prisoners nor an adequate staff to handle them," reported Col. Peak.

Friend of Harding Drowns Accidentally

Cleveland, March 24 (AP).—Coroner S. R. Gerber today gave a verdict of accidental drowning in the death of Mrs. Kathryn L. Stephan, 48, who, as assistant to her dentist husband, Dr. John F. Stephan, did dental work for many world-famous patients, including President Harding, John D. Rockefeller, Marshal Foch, Cardinal Mercier and Mary Garden.

The body was found by her husband in the bathtub. He said Mrs. Stephan suffered from a heart ailment and apparently had fainted in the tub. The Stephans were close friends of President and Mrs. Harding and were often in the White House during that Administration.

Indiana Rules Autos Must Wait on Walkers

The court upheld a circuit court decision allowing $2,500 damages to Miss Catherine Lucid for injuries received when a motorist failed to stop to permit her to complete the crossing of a street intersection after the sudden change of a traffic signal.

Woodmont Club to Meet.

The monthly meeting of the Woodmont School Club will be held tonight at 8 o'clock in the Woodmont School. Motion pictures of Virginia State park camps and of Shenandoah National Park will be shown. In addition, Helen Jackson, pianist, will play.

Justice Sutherland Reaches 75 Today; Planning to Work

By the Associated Press.

George Sutherland, associate justice of the Supreme Court, is 75 years old today.

He is the fourth member of the present tribunal to reach the three-quarter century mark.

Chief Justice Hughes on April 11 will become the fifth member to reach 75.

Those who already have attained that age are Brandeis, 80; Van Devanter, 77; McReynolds, 75.

Sutherland is the only foreign-born jurist to sit on the court since 1794. He was brought to this country from England at the age of 15 months. President Harding appointed him to the court in 1922 after he had been United States Senator from Utah.

He has voted against Roosevelt Administration laws 13 times and for them four times. He wrote four of the opinions deciding New Deal cases.

Old Senate Records May Be Removed

Priceless historical records would be removed from the Senate to the National Archives Building under the provisions of a resolution introduced yesterday by Senator Barkley (Democrat), Kentucky, and referred to the Library Committee.

The resolution authorizes the archivist to transfer "all archives and records of the United States Senate which the secretary of the Senate deemed not necessary for use in the current business of the Senate or which he considered to be in such physical condition that they cannot be used without danger or damage to them and for which in his opinion he is unable to provide adequate or safe storage."

Some of the records date back to the founding of the United States government. Many were saved when the British burned the Capitol in 1814.

Nitrate Firm Denies Getting U. S. Complaint

New York, March 24 (AP).—Officers of the Chilean Nitrate Sales Corporation said tonight a Federal trade complaint against the company had not been received, although word of its issuance had been received from Washington.

However, H. C. Brewer, director of agricultural research, said a motion picture referred to in the complaint consisted first of a film of "authentic origin pictures" taken in Chile, and second of a film of scientific laboratory experiments.

21 Atlantic Stations Closed by Coast Guard

Twenty-one Coast Guard stations along the Atlantic Coast recently have been decommissioned, it was announced yesterday by Rear Admiral R. R. Waesche, commandant.

In ordering the decommissioning, the commandant reiterated that marked increase in the use of motor boats and radio for distress work had reduced the need for a closely-knit line of stations along the coast, but requires more men and equipment stations remaining in operation. Two stations in the Norfolk division, Cape Henlopen and Wachapreague stations, are among those ordered closed.

Davis Sails for Parley.

New York, March 24 (AP).—Ambassador-at-Large Norman Davis, sailing today on the United States liner Manhattan for the international sugar conference in London, said he would seek adoption of measures regulating world sugar production and export along lines followed by the United States.

Puerto Rico Appeals to U.S.

Ponce, Puerto Rico, March 24 (AP). The Puerto Rican Legislature asked the United States Department of Justice today to fix responsibility for Sunday's bloody riots in which Nationalists battled policemen. The number of fatalities rose to 17 with the death of more participants.

Baldwin Wins Acquittal in Mother's Death

By the Associated Press.

The jury deliberated approximately two hours, climaxing the nine-day trial. Spectators cheered the verdict.

Two different motives for the death of Mrs. Enslow were laid before the jury today in the closing arguments of her son's murder trial—robbery by a prowler or a desire on the part of the son to get a supply of narcotics.

He also heard the prosecution claim he entered his mother's room to get more of a narcotic which he had been using for nine years after an accident which cost him his leg.

Victory in Sight For Legislator on Sit-Down Strike

Jefferson City, Mo., March 24 (AP). Victory hovered tonight over the hard wooden bench occupied more than 24 hours by Dr. J. A. Gray, but the legislator-physician declined to abandon his sit-down strike until his demands were met completely.

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark sent Gray a letter authorizing him to obtain a list of legislative employes, the objective announced by the Republican representative when he sat down on a capitol bench yesterday morning.

Gray, a minority member of an overwhelmingly Democratic Legislature, charged in a statement that a constitutional amendment limiting employes of the Legislature to a maximum of 150 "has been violated by every Legislature since 1932."

Talmadge Assails NRA, Court Plan

Chapel Hill, N. C., March 24 (AP).—Former Gov. Eugene Talmadge of Georgia said in an address here tonight that permanent recovery of American business began only after invalidation of the NIRA, and termed President Roosevelt's court reorganization plan a direct effort to have a court subservient to his will.

"The present effort to pack the Supreme Court of the United States," he said, "is nothing short of a direct effort to have a court subservient to the will of an Executive who wishes laws held constitutional that would change the present democratic form of government."

Maine Senate Clings To Early Election Date

Augusta, Me., March 24 (AP).—The Maine Senate today disregarded a declaration that "the State has no more use for the September election than a hog for a cyclone" and voted to retain the traditional early date for the State's general election.

A move to change Maine's election to November, to correspond with the date of the national election, gathered impetus last fall after the Roosevelt landslide discredited the old saying, "As Maine goes, so goes the Nation."

Perpetual U. S. Leases Abolished by Japan

Ambassadors Joseph Grew of the United States and Sir Robert Clive of Great Britain and Naotake Sato, foreign minister, ceremoniously signed an agreement for abolition of the perpetual land lease held by 43 Americans and 99 Britons. The lease holders, whose property is in Tokyo, Yokohama, Nagasaki, Kobe, Osaka and Niigata, were given five years in which to give up their perpetual rights.

Wardlaw Mason, 66, Dies of Heart Attack

Wardlaw Mason 66, was found dead last night in the fourth floor bathroom of his home at 1308 Connecticut avenue. Death was attributed to a heart attack.

Tokyo Sees No Hope In New Arms Parley

Tokyo, March 24 (AP).—The Japanese government pessimistically told Parliament today there would be no use in Japan's proposing a world disarmament conference as "under the existing situation," it would have little hope of success.

Night Club Strikers Are Evicted by Police

Philadelphia, March 24 (U.P.).—Forty-two waiters, cooks and bartenders who went on a sit-down strike at an exclusive Philadelphia night club were evicted peacefully by police today after the management threatened to treat them as regular patrons. The strikers left rather than pay a $1.50 minimum charge.

Paris Garbage Men Strike.

Paris, March 24 (AP).—Garbage collectors of Paris declared a general strike today, saying that their status be raised to that of government agents rather than private employes.

The Post's New Yorker

By LEONARD LYONS

New York, March 24.

WHEN THE Redwood murder story first broke here and Sam Rosoff's name was mentioned therein the subway builder was informed that Prosecutor Breslin was coming to his apartment in the Sherry-Netherlands, possibly with a warrant. Rosoff's lawyer, former Judge Jonah Goldstein, rushed to Sam's home . . . "That Jersey prosecutor is here with two other men," the doorman announced.

* * * *

GOLDSTEIN, who knew that Breslin is of Irish descent, asked for a description of the two others. "They're Irishmen," was the answer . . . and so when the doorbell rang Goldstein had his back to the door phoning—but conversing in Yiddish . . . The Jersey delegation entered and remained silent until Goldstein had finished telephoning. The attorney then turned to face them and confronted, not the Irish Breslin, but the assistant prosecutor, Sydney Scher!

EVER SINCE the death of David Freedman many of his friends and relatives have been solicitous of the welfare of his family. One of them phoned Mrs. Freedman on Thursday and stated that she had prepared a night's entertainment to ease the mind of the script writer's widow . . . "I'm taking you to a nice, happy show," she informed, "and it will take your mind off a lot of things."

* * * *

MRS. FREEDMAN appeared at the appointed place, met her benevolent hostess and was brought to the theater. Their seats, they discovered, were in the next to the last row in the balcony. The theater was the Winter Garden. The show was "The Show Is On" . . . The hostess hadn't known that the sketches for that musical were written by David Freedman.

The night club set in Walter Winchell's "Vogues of 1938" will be patterned after the Cotton Club. Cameramen now are engaged here filming the interior of that club . . . FRANCES ARMS, who returns to vaudeville this week, is working under a net arrangement, wherein no commission is paid any booking agent. Frances is married to Abe Lastfogel, who is the country's foremost booking agent . . . The Versailles' next show will consist of Josephine Huston, Georgie Tapps and Paul Sydell and his dog, Spotty . . . One of the minor independent film producers ordered a change made in a script wherein four extras were called upon to shout "Yes!" Their uttering of this one word would have doubled their salary for the day. The producer ordered them to keep silent and express assent by nodding!

DICK GASPARRE, the band leader at the Ambassador Hotel's Trianon Room, has been booking all his engagements personally ever since he was 17. In that way he has avoided the necessity of paying the customary 10 per cent of his salary to booking agents. Instead, Gasparre has been sending that 10 per cent each week to his uncle in Rome for distribution among Catholic charities . . . His uncle is Cardinal Gasparre, secretary to the Pope.

The song is an admonition to little boys not to cry, and to be brave—no matter despair. The whistling interpolations during Miss Moore's singing were contributed by Lopez's whistler, Fred Lowery, who had learned to whistle as a professional—at the Dallas Institute for the Blind.

Opposition Making Error, Farley Says

Austin, Tex., March 24 (AP).—James A. Farley vigorously advocated the Roosevelt court plan to the Texas Legislature today in an address, thrice punctuated by applause, in which he said opposition Democrats who opposed only the method were "making a grave error."

"I am not aspersing the motives or the sincerity of any members of our party in Congress in opposing the President's plan," he said. "But where it is merely a matter of method to arrive at a result, that all those gentlemen have pronounced desirable in the past, I thing they are making a grave arror and are lending aid and comfort to the enemy."

Farley was introduced by Gov. James V. Allred, who predicted Farley's "influence, indeed his personality, will be of even more significance in 1940 than in the last two presidential campaigns."

Farley was the third nationally known personage to address the Legislature on the President's Supreme Court recommendation. Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior, supported it and Tom Connally, Democratic Senator from Texas opposed it.

Jefferson Shrine Change Is Urged

House members yesterday were urged to demand that a new design of the Thomas Jefferson memorial be selected through competitive submissions of plans.

Representative Wearin (Democrat), Iowa, recalled in the House that he had submitted a resolution calling for such a competition last year but that the commission had rejected the proposal and awarded the job to John Russell Pope, New York architect.

Wearin said he had received protests from all over the country to the manner in which the commission made the selection of the design.

1 Dead, 1 Hurt as Truck Runs Wild in Baltimore

Baltimore, March 24 (AP).—A large truck, out of control, crashed into the front of an apartment house here, killing one of two men standing in front of the building. The fatality was the State's 133d traffic death since January 1.

The dead man was John Tahlheimer, elderly cripple. His companion, Albert Smith, attempted to jump out of the path of the careening vehicle but was struck.

Sec. Hull Urges Foreign Sugar Quotas Be Raised

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Hull recommended yesterday an increase in sugar quotas allotted to foreign countries other than Cuba.

In a letter sent to a House Agriculture sub-committee considering an extension of the principles of the Jones-Costigan sugar act, the Secretary of State said "it would be highly advantageous to our export trade if some arrangement were to be made to increase the quotas allotted to other foreign countries."

WHEN FOOD LIES LIKE LEAD IN STOMACH

Don't Take Bicarbonate

If excess stomach acidity is causing distress after eating don't take Bicarbonate of Soda. You may aggravate the very trouble you want to correct. Scientists have discovered that Bicarbonate goes too far—it not only neutralizes the EXCESS acid but also destroys the NECESSARY, NORMAL ACID BALANCE of the stomach. Your digestive system is knocked out—no wonder you always feel distressed after eating.

To get safe relief from EXCESS stomach acidity ask at Peoples, or any druggist, for Cal-Trate Tablets—they contain NO bicarbonate of soda and are not a laxative. They merely neutralize the SURPLUS acid, then pass out of the system. Then you feel great.

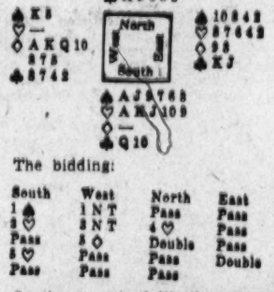
Contract Bridge

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson.

Coolness Under Fire.

The proof of a great Bridge player is in the way he meets adversity. Ordinary players, when they run into a very bad break of suits, particularly trumps, become panicky and, instead of buckling down to save as many tricks as possible, usually get themselves into deeper water by their floundering. In today's hand, the fact that the trump suit broke 5-0 did not even ruffle the declarer.

South, dealer.
North-South vulnerable.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	1 N T	Pass	Pass
3 ♡	3 N T	4 ♡	Pass
Pass	5 ♢	Double	Pass
5 ♡	Pass	Pass	Double
Pass	Pass	Pass

South recognized West's notrump bidding as clumsy efforts to "psych" him out of a game, and the greatly delayed diamond bid was more or less what South expected. He felt sure that five diamonds could not be punished sufficiently to compensate for the vulnerable game that appeared certain—hence his takeout of the double.

West opened the diamond King, and declarer ruffed. Then, seeing that it would be imperative to establish the long spade suit, laid down the Ace and a low spade. West King was ruffed away, and declarer now returned to his own hand with a trump.

Naturally he was not pleased when West failed to follow, but he did not allow this to throw him off stride. Another low spade was ruffed with dummy's Queen, and then declarer deliberately ruffed himself down further by leading a diamond and trumping it with the Jack of hearts.

At this point East was two cards longer in the trump suit than was the declarer, but this did not worry South greatly, for a very simple reason. He felt absolutely sure that West would not have "stretched his neck" with a five diamond bid on less than a seven-card suit and, in that case, East, on taking control with trumps, would be unable to put his partner on lead.

After cashing the Ace and King of hearts, declarer started to run off his good spades. East followed to the Jack, and ruffed the next round. But then he could win only his one remaining trump—the forced club lead from his hand went into the combined tenace of declarer and dummy's for the fulfilling tricks of the contract.

Tomorrow's Hand.

East, dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

Two (2) Men Apply to Wed One (1) Girl

Cumberland, Md., March 24 (AP). Two men, who wanted licenses to marry the same girl, had Deputy Court Clerk Robert W. Jackson thoroughly puzzled today.

Jackson issued a license to Gilbert Franklin Harrison, 32, of Ridgely, W. Va. Harrison gave the prospective bride's name as Wanda Belle Metz, 25-year-old divorcee.

Twenty minutes later, Jackson said, another young man whose name he did not learn, applied for a license to marry the same person.

Clerk Jackson, somewhat dubious as to procedure, conferred with court attaches and finally suggested that the young man bring Miss Metz in to straighten out the license situation herself.

Harrison returned with the license this morning to the courthouse. When he learned that his $2 fee was unavailable, he walked away—with the license.

Fearful of Blast, Principal Clears Suburban School

Fearful of an explosion when a hot-water pipe burst yesterday emitting a cloud of steam, Mrs. Christine Mills, vice principal of the Mount Rainier, Md., elementary school, dismissed all classes for the day.

A group of FWA workers employed in the basement first noticed the escaping steam near the furnace boiler. They notified Mrs. Mills, who ordered evacuation of the building. The pipe burst shortly before the noon-hour recess and in view of the fact that the Easter vacation was scheduled to start at 3 p. m., school officials decided not to require the pupils to return.

Guards May Quit A. A. U. Boxing After Fiasco

This fellow Sydney Cohen, and it's a foine, upstanding lad he is, too, my chickadees, has been pitching himself high into the esteem of Manager Bucky Harris ever since the ball players started swinging bats down here in the South.

The 25-year-old boy with the swarthy complexion and serious mien has been causing Harris to revise his pitching estimates every time he finished a chore on the mound. Syd came down here as a relief pitching prospect. If Bucky Harris had to name his best pitcher right now, he would cast an emphatic vote for Sydney.

POVICH.

The fellow always was a picture pitcher—with a delievery that was pleasing to the eye. He had the long, deliberate windup that you like in a big leaguer. Out there on the mound he was something to watch—smooth, I mean.

* * * *

But it was a constant diet of left-handed curves that Sidney was feeding the hitters, and too often Harris saw the boy pitching and ducking in the same motion. He didn't have a fast one, the hitters were waiting for that curve, they never had to guess, and it was just a question of how long Harris would endure it.

* * * *

The Nats manager called Cohen aside late last season. He had to have something to go with his curve, he told Sydney. You couldn't get by in the big league without some kind of a repertoire. Why didn't he try some fast-ball pitching?

But the Cohen arm didn't possess a fast ball. And the lad was almost resigned to the release that awaited. Try as he might, his fast ball wasn't fast enough. To Trainer Mike Martin he told his troubles.

* * * *

"Too bad, Sydney," Martin told him. And then he repeated Harris' views. Cohen had to have something to go with that curve. He was a left-hander, Martin reminded him. Did he ever try to throw a screwball?

No, but it set Cohen to thinking. He'd try anything, if it would help. How did a fellow throw a screwball? He'd ask Shanty Hogan, who caught Carl Hubbel, of the Giants, for four years, and ought to know. Hubbel being tops in the screwball business.

* * *

So it came to pass that Cohen was shown how to throw a screwball. Back to El Paso, Tex., at the close of the season, he took his new-found knowledge. It was still baseball weather in Texas last October. Cohen joined a sandlot club, pitched at every opportunity.

He began to like this screwball business. He could get it over the plate and the sandlotters couldn't touch it. It was the ideal pitch to a right-handed hitter, normally a southpaw's nemesis. Sydneh saw his new delivery breaking outside of the plate like a right-hander's curve and envisioned big league hitters waiting for his curve and getting his screwball that broke in the opposite direction.

* * *

Sydneh brought his screwball to Orlando a month ago. A week ago he tried it out against the Giants. They got four cheap hits off him in four innings. Yesterday, he was out there pitching it against the Detroit Tigers. The Tigers got one run off him in five innings. Cohen got a big hand and Bucky Harris got a thrill.

* * *

Down in Nogales, Mexico, Syd Cohen isn't Syd Cohen. He's Pedro Garcia, the best first baseman the Nogales team ever did have. That was back in 1933, when Sydneh was out of a job and changed nationalities as easily as you'd change your shirt.

* * *

"Those Mexicans were proud people," related Sydneh. "Didn't want anybody but Mexicans on their team. I was living at Nogales, Ariz., just across the border from Nogales, Mexico, and being out of a job, the overhead was kinda high.

* * *

"So when I found out the Mexicans needed a first baseman it looked like a pipe to me. I used to fool around first base, and I could speak Mex as well as any of those greasers. Besides, with that hot son on me all summer, I looked more like a Mex than some of those Mexes did themselves. There would not be any trouble on that point.

"When you're down around that way, ask 'em about Pedro Garcia. They're stil wondering whatever happened to him."

Farley Accepts!

Postmaster General Will Introduce Mahoney at Dinner.

Postmaster General James A. Farley yesterday accepted an invitation to attend the District of Columbia Amateur Athletic Union's testimonial dinner to Judge Jeremiah T. Mahoney Tuesday night, April 13, at the Mayflower Hotel.

Thil Dropped From N B A's Ring Ratings

Marcel Thil, for years recognized as middleweight champion, was dropped from all ranking on the official ratings of the National Boxing Association released yesterday.

Members of the rating committee of the N. B. A. stated that Thil, a Frenchman, consistently refused to fight outside of his own country and that it was not certain that boxers from other countries were getting a square deal from him in his own back yard.

In his three most recent fights, Thil won a decision from Lou Brouillard and won twice in succession on "fouls" that were the subject of much postfight dissension.

Freddie Steele, recognized in the United States, was rated head of the division, Teddy Yarosz, former American title-holder, was dropped in the second slot and Ken Overlin, who now makes his headquarters here, was ranked third.

Eddie Blunt, the big negro who recently defeated Jack Trammel and LeRoy Haynes, was shoved into fifth position among the heavyweights. Trammel and Haynes were dropped from the rankings. Braddock was ranked first among the big boys, Schmeling second and then followed Joe Louis, Bob Pastor and Blunt, in the order named.

Howard Scott, a Washington lightweight, was ranked tenth and Ray Ingram, another local lad, was rated eighth among the featherweights. Lou Gevinson, a Washington featherweight with whom Ingram would like to do battle, was not ranked.

Nick Camarata, from the stable of Overlin, which is controlled by Chris Dundee, was ranked tenth amogn the featherweights.

Dodgers Top Yankees, 5-3 On 2 Homers

Clearwater, Fla., March 24.—Home runs by Babe Phelps and Joe Stripp paced the Brooklyn Dodgers to a 9-to-6 triumph over the New York Yankees today. The winners collected 14 hits off the offerings of two Yankee rookies, Jim Tobin and Jack LaRocca, and scored eight times in the first four innings. Red Rolfe, of the Yankees, with a triple and two singles, led the New Yorkers' nine-hit attack against Roy Henshaw and Luke Hamlin.

Leiber Returns to Form.

2 Protests Registered In Dispute

Referee Stops, Restarts Action; Commission Will Investigate.

By Bill McCormick.

Referee Robert Emmet (Muggsy) Morris had a veritable brainstorm at Turner's Arena last night which created an unprecedented snarl, evoked two official protests and prompted a sit-down strike by the National Guard team which almost ruined, and may yet wreck, the A. A. U. boxing championship tournament.

The boxing commission will attempt to straighten out the mess as soon as possible to clear the way for the final round of the tournament, which is scheduled for next Wednesday night.

For a bit more than two rounds the action had been furious, with Koustenas having a slight edge, on The Post's score sheet. In the third round, Saugsted landed a terrific right to the chin. Koustenas dropped half through the ropes. The Boys Club battler rose without a count, glassy-eyed.

Steps Between Fighters.

Morris stepped between the fighters, waved Saugstad to his corner and gave the usual indications that the bout had been stopped to keep Koustenas from being punished unnecessarily.

Koustenas protested and the crowd of 1,500 almost to a man and woman shouted disapproval. Morris then waved the fighters together again. At this point, Matt Twomey, coach of the National Guard boxers, jumped into the ring, protesting to Morris that he had stopped the bout once.

Morris agreed with Twomey and it was announced that Saugstad had been the winner. Sidney Fischel, coach of the Washington Boys Club team, then lodged a protest. He claimed that, since Morris had ordered the bount continued, Twomey had disqualified Saugstad by entering the ring.

After much running about, it was announced that "Koustenas was too badly injured to continue, but that Saugsead had been disqualified when his handler entered the ring."

Fighters Continue.

Twomey promptly withdrew his fighters from the tournament. After much persuasin, he agreed to allow them to continue, upon the promise of commission officials that three commissioners would debate the matter today. There were no commissioners present at the ringside.

"In my report I shall recommend one of three courses of action. Either the referee's last decision shall be sustained," said Maj. Harvey Miller, secretary to the commission. "It shall be reversed, or the fight can be held over on next Monday night's professional card."

Should Twomey lose the decision and stick to last night's threat to withdraw his team, the tournament would virtually be wrecked. The National Guard team is in front with five men advanced to the finals, but the Jewish Community Center team is within striking distance with three men qualified for the Wednesday night fights.

Four Cavalier Boxers Enter Coast Tourney

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Charlottesville, Va., March 24.—Four University of Virginia boxers are entered in the national intercollegiate championship boxing tournament, Thursday and Friday of week, at Davis, Calif.

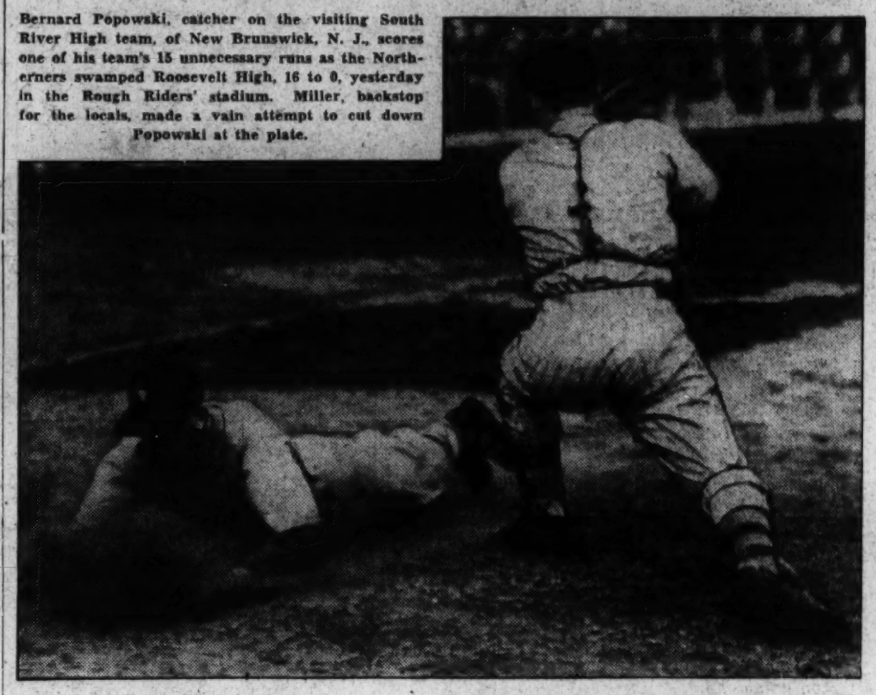
Offensive and Defensive Catchers—the Offense Scored



Bernard Popowski, catcher on the visiting South River High team, of New Brunswick, N. J., scores one of his team's 15 unnecessary runs as the Northerners swamped Roosevelt High, 16 to 0, yesterday in the Rough Riders' stadium. Miller, backstop for the locals, made a vain attempt to cut down Popowski at the plate.

Perry Drubs Tilden Easily In Four Sets

New York, March 24 (AP).—Big Bill Tilden, conceding too much age, speed and control to his agile British rival, was roundly beaten at singles tonight for the first time on Madison Square Garden's green canvas court by Frederick John Perry in the feature match of an all-star professional tennis show.

A near-capacity crowd of 14,000 paying $5.50 top, watched the British ace polish off the 44-year-old "old master" by scores of 6—1, 6—3, 4—6, 6—0.

Perry's all-around ball-hawking, greater agility, and steadiness thoroughly subdued the great American veteran with the exception of the closing stages of the third set. Trailing 2—4 in games, Big Bill got his shots under temporary control, pulled off some old-time dramatics and reeled off four successive games to pull the set out of the fire.

This was the only stage at which Tilden, long a Garden favorite, gave his vociferous followers anything to cheer about. After pulling level with Perry in the eighth game of the third set, the tall American pro displayed some annoyance at the proximity of a broadcasting crew, huddled with its apparatus opposite midcourt. Neither Tilden nor a special policeman could budge the radio outfit, however. Whereupon an unkind spectator yelled "Forget it, Bill, you're being paid for it," and play proceeded.

Tilden pierced Perry's service for the second time in the ninth game, and had his old "cannonball" operating effectively enough to clinch the set in the tenth.

Otherwise it was all Perry. The black-haired Briton had his game under beautiful control. Fred didn't display the variety of shots that Big Bill unfolded in futile attempts to stem the tide, but he packed decisive punch in his strokes, off either side.

It was too one-sided for the most part, to be exciting. After the intermission, all Perry had to do was go through the motions to take the final set in straight games.

Vines, Perry to Play At College Park

New York, N. Y., March 24.—Ellsworth Vines, Fred Perry, George M. Lott and Bruce Barnes will play a return engagement in Washington at Ritchie Coliseum on the night of April 28.

Vines is now two matches up on Perry in 36 engagements. The Washington matches will call for singles and doubles. The troupe played to a turn-away crowd last January when Vines evened up with Perry to make the matches 5-all there.

Roosevelt More or Less Shut Out in 16-0 Debut

5 Hits, 5 Walks, 1 Error, 1 Wild Pitch, 2 Double Steals Produce 11 Runs in 3d Give Jersey Nine the Game (It Was Called in the 7th).

South River High hit the flood stage yesterday and flowed over Roosevelt's sieve-like dikes to a 16-to-0 victory in the baseball debut for both teams in the Rough Riders' creek bed.

The Rough Riders' batting attack showed the effects of the recent snow that prevented batting practice, Gerry Tassa's single being the losers' lone hit. It came in the third inning and prevented Sorocko from completing a four-inning, no-hit sojourn on the mound.

For two innings it was a ball game. But in the third, South River combined five hits, five bases on balls, one error, one wild pitch and two double steals to score 11 runs and sort of put the game on ice.

Blaszka, second on the mound for the visitors, struck out the side in the fifth and sixth. Mellos, Conover and Hudson, on the mound for Roosevelt, were touched lightly for ten blows, two doubles by Rondesko doing most of the damage.

Foes' 3 Errors Help As DeShong Falters

By Shirley Povich.
A Staff Correspondent.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 24.—With the aid of three host errors which produced five guest runs, the Nats today ran their non-paying winning streak to five games, 5 to 3, at the expense of the St. Louis Cardinals.

Until the ninth inning, the Nats were operating with an imposing 5-0 lead, but then the Cardinals began to operate on Jimmy DeShong with great enthusiasm and had the tying runs in scoring position before it all ended happily for Washington.

Too late the Cards had started to redeem themselves with that ninth-inning splurge that saw 'em collect four of the eight hits they thumped out against the Washington pitching. Their sins of the first eight innings, comprising three grievous errors, figured in all of the Nats' five runs.

They were a hapless lot in those first eight frames. Joe Cascarella and DeShong had shut 'em out with only four hits and there was a stretch of four innings—from the third to the eighth—when the Cards didn't get a man on base.

All of the Nats' five runs were as unearned as an innocent bystander's fate. Manager Frankie Frisch made an unpardonable muff of Buddy Lewis' meek grounder in the first inning and a two-run onslaught ensued, with Joe Kuhel drilling a single to left and the irrepressible Cece Travis whacking one of his copyrighted doubles to the same sector.

Swarthy Mike Ryba was the victim of Frisch's misplay but he stuck in there nobly, allowing the Nats only one other hit during his five-inning turn on the mound. That was a lusty double by Fat Frank Hogan, who turned his 235 pounds loose against a fast ball in the fifth inning.

Frisch unveiled the talented Lon Warneke as the Cards' pitcher in the seventh and again it was a Cardinal error that launched the Nats on a two-run spree. Third-baseman Don Gutteridge heaved DeShong's ground ball into the rhubarb beyond first base for a two-base error and the rally was on.

Ben Chapman dumped a cheap single into center field and DeShong scored from third while Lewis was hitting into a force play. Following a walk to Kuhel, Freddie Sington drove in Lewis with a well-powdered single through the box.

That fifth Washington run—in the eighth—was the outgrowth of another Cardinal error. Travis, who singled to right for his third hit of the game, continued on to second when Pepper Martin couldn't find the ball for throwing purposes, and eventually DeShong himself scored Travis with a double to center.

This Travis had been causing the Cardinals consternation all day, to say nothing of evoking some admiration. Besides his bundle of hits, he was roving over the infield relentlessly, cutting down Cardinal hits with story-book stops and dime-novel throws to first.

Then came the ninth. Mr. DeShong lost his control, his bearings and almost the ball game as the Cardinals staged one of their famous finishes that threatened to wipe out the Nats' 5-0 lead.

Light Moment, Black River Win Outstanding Tropical Races

Florida Turf Fans Failed By Jub Jub

Lord Tournament Runs Out After Bumping at Race's Start.

By the Associated Press.

Tropical Park, Fla., March 24.—Form players were subjected to severe treatment here this afternoon. The fifth and sixth races, most attractive events on the card, were particularly disastrous for their choices. In the former, Lord Tournament, representing the Medway Stable of J. E. Stallman, finished out of the money as Black River won. Lord Tournament was bumped at the start. He was a $1.30 to $1 shot. Then, in the featured Diomed Purse, the same establishment's Jub Jub, backed down to even shorter odds, burned up more thousands of dollars by taking a two-length trouncing from Mrs. Parker Corning's Light Moment.

Mrs. W. T. Anderson's Carlovinian, well backed second choice, was third, another five lengths behind. Light Moment covered the mile in 1:39⅗ over a good track, and returned $12.20 for $2. Six 3-year-olds started.

The strange part about Light Moment's victory was the fact that the filly's trainer, Miss Mary Hirsch, wanted to scratch the horse this morning, fearing that the track would not dry out enough, but, after considerable delay and uncertainty, Light Moment was left in the race and her easy triumph resulted.

Light Moment busted away to a daylight advantage. Carlovinian was rushed up to join Jub Jub in the chase after the ultimate winner. Light Moment, with the pacemaking apprentice, Hubert Le Blanc, sitting still, drew farther away around the last bend and was not in danger through the stretch, despite Jub Jub's game effort under hard urging from Albert Schmidl.

Balance Step, under a strong ride by Wayne Wright, got up to take a half length decision over Out of Step in the 6-furlong initial contest on the card here this afternoon. Sirgay was third, three lengths away, while Loyal Son, a heavy choice, stopped from first place to fifth in the last furlong. Wright rated Balance Step behind Loyal Son's pace and drove his mount to the front when the favorite faltered. Out of Step's final bid extended the winner to the limit. Balance Step paid $12.10 and his time, made over a good track, was 1:12 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ADAMITE, $5.70, $3.90, $3.00; BICHLORIDE, $8.60, $5.80; THISWAY, $4.10.

ADAMITE got away well in motion, was rated along back of the pace to the far turn, where boy sent him to the front and, drawing away, won nicely in hand. BICHLORIDE closed with a rush. THISWAY trailed far back for the first six furlongs, was taken wide and finished fast to take the show in the final stride. MISS TWINKLE well up all the way. PLAY LINE was outrun. QUEEN VIC had plenty of foot for half a mile.

FIFTH RACE—Five and one-half furlongs. Purse, $900; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:08. Off at 4:08. Winner, Sullivan and Long's br. g. (5), by Black Servant—Rose Smith. Trained by M. A. Haller. Value to winner, $650; second, $150; third, $75; fourth, $25. Time, 1:08.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLACK RIVER, $6.10, $4.00, $3.40; MONDORF, $6.80, $4.20; YETIVE, $4.30.

BLACK RIVER broke alertly and was rushed into a long lead, but boy took no chances around turn and used the whip freely, drawing away in stretch. MONDORF followed pace and was next best. YETIVE on the inside all the way. TONIANNA ran good race. LORD TOURNAMENT was almost knocked down at start, but was sent up very fast on outside and then tired. STRATEGIST II was outrun.

SIXTH RACE—One mile. Purse, $1,000; claiming. The Diomed. For 3-year-olds. Start bad. Won easily; place same. Went to post at 4:34. Off at 4:48⅘. Winner, Mrs. Parker Corning's b. f. (3), by Sting—May Queen. Trained by Mary Hirsch. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:39.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—AMERICAN PRINCE, $9.60, $4.80, $4.00; MOVE FASTER, $3.30, $2.60; SUN CAMP, $4.60.

AMERICAN PRINCE was rated off the pace for a mile, then began to move up on the outside, assumed lead just after turning out of backstretch, drew away and was only galloping at end. MOVE FASTER made his bid at far turn, but was no match for the winner. SUN CAMP had more speed than usual and ran good race. LANGUOROUS opened wide gap early, but stopped to a walk. BOUNDING COUNT was outrun.

Selections at Tropical Park.

Dear Al:

One of the best race-betting proposals in many a moon is the brain child of Garnett Keller, sports columnist for the Louisville Times and it has been brought to my attention by the Associated Press. He suggests that the "winter book" on the Kentucky Derby be put on a pari-mutuel basis and let Churchill Downs operate it. In his own words: "Why have players investing in 'fly-by-night' books conducted by 'hustlers,' when the Downs could give them the same backing that is accorded the public on Derby day? Couldn't it be done? Why not? Not legal? Who says so, and can't the laws be changed? Just a rough plan, a weekly accounting of mutuel wagering in future operations could be published. This would give 'flyer' investors the mutuel price on his chosen horse for one week only, with all the weeks between publishing of nominations and entries 'through the box' to be handled as separate transactions. The bets would be paid after the race is run, the same as is done by the 'winter book' makers." Congratulations, Brother Keller, I believe you've got something. Mike likes Company. BILL.

First race—Scotch Queen breaks off the rail in this sprint and may make the most of that position to lead from start to finish. There is no question about the keen shape of Kawagoe but that one must drag a 122-pound ancher. Sam Worthy will have Arcaro to ride and might threaten even with 118 pounds.

Second race—Stool Pigeon is another that likes the inside post position. This one is in excellent form as those recent efforts attest and will be hard to beat while under Wright's handling. Dark War and B. Eighty to take care of the others.

Third race—My Pauline seems the best suited of these maiden fillies. Weights are even and I expect no mistakes. Heraldic and Shred have fighting chances in this cheap company.

Fourth race—If you don't like a shot at the moon pass this race up. Larrigan is going to get my call. This one has worked well and I have reason to believe that something may be doing. Phlox and Company will be ready to battle it out if it's not the day for the top one.

Fifth race—With the exception of Harvesting, which I'm beginning to believe doesn't even belong to the horse family, this race may go to any of those entered. This gang beats each other and I'm going to take Woof, Ridge Mor and Earl Porter.

Sixth race—Live One seems to be the solid bet in this group. Gets in with only steadying weight and may lead the crack Jacobs entry of Peedeeque nd Round Table to the wire. Pepper Patch is a possible surprise.

Seventh race—I'm going to give Blue King another chance. This one likes the route and has worked briskly. Sorceress and Madonna for the place and show.

Best Bet—Chambersburger.

Byron Nelson Takes North-South Open Lead With 71

Dudley Gets 67 as Storm Hurts Stars

Nelson Has 139 Total as 1st Round Leaders Falter in Rain.

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., March 24.—They stretched Pinehurst's crack course to full length today and only Byron Nelson, of early pace-setters, could handle the extra length, along with a whirling wind and cold rain, in the second round of the North and South Open golf tournament.

The young Reading, Pa., professional, who turned to golf when a railroad clerking job folded up under him a few years ago, tacked a neat 71, 1 under par, on his 68 of yesterday's opening round, for a 36-hole total of 139.

Most of the salaried stars who walloped par unmercifully under perfect weather conditions yesterday—Denny Shute, Horton Smith, Paul Runyan and Willie MacFarlane—found the old gentleman a tough customer today, although lanky Ed Dudley, a little nettled by his shaky 77 start, banged out a great 67 that tied the course record set Tuesday by Smith and Shute.

Shith, the Chicago ace, hugged close to regulation figures for a 73 that gave him 140, only a shot behind Nelson at the half-way mark of the 72-hole $4,000 tournament.

Wiffy Cox, Kenwood professional from Washington, toured the testing No. 2 course in 72 strokes, even par, to better his first round score by 2 strokes and trail Nelson by 7 starting today's final round. He was tied for thirteenth place.

Leo Walper, driving range mentor, added a 75 to his previous 75 to qualify with strokes to spare. R. P. Davidson, Chevy Chase amateur, was out in 36, but required 42 strokes on the second nine for a 78. Maury Fitzgerald, Kenwood; George Diffenbaugh, Indian Spring pro, and Gilie Young, simon pure from the same course, picked up.

Augusta Tourney Favorites Triumph

Augusta, Ga., March 24.—The four favorites of the annual Augusta Invitational Golf Tournament trudged down muddy fairways today to enter the semifinals.

The victors were Dorothy Kirby, of Atlanta; Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky.; Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., and Mildred Babe Didrikson, of Beaumont, Tex.

Playing over the Forest Hills course, soaked by a heavy downpour, Miss Kirby, Georgia State champion, shut out the tournament dark horse, Grace Amory, of Long Island, N. Y., 5 and 4, after making the turn 1 up.

Northeast Boys Win, 40-6.

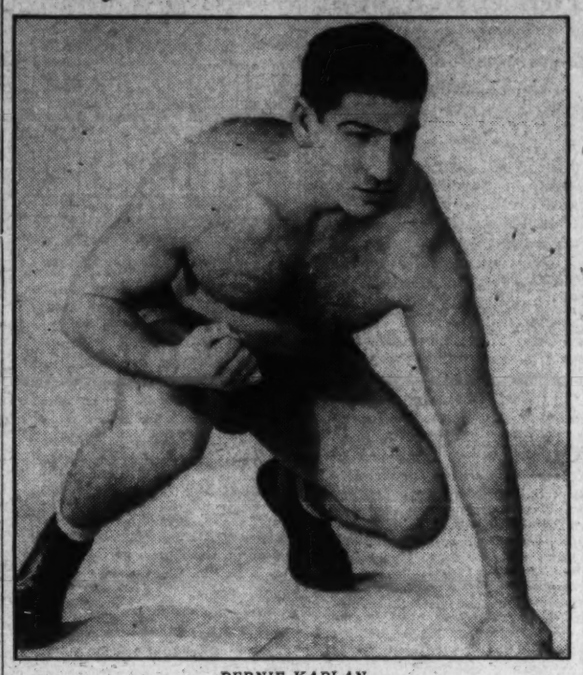
Ready to Die for Dear Old Alma Mat



BERNIE KAPLAN,

Unusual Mr. Baxter to Grapple Former Grid Star in Arena Feature; Chief Little Wolf Meets Kirilenko; Barber Goes Again.

Laverne Baxter, Public Enemy No. 1 in the mat game, and Wee Willie Davis, who is not lily pure himself, will collide in what should prove another program of riotous roughhouse at Turner's Arena tonight.

Baxter and the former V. P. I. football star go to a one-fall finish. Two other members of the roughhouse brigade, Matros Kirilenko and Chief Little Wolf, will clash in a 30-minute semifinal.

Baxter's hilariously rough method of grappling, if it can be called that, has made him the greatest drawing card in the Capital. In each and every one of his appearances here, Laverne has come up with an entirely new routine.

He started out by tearing the shirt off Referee Benjamin Bortnick. Against Jack Hader, Baxter not only applied the Hangman's noose hold to his opponent, but he also gets credit for staging the first sit-down strike the mat has seen.

Three preliminaries will round out the card. Hank Barber, who won from Rudy Dusek last week, will oppose Marshall Blackstock. Jack Hader will growl at Henri Piers and Bernie Kaplan, the former Western Maryland athlete, will make his mat debut against Joe Maynard.

2 J. C. C. Handball Stars in Semifinal

A pair of Jewish Community Center handball stars, Jack Schwartz and Sam Shmukler, assured themselves of a trip to Chicago to represent the District in the National A. A. U. tourney by advancing to the final round of both singles and doubles of the local four-wall tourney at the Y. M. C. A. last night.

Both were forced to three sets, but paired to win easily in tre doubles. Schwartz defeated Joe Cowley, of the "Y," 21—11, 12—21, 21—5, while Shmukler was winning over Wallace Winkler, also of the "Y," 21—9, 18—21, 21—9.

The doubles found the J. C. C. luminaries winning over Myers and Pearlman, of the "Y," 21—13, 21—19, while their opponents of tonight, Cowley and Walker, triumphed over Woodward and Vineberg, 21—10, 21—9.

Frisch Hails Cecil Travis As 'the Tops'

Awed Cards Have Eyes Only for Sparkling Play of Youth.

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Daytona Beach, Fla., March 24.—Two Washington pitchers were shutting out the cocky St. Louis Cardinals with four hits for eight innings here today, but they were comparative bums to the 1,000 natives who thrilled to the play of Cecil Travis.

Travis, out there in the shortstop territory and up at the plate with a bat in his hands, was staging a show for the fans—and for the Cardinals.

Over on the St. Louis bench the hard-bitten Cards watched with complete admiration as the Nats' gangling young shortstop snatched up hard-hit balls like some gifted wraith, going far out of his position to make plays that loomed impossible.

After handling four hard chances, Travis contributed one fielding play that made the others appear ordinary. He skated far to his left behind second base, speared a well-tagged grounder off the bat of Pepper Martin with one hand, permitted the force of the ball to turn him around in throwing position and then unloosed a heave to first base that beat Martin to the bag by a dozen feet.

Grizzled Frankie Frisch, manager of the Cards, who has been inhabiting big league infields for 16 years, literally doffed his hat to Travis after those two plays.

After the game, Frisch took time out to congratulate Harris on his sensational "find."

"You lucky stiff," he said. "That kid will be tops among the American League shortstops, or I don't know a ball player when I see one."

Frisch doubtless was impressed too by the fact that three of the Nats' eight hits were made by Travis. And by the fact that two of 'em were well-spanked doubles to left field.

Travis, in the Nats' six exhibition games, has yet to make an error, or a throw to first base that has been a foot off line.

James Rolls High Set in Pin Match

George James rolled an all-time league record in the Electrical League last night of 163 and top set of 453. The scores aided his team to mark up high team game of the night of 585 and high set of 1,730.

Fred Watson led the Commercial League with a 159 game and 422 set. City Cab chalked up high team game with 608 and high team set went to Daily News with a score of 1,712.

In the Ladies District League, Rosslyn and Convention Hall won three games from National Beer and Lucky Strike, respectively. Lucy Rose rolled 136 and 395 for the former.

Arcadia won the odd game from Rea Cleaners with Evelyn Ream setting the pace with a 116 game and 328 set. Swanee won two from Northeast Temple, led by Helen Mayhew with a 347 set.

Cambridge Crew Outrowed By Oxford After 13 Years

By the Associated Press.

London, March 24.—The sporting world's most persistent jinx was laid by Oxford's unpolished but powerful barsmen today.

In full view of hundreds of thousands of spectators lined along either bank of the winding Thames, the dark blues' varsity crew subdued Cambridge by three lengths in a spectacular duel after Oxford had suffered 13 successive defeats in this, the oldest of all rowing rivalries.

Cambridge, with Harvard-trained Tom Hunter as coxswain, held its own against the heavier Oxford boatload until the final quarter mile but could not match the Dark Blue's great finishing sprint which picked up nearly two lengths in that span and demonstrated conclusively that this, at last, was Oxford's day.

For the first time since 1923—and for only the second time since the war for that matter—black gowned students held a victory dance in Oxford's usually staid streets. The celebration was all the more unrestrained for having been so long deferred.

The winning crew's time of 22 minutes, 39 seconds for the course of 4 miles, 374 yards, was the slowest since the universities rowed to a dead heat in 24 minutes, 6½ seconds in 1877. Tidal conditions partly were responsible, but Oxford did not have the oarsmanship to threaten the course record of 18 minutes, three seconds, established by the Cambridge crew of 1934, even had conditions been more favorable.

Promoter Says Chicago Sure Of Title Fight

By the United Press.

Chicago, March 24.—Promoter Joe Foley, backed by Gov. Henry Horner in a legislative battle over the proposed Jimmy Braddock-Joe Louis title bout, called Mike Jacobs and Joe Gould today for a conference that may bring a final legal showdown before the week is out.

Jacobs and Gould, the champion's manager, will fly to Chicago tomorrow, Foley said.

Developments today in the dizziest negotiations for any heavyweight championship battle:

1. Gov. Horner indicated he would veto any measure to limit top admission prices to $10. He asked the State Senate to rescind its unanimous action in passing the bill.

2. Senator George Maypole (Democrat), Chicago, said he may demand complete investigation of boxing in Illinois.

3. Braddock, who slipped away from Miami process servers, still was missing. He was reported en route to Chicago. Others believed he had returned to New York.

All a Mistake, Is Torrance Case Verdict

New York Ring Heads Try the Case, Decide All Are Blameless.

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 24.—The New York State Athletic Commission today investigated the famed "Torrance case" and after much legal palaver absolved everybody and decided maybe it was all a mistake.

The commission subpoenaed Jack Torrance, former Louisiana State University track star; Herb Brodie, his manager, and Jack Phillips, New York boxer who ran out on a bout against Torrance in Louisiana last month and later explained that he did so because he had been instructed "to take a dive." Phillips did not appear.

Under oath, Brodie explained that due to the difficulty of getting suitable opponents for Torrance he had, with the full knowledge of the Louisiana State athletic commission, suggested some opponents for Torrence to Louisiana promoters. He denied, however, any knowledge of the "instructions" Phillips received to "take it."

Horseshoe Pitchers Meet.

Horseshoe pitchers in the Metropolitan area are urged to attend a meeting in the Star Sports Department next Monday, March 29, at 8 p. m. to form a singles league.

All candidates for a franchise in the all-star league should contact Temple Jarrell between 7 and 7:30 p. m. at Hyattsville 350-R.

Sears, Roebuck Profits Reach All-Time High

Sears, Roebuck & Co. had the largest net profit and gross sales in its history in 1936, R. E. Wood, president, disclosed today in a message to W. M. Johnson, manager for the company in Washington.

Net profit for the year ended January 31 was $30,660,198, or $6.27 a share on the common stock outstanding before issuance of additional shares the first of the year. This compared with $21,519,218, or $4.45 a share, the previous year, and $30,057,652 in 1929, the previous peak profit.

Gross sales for the year were $526,292,136, compared with $417,080,465 in 1935. In 1929 sales exceeded $440,000,000. Net sales last year were $494,968,022, against $392,097,720 in 1935.

Wood reported $30,484,713 was paid out in dividends and $575,000 was provided as surtax on undistributed profits because taxable income is greater than income shown in the report, due largely to depreciation and reserve, which were greater than the Government allows. He also said that the tax bill of $12,441,707 was the largest in history, an increase of $5,020,431 over the previous year, exclusive of sales taxes and mortgage loan taxes.

Axton-Fisher Tobacco Omits All Dividends

Louisville, Ky., March 24 (AP).—Omission of dividends on all classes of stock of Axton-Fisher Co. of Louisville was announced today by President E. D. Axton in a letter to stockholders. The action was attributed to flood damage to the plant here.

President Axton said 1936 net income was $534,314. He mentioned an increased advertising expenditure during the year to "meet effectively increasing competition," and consummation of a bank credit agreement with a group of banks for a five-year open credit up to $4,500,000. The company, he said, is pressing its claim to approximately $1,462,077 in processing taxes paid under the invalidated A. A. A

The dollar value of sales on all registered exchanges in February, 1937, was slightly higher than in the preceding month, and was the largest total since the commission began compiling figures on this basis in October, 1934, according to the monthly tabulation of the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The dollar value of sales on all registered securities exchanges in February, 1937, amounted to $2,977,978,904, an increase of 0.2 per cent over the value of sales in January, and an increase of 2.7 per cent over the value of sales in February, 1936. Stock sales had a value of $2,701,226,285, an increase of 1.4 per cent over January. Bond sales were valued at $276,697,563, a decrease of 10.6 per cent from January.

Total sales of stock in February were 107,051,037 shares, or 8.6 per cent under January's total. Total principal amount of bonds were $346,259,750, a decrease of 19.1 per cent from January. The two leading New York exchanges accounted for 95.7 per cent of the value of sales on all registered exchanges, 95.3 per cent of stock sales and 99.9 per cent of bond sales.

Foreign Buying Jumps Wheat To 8-Year Peak

Purchases, Spurred by War Threats, Estimated at 5,000,000 Bushels.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, March 24.—Sensationally large transatlantic buying, around 5,000,000 bushels, with war threats in Europe, kited wheat prices today to peaks unreached before in eight years.

Export business in Canadian wheat was alone estimated at 3,000,000 bushels or more. In addition, active purchasing of southern hemisphere wheat by importing countries, Germany and Italy in particular, was in evidence. Germany, it was stated, took 12,000 tons of Argentine wheat. Heavy selling to realize profits, however, led to late reactions from the day's top prices.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were ⅛ to 1 cent above yesterday's finish: May, $1.40⅝@¾; July $1.25⅞@1.26; September, $1.23¼@⅜; Corn ⅛ off to ⅜ up; May, $1.11⅞@1.12; July, $1.07⅜@½; September, $1.02⅝@¾; Oats, unchanged to ¼ lower; May, 46⅞@47, and rye showing ⅜ to 1 cent bulge. The Market

By Carlton A. Shively, Special Correspondent.

Stocks Improve in Less Active Trading; Government Bonds Firm; Wheat Higher.

New York, March 24.—Steadier markets again were the rule, but dealings were small. Stocks moved irregularly higher, largely as a result of a midday buying movement. Trading was almost at a standstill in the early hours. Turnover in stocks was the smallest since last autumn. Government bonds held firm. Commodities hardened. May wheat closed ⅞ of a cent higher at 140¾ cents a bushel.

The steadier tone in Government bonds, induced by the hearty Treasury support and the passing of the first flush of panic among the banks, which naturally realize that they are going to pay in the long run for the "saving" to the Treasury in issuing such low interest bearing securities in such tremendous volume, and the good flavor of midweek industrial news combined to assist stocks in their recovery movement. Even in the Detroit area of strikes the tone was more hopeful, although it was less easy this time to talk up stocks on the basis of a settlement than it was at the time of the General Motors difficulty.

Some credit was given reported statements in Congress that a Chrysler settlement would be announced later in the afternoon, and that helped the market, although no hint came as to the nature of the agreement. The effect was spoiled later by admission that the dope came from a brokerage house. Many traders hold that, for short run, any peace is better than a fight, and they are willing to let some one else worry about what that eventually may mean for American industry.

Steel Booms.

Meanwhile activity increases in leading trades. The steel industry has not been held back by apprehension in Government circles over the rapid rise in wages and prices, according to the Iron Age, which says production is mounting to the highest levels since boom times. In the Pittsburgh area the going is the fastest since the war boom, and it promises to be maintained for a long time. As a further measure of the demand for steel the prices for scrap continue to rise. At Pittsburgh it was reported today that a concern had paid $25 a ton for the metal, the highest in 12 years.

The money market today was less excited and there were indications that dealers in acceptances had overshot the mark in raising bill rates, although conditions later may catch up with the action they took yesterday. Should Government securities recover and the yield on the next issue of Treasury bills go down, it might be that the bill market would retrace some of its recent setup of yield rates.

As things now stand the Federal Reserve Bank can control or prevent a further rise in yield rates by maintaining its buying rate for bills at the present level. If it decides to change, such action would be looked upon as official sanction of the higher rate structure now ruling for short term funds. As pointed out here yesterday the Reserve Bank probably will not decide its policy until the banks or dealers offer bills to it.

Central Drops.

Improvement in stocks was a trifle jerky, for confidence once shaken is not quickly retsored when it is realized that the organism is fundametnally unsound. A few rails looked better for a time. New York Central moved up a point or so and then lost a fraction, while Delaware & Hudson, which maybe is and maybe isn't selling more of its investments in Central and other roads, lost more than a point.

Motor stocks advanced 1 to 2 points above the lows of the day in the afternoon pick-up on more hopeful strike news, notwithstanding the fact that rumors of a settlement today were denied all around. Steel shares were about the best single group, helped by higher steel and iron markets, rising orders and no sign of important letup in demand. When activity fell toward the close the price gains were fairly well maintained.

Good performers were found in the electrical equipment, farm implement and mail order groups. Oils, rubbers and metals gave up a fraction to more than a point on light offerings. Great Northern was firm, as was Nickel Plate. Anaconda and Kennecott reflected buying at London. Steel was not especially buoyant, but Bethlehem ran up sharply. Utilities continued to scrape bottom.

Denial.

Wall Street is familiar enough with the "technical denial," and is just a bit sick of it, too. At least newspaper readers are fed up with it and many of the brokerage and banking fraternity have come to treat such denials as of no more importance than a sneeze when they were contrary to generally accepted rumor. When Wall street talks about a thing for a while it accepts it as true, and its conviction is only increased by the casual and slick denials from officials. That is unfortunate, for unfounded rumors frequently can do a great deal of harm. It is a shining fact that denials from a select few, highly placed Wall Stret men always are accepted at face value. The reason is that those men are never later proven to have been untruthful, technical or otherwise.

Not Technical That Time.

The technical denial is a species of indirect and evasive reply that is meant to be interpreted as a denial, but which later can be explained as something else. As, for instance, the question: "Are you selling your New York Central stock?" could have been met by the Delaware & Hudson officials with the "technical" denial of "No," which later could have been excused as saying that the question was understood as meaning all our New York Central stock. The bad taste in the mouth would have been there, but not to the extent it was with the out and out official denial by the D. & H. that it had sold "any part" of its New York Central stock.

Deceiving the Public.

The worst of that denial was that newspapers were thereby used to assure the public of something that wasn't true. It did, of course, help the D. & H. to get a better market for its Central, just as misrepresentation of securities—before establishment of SEC—helped promoters to obtain a better market for their wares. If anything is decidedly not true it is that the D. & H. "categorical" denial "was seen in Wall Street as justifiable corporate procedure," as a newspaper commentator put it. What is accepted and expected in and out of Wall Street is that, if officials feil embarrassed by certain questions, they stick to their right to refuse to comment one way or the other. That always has been the practice in these quarters of Wall Street for which the respect of the public and the press is the highest.

Argentina Orders 35 U. S. Airplanes

New York, March 24.—The Argentine government has awarded contracts for the construction of 35 military planes amounting to $4,300,000 to the Glenn L. Martin Co. of Baltimore, Glenn L. Martin, president, announced today. Production on the order will begin immediately with delivery expected late this year. The latest booking brings the company's unfilled orders to more than $12,500,000, Martin said.

Cotton Is Higher In Trade Buying

New York, March 24 (AP).—Foreign and commission house buying caused cotton to rally moderately today. July sold up from 13.79 to 13.92 and closed at 13.91 with final prices 9 to 12 points net higher.

Steel Activity At Pittsburgh Top Since War

New York, March 24.—Apprehension in Government and economic circles because of the rapid rise of wages and prices, together with growing concern over spreading labor unrest, has had no discernible effect upon steel production or incoming business, which are amounting to peaks that compare with the best records of 1929, says Iron Age in its weekly summary today. The review adds:

"In the Pittsburgh district, for example, the steel ingot rate has risen to 93 per cent, the highest since the World War, while for the country at large this week's production is estimated at 90 per cent.

"Heavy backlogs for the second quarter in nearly all products virtually assure the continuance of the present rate, or close to it, during that period. Indeed, there is a possibility of further slight increases in output in some districts, as open-hearth furnaces that have not been in operation since 1930 are being put in readiness. Aside from the lack of serviceable steel-making capacity, the increasing shortage of pig iron is the most important restriction upon higher steel output.

"March bookings of steel products will exceed those of February by fully 50 per cent and by smaller margins will top those of December and January, the two previous peak months of this movement. In sheets, most mills are booked solid for the second quarter, and a few have taken business for shipment as far ahead as late August, with price at time of delivery to apply. On some grades of sheets deliveries are extended to 23 weeks.

"Seldom, if ever, in the history of the steel industry, not excluding 1920 and 1929, has there been so decidedly a sellers' market. Many mills are actually refraining from the solicitation of business, and buyers are going to the mills.

Bank Women's Club To Dine Tonight

The Bank Women's Club will hold a dinner meeting at Wesley Hall, 1703 K street northwest, tonight at 6 o'clock. A business meeting will be held afterward for the purpose of voting on changes in the by-laws and constitution and the annual election of officers will also take place. Mrs. Constance Fogle Jones will preside.

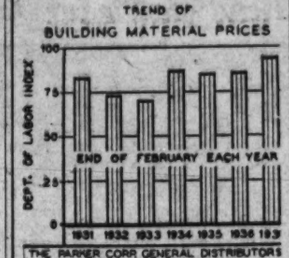
Building Materials 34% Up From Low



Boston, Mass., March 24.—Building material prices jumped during the past year and at the end of February were 9½ per cent higher than in February, 1936. Since the depression low the prices of building materials have advanced 34 per cent so that they are now only 2¼ per cent below February, 1929.

Average Tobacco Prices.

New York, March 24.—The average price of U. S. type, grade B4F, flue-cured tobacco in the week ended March 20 was 20.4 cents a pound, according to H. A. Stich, tobacco economist. In the preceding week the price was 20.1 cents average, and in the like week of 1936, 17.6 cents.

Oil Production Continues Rise To New Record

By the Associated Press.

New York, March 24.—Crude oil production in the United States pushed to a new record high for the week ended March 20, the American Petroleum Institute indicated today. This was the seventh consecutive raise to hitherto untouched levels.

Daily average production gained 75,300 barrels over the preceding week to 3,448,150 barrels. This compared with 2,835,950 barrels in the same period a year ago, a 21 per cent increase.

Consumption in recent weeks, trade circles said, has lagged behind output. Although February figures have not been issued, they are not expected to show more than a 10 per cent increase over 1936.

Reports received by the institute from companies owning 89 per cent of etsimated capacity, which operated at 80 per cent of potential, indicate processing was started on 3,095,000 barrels of crude daily. The same group in the previous week, working at 77 per cent of capacity, ran 2,935,000 barrels to stills daily.

Finished and unfinished gasoline stocks at refineries, terminals and in transit totaled 81,623,000 barrels as of the week-end, against 81,236,000 barrels in the previous week.

Foreign Markets.

By the Associated Press.

London, March 24.—Stock prices closed generally steady, giltedged securities and coils selling at higher prices as shipping and tobacco issues also advanced. German bonds were somewhat easier and the mining section was mixed after early strength. Transatlantic stocks remained quiet.

Paris.—French rentes lost 23 to 85 centimes today and the bourse closed with a mixed tone. International shares held firm and Royal Dutch gained about 100 francs on the day. Canadian Pacific moved 6 francs higher and banking issues finished with slight changes.

Liverpool.—Wheat futures continued their upward movement today following sharp advances in the world's grain centers Tuesday, and prices closed 1¾d to 2¼d higher. The demand for import wheat was better and weekly exports of Argentine grain were estimated to be smaller. Cotton closed 1 to 4 points lower, with the market holding steady on trade buying and short covering.

Steel Prices Unchanged.

Auction Sales

THURSDAY, MARCH 25, 1937—
ADAM A. WESCHLER & SON, Auctioneers

By virtue of a decree of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia, passed in Equity Cause No. 61124, the undersigned trustees will offer for sale by public auction, in front of the premises, on THURSDAY, THE TWENTY-FIFTH DAY OF MARCH, 1937, AT HALF-THIRTY O'CLOCK P. M., the following-described real estate, situate in the District of Columbia, to-wit: Parts of lots 3, 4 and 5, and all of lot 6 and the east one-half of lot 7 in J. Harry Thompson, trustees' subdivision of Square 676, as per plat recorded in Liber W. F., folio 106, of the records of the office of the Surveyor of the District of Columbia, now being designated on the books of the assessor of the District of Columbia for taxation purposes as Lots 801 and 803 in Square 676, fully described in the final decree appointing the trustees for sale of real estate, improved by premises 62 and 64 H street northeast.

TERMS OF SALE: Property to be sold subject to the unpaid balance of a first (building association) deed of trust amounting to approximately $74,991.05, bearing interest at 6% from February 8, 1933, and subject further to the unpaid balance of a second deed of trust of approximately $6,468.05, together with interest at 6% from December 30, 1935; over and above said encumbrances, one-third of the purchase money to be paid in cash, the balance in two equal installments represented by the promissory notes of the purchaser, payable in one and two years, with interest at six per cent per annum from day of sale, payable semi-annually, secured by deed of trust upon the property sold, or all cash, at option of purchaser. A deposit of $500.00 required of purchaser at time of sale. All conveyancing, recording, revenue stamps and notarial fees at cost of purchaser. Terms of sale to be complied with within thirty days from day of sale, otherwise trustees reserve the right to resell property at risk and cost of defaulting purchaser, after five days' advertisement of such resale in some newspaper published in Washington, D. C.

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE United States for the District of Columbia, holding Equity Court. Lila T. Taylor and Robert L. Taylor, executrix of the will of H. Herbert Smith, vs. R. L. Taylor Motor Co., Inc., defendants. Equity No. 32262. Order for publication and for presentation of claims. Upon consideration of the bill of complaint filed herein and the supplement thereto, and it appearing to the court that exceptional conditions exist that this cause be passed, it is by the Court this 12th day of March, 1937, ordered:

1. That all persons, firms and corporations having or asserting claims or demands against the R. L. Taylor Motor Company, Inc., or any stock interested therein, OF JUNE, 1937, under penalty of thereafter having said claims disallowed in the discretion of the Court, to file with the Receiver herein, William E. Furey, Southern Building, Washington, D. C., verified proof of said claims or demands or stock interests setting out therein the amount and nature of any security or lien held by the claimant, or to which the claimant claims to be entitled.

2. That William E. Furey, receiver herein, shall, within 15 days after the date of this order, mail or cause to be mailed, postage prepaid, a copy of this order and form of proof of claim to all persons, firms and corporations known to said receiver to have or to assert claims or demands against said R. L. Taylor Motor Company, Inc., or to have or claim stock interests therein, at the last known addresses of such persons, firms or corporations, according to the best information and belief of said receiver, and that said receiver shall cause a copy of this order to be published once a week for three successive weeks in the Washington Law Reporter and in The Washington Law Reporter and in The Washington Law Reporter and in The Washington Post, the first publication thereof to be not more than ten days after this order.

3. That said receiver shall receive and hold the claims so filed, with him, and shall within 20 days after said 18th day of June, 1937, report all claims filed with him, the names and addresses of the claimants, the amount of the debts or stock interest claimed and the nature of the security, if any, held or claimed by said claimants, showing in said report claims which he believes to be proper, which shall thereupon be deemed provisionally allowed, and those which he does not believe to be proper, which shall thereupon be deemed provisionally disallowed.

Your porch can have an extra 6-months' value if you'll simply make it a sun-parlor. The difference in price is certainly worth it. And there's a "day-and-night" difference in your home's appearance, too.

We shall be glad to give you an estimate on just how much it would cost to increase the livability and value of your home by changing your porch into a sun-parlor.

YOUTH!

takes the center of the stage in the Varsity Shop

The Varsity Shop's a spot where a young fellow feels at home. There's a completely masculine atmosphere about the place—and a very complete understanding of authentic fashions for Younger Men. This spring you're crazy about the suit cut to an athlete's build, with tapered waistline and broadened shoulders—and it's in the Varsity Shop in many versions—all priced for young pocketbooks. The Glen Plaid's a leader, and you'll find it here at its best! The jacket with the sunburst back to wear with odd slacks is a pacemaker—and it's a Varsity Shop specialty. Varsity Shop is fast on the ball—it's the place to find the important fashions first—and those low prices pack a mighty punch of fashion and value.

Sheldon Hi 2 Trouser Suits

Established favorites with younger men who keep up with the important trends in clothes. They're tailored with real art—to give you the wide shoulders and tapered waistline of an ace athlete. Featured for spring in new tweeds, cheviots and cassimeres—with two pairs of trousers, one pleated and one plain. And the price of a Sheldon Hi won't put a young man in the doghouse, either. Ages 17 to 22, chest measurements 33 to 38.

Harleigh Shoes for Younger Men

Harleighs are made to stand the knocks that active young men give them—and they're smart enough to be at home in any company. The styling is the result of watching the important trends in men's shoes—and, at the same time, Harleighs are built on lasts that protect feet that are still growing.

$5.00
